PRAYER, TURKEY, SPORTS ON HOLIDAY MENU

CORN SHOCKS THAT DWARF A MAN and strong sons to work the land are plenty to be thankful for when a person has grown old enough to want to relax. Here, Howard Perrill, 45, shows his father G. H. Perrill, 86, how he and his brother, J. Herbert, 49, have cultivated the older gentleman's land this summer. The sons work the farm on the Burnet-Perrill Rd., about seven miles west of Washington C. H., for their father and mother. From the size of the shock, it looks like the Perrills will not want for stock feed during the winter ahead.

Strikes Spoil Day of Thanks For Thousands

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Prayers, feasting, parades and sports events take over as usual on this Thanksgiving Day.

Hot turkey supplants the cold war as citizens throughout the land dine with their loved ones and remember too the needy with holiday platters and all the fixings.

For many of those trying to get home, or to some vacation spot, however, strikes on two of the nation's major airlines presented a headache. Thousands of persons with holiday air bookings were forced to turn to already crowded bus and train facilities.

At Augusta, Ga., a vacationing President Eisenhower celebrates the day with his family gathered about him.

Traditional high school and college football games are being played from coast to coast. A bus strike in Lowell, Mass., had posed the problem of how to get the local high school gridiron squad to Lawrence, Mass., for the big game. Funeral directors solved the dilemma by donating seven limousines to transport the players.

From the smallest of rural churches to stately cathedrals Americans throng to their houses of worship to give thanks for their blessings of the past year.

San Diego arranged nonsectarian Thanksgiving services in a city park.

At Plymouth, Mass., where the holiday was originated more than 300 years ago, special church services were to be followed by a pageant.

At Long Beach Memorial Hospital on Long Island, N. Y., patients will be served turkey dinners by hospital personnel attired in Pilgrim dress.

Gay parades in cities and towns take place for adults and children. Detroit puts on a huge parade, as does New York City and Pittsburgh, Pa.

Pittsburgh, marking the opening of the city's 14-month bicentennial celebration, whooped it up with bagpipers, a band concert and cannon fire.

Even the prisoners of a Howard, R. I., correctional institution found something to be thankful for. A holiday editorial in a magazine put out by the inmates read in part:

"We don't have freedom of movement . . . but we do enjoy more freedom than do many subjugated people who literally don't know the meaning of the word."

At Johnson Creek, N. Y., farm hand Burton Brier marked his 104th birthday Wednesday. But the official celebration was put over until today to give him and his friends a double reason for giving thanks.

Soviet Pledges No Change In Berlin for 6 Months

BERLIN (AP)—A spokesman for the Soviet Embassy in East Berlin said the Soviet Union today promised the United States there will be no change in the status of Berlin for the next six months.

The spokesman told a newsman the promise was contained in a note handed today to U. S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson in Moscow.

The note proposes that the Soviet Union and the Western Allies negotiate on the future status of Berlin during the six-month period, the spokesman said.

If no agreement is reached, then the Soviet Union will begin taking steps to drop its occupation rights in East Berlin and turn them over to the East German Communist regime.

At the same time the talks with the Allies went on, the Soviet Union would negotiate on the same matter with the East German regime, the spokesman said.

The Russians thus gave notice they will be carrying on a double-barreled diplomatic offensive on the potentially explosive Berlin issue.

The same proposal presumably was made to France, Britain and West Germany, whose ambassadors in Moscow also were summoned to the Kremlin this morning.

In Washington, a State Department spokesman said contents of the Soviet note hadn't been received. He declined comment on the statement given by the Soviet Embassy in Berlin.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko handed Thompson a 24-page document. Gromyko had just returned from conferences in East Berlin with East German Premier Otto Grotewohl and other top leaders of his regime. Soviet informants said the foreign minister told the East Germans of Soviet plans concerning withdrawal from the occupation setup.

It appeared the Soviet offer to negotiate for six months would result in considerable relaxation of tension which had mounted steadily in the West after Soviet Premier Khrushchev's speech Nov. 10 suggesting an end to four power control of the former German capital.

Khrushchev laid down no timetable nor did he say how far the Russians intended to go. But it had been generally believed that the Soviets would unilaterally declare the four-power occupation of the city at an end and transfer to the East German regime their control of the road, canal, railroad and air corridors through which the Allied garrisons in Communist-surrounded East Berlin are supplied.

The three Western Allies made clear they would not recognize a unilateral abandonment by the Russsians of their occupation role and that they would not quit West Berlin. There was talk of another Berlin blockade, with the Allies resorting to another supply airlift rather than negotiate on traffic controls with the East German regime, which they refuse to recognize.

Council Hears Opposition to Solicitor Law

The "Green River ordinance" received enough opposition after its first reading in City Council Wednesday night for Council President Ben Norris to promise more discussion of it and a study of possible substitutes.

About 30 salesmen and representatives of companies were present to object to the ordinance which would prohibit solicitation in the city without invitation of residents themselves.

City Manager David Foell said the ordinance was brought before Council at the request of the Retail Merchants Assn. and the manager of the Chamber of Commerce. But, Foell said, neither party was sponsoring the proposed law.

The legislation would act as a specific type of trespassing law from solicitors they consider nuisances.

The city couldn't do any more than it can right now without a complaint from a resident, Foell said.

* * *

JOHN OBERLIESE, manager of Electrolux Corp. in Dayton, said many cities in the south have adopted the ordinance and have used it to prohibit salesmen from leaving the sidewalk. He wondered, he said, if a Washington C. H. council couldn't use it in the same manner sometime in the future.

Foell said this ordinance would prohibit such discriminatory action.

Oberliese asked Council if he could offer a different ordinance which would "police" direct sales. Norris said Council would be open to other suggestions.

Mrs. Grace Fisher, district manager for Avon products, agreed with Oberliese that the ordinance could "become a vicious cycle" in the future.

Holiday Travel Is Curtailed By Strike Against Airlines

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thanksgiving holiday travel emphasized the effects of a continuing strike against two of the nation's biggest airlines which grounded nearly 400 commercial aircraft and threatened to snarl other forms of transportation.

A walkout by members of the Flight Engineers International Assn. has halted Eastern Air Lines flights since last Monday.

The International Assn. of Machinists struck Trans World Airlines last Friday, with TWA flight operations halted Monday.

A total of about 35,000 employes have been idled.

Nonstriking airlines have put every available plane into service but block bookings—passengers reserving space on a number of nonstruck airlines in the hope of getting aboard one of them—ironically has left empty seats on some airline flights.

Bus and rail lines have been doing a rush business, with all available facilities pressed into service. Confronted by crowding and delays, thousands of persons traveled by auto or stayed at home.

Wages and working conditions figure in the contract disputes.

The "third man" issue is proving a stumbling block in the strike by the flight engineers against Eastern Air Lines.

The company contends the engineers need pilot training so they can coordinate with the captain and copilot of jet equipment the line expects to put into service in 1960.

The union claims the pilot training offered amounts to little more than training on light planes.

In Miami, Fla., Federal Judge Emett C. Choate reserved decision on the "third man" issue in considering a petition by the airline for an injunction against the striking engineers.

Choate, although saying "management has the right to require reasonable qualifications," noted that any ruling for the company could not halt the walkout. The union still could continue to strike over wage demands, an "economic issue."

At Kansas City, TWA and the IAM recessed talks after a five-hour negotiating session. A mediator said no progress had been made. A union spokesman said he would be available for further negotiations but none have been scheduled.

American Airlines continued to operate its 200 planes under a temporary federal court injunction last Monday prohibiting a walkout by the 1,500-member Air Line Pilots Assn. The dispute involves wages, work schedules and rule changes.

The Teamsters Union has decided to honor picket lines of the striking airlines' personnel, which means cutting off truck deliveries of freight and gasoline to hangars of the affected companies.

One of Every 20 Transfusions Saves a Life

Bloodmobile Coming Dec. 8

Fayette Countians will have an opportunity to give the most precious gift of all this holiday season — blood that could save a life.

The mobile unit of the Red Cross regional Blood Bank will be at the First Presbyterian Church in Washington C. H. from 10 a. m. until 4 p. m. again on Dec. 8 to collect blood for the bank.

The Fayette County Professional Nurses Assn. is sponsoring this call of the bloodmobile and has assumed the responsibility of recruiting donors.

The county's quota this time is 150 pints, but because of the need for blood — which the nurses see every day at Memorial Hospital—the association has set its sights on 185 pints. If this much is to be collected, the committee chairman said, at least 220 volunteers will be needed.

To this end, they already have started calling on people to give a pint of blood when the mobile unit comes here.

To facilitate the routine, the nurses are suggesting that donors make appointments to go to the bloodmobile at a specified time. In this way, they point out, the donors will not have to wait long and the slack and rush periods, which would develop otherwise, can be avoided.

There have been times in the past, it was recalled, when the staff could not keep up with the donors and other times when it had nothing to do but wait.

Any member of the nurses association or Mrs. Leonard Korn, Red Cross secretary here, can arrange appointments for volunteers. The secretary's telephone numbers are 2,2401 and 2-3681.

Although more blood is drawn consistently from the Blood Bank than is put in by Fayette Countians, Mrs. Robert P. Wilson, county chairman, said, the county stands fourth in this 27-county Blood Bank region in the amount of blood donated.

The nurses are making a special plea for negative type bloods along with the positive types, because the supply of negative types in the blood bank has been depleted.

There are an estimated 1,500 potential negative type donors and, according to Blood Bank records, only four in this immediate area have AB negative blood.

Blood, one of the nurses said, is the mightiest of medicines and pointed out that records indicate one out of every 20 transfusions saves a human life.

Pastor Moves; So Does Flock

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — "Making a Change" was the topic for the Thanksgiving Day sermon at the tiny Phoenix Gospel Temple. And for good reason, said the Rev. Bennie Morris.

"To me," he added, "it doesn't seem strange that the sheep would follow a shepherd. That is, if the shepherd follows the True Shepherd, which is the Lord. It is wrong, however, if the sheep should follow a man."

Morris and his tiny Fundamentalist congregation recently made the biggest change of their lives. The congregation decided to follow Morris 2,000 miles from Milwaukee to Phoenix. He had been their pastor at Milwaukee's Gospel Chapel Tabernacle for 15 years.

Three Men Injured When Elevator Falls

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Three workmen were injured when a construction elevator plunged three stories Wednesday. The men were working on an addition to the Lazarus Department Store. The fire department said a clutch or cable holding the elevator apparently slipped allowing it to fall to the basement. The three workmen, Carl Chick, 37, and John Cecil Rathburn, 49, both of Columbus, and Paul Smith, 33, of nearby Lockbourne, Rt. 1, suffered fractures and internal injuries.

Merc Tumbles; Snow Is Likely

Fayette County shivered through the coldest night of the fall season as the mercury plunged to a low of 18 in the wee sma' hours Thursday.

The hard freeze actually marked the beginning of winter, even though the calendar doesn't agree. Wednesday's high was 57.

The weatherman forcasts continued cold Thursday with a possibility of snow flurries by nightfall. Thursday night's predicted low called for immediate attention of auto radiators — somewhere between 16 and 24.

2 Face Columbus Court On Charges of Lottery

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Two printers are scheduled to appear in Municipal Court, probably Friday, to answer charges stemming from a raid on their Columbus establishment in which police confiscated about 30,000 football lottery tickets. Richard B. Koch, 48, and George R. Showalter, co-owners of the printing shop, were described by police as major suppliers of football lottery cards in central Ohio.

Japanese Prince To Wed Commoner

TOKYO (AP) — Crown Prince Akihito won today unprecedented permission to wed a wealthy industrialist's beautiful daughter and make her the first commoner empress in the Japanese royal house's 2,600-year tradition.

The Imperial Household Council unanimously approved his choice of Michiko Shoda, a graceful, athletic descendent of warrior stock whose father heads a large flour company.

Akihito will be 25 Dec. 23. Miss Shoda is 10 months younger.

Japanese greeted the news with restrained rejoicing. "Sutekei!" — excellent, wonderful—was the almost universal reaction to the announcement, which had been anticipated for weeks.

St. Nick Due Here Friday as Holiday Shopping Season Opens

Red Carpet's Ready for Santa Claus

While Washington C. H. and Fayette County paused Thursday for the annual Thanksgiving Day observance, a welcoming committee was preparing to roll out the red carpet for a pleasant old gentleman whose presence will be felt everywhere during the next four weeks.

There is, of course, no secret about the fact that Santa Claus will be in Washington C. H. Friday as the city's merchants launch the 1958 Christmas shopping season.

Santa will be the central figure in a parade which will move through the downtown district beginning at 12:30, and when the procession terminates on the Main St. side of the Courthouse, the jolly old fellow will distribute 1,600 candy treats to his young friends.

The community Yule Tree is in place on the Courthouse lawn, and at sundown, Friday the Christmas lights will be turned on in the downtown area.

* * *

THERE HAS BEEN a slight change in the route of the big parade which will form at the Central school buildings, North and Temple Sts.

At the suggestion of the Police Department, alert to the problems of handling the crowd at Santa's welcome, the procession will move south on North St. to Court, west on Court to Main and north to the middle of the block.

Santa will ride in an open convertible coupe at the head of the parade which will include 11 new automobiles, entered by local dealers and the Washington Junior High School Band.

Children from the County Home have been invited to ride along as St. Nick's escorts.

Members of the Auxiliary Highway Patrol have offered their help in keeping things moving.

A GROUP of 22 leading downtown stores have announced the following Christmas shopping hours:

Open 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. Friday and Saturday of this week, Dec. 5-6, Dec. 12-13.

Open every night starting Thursday, Dec. 18 and continuing through Tuesday, Dec. 23.

Closed Christmas Eve at 5 p. m

Man Bitten by Hawk Which Has Rabies

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A hawk, which escaped from the two children that captured it, clawed and bit Oliver Montgomery of Batesville near that Noble County town last weekend. Now, says the Department of Natural Resources, the hawk has been found to have had rabies and Montgomery is undergoing treatment. The hawk was killed in the struggle with Montgomery.

Ike Adds Billion To Foreign Aid Fund

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Eisenhower administration has tentatively added about a billion dollars to its new foreign aid budget despite ea White House drive to cut federal spending.

Government agencies have put together a package calling for about $4,200,000,000 to $4,300,000,000 in economic, technical and military aid to more than 40 friendly governments in the year starting next July 1.

Congress this year voted about $3,300,000,000 in foreign aid funds after cutting 600 millions from the amount requested.

Fayette Decision Upheld

COLUMBUS (AP) — The Ohio Supreme Court has upheld an appellate court decision holding that Clarence E. Wohlheter had an interest in Fayette County Fairgrounds land. Wohlheter is a beneficiary under the will of Earl Scott who had owned 280 acres.

Man Bitten by Hawk Which Has Rabies

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A hawk, which escaped from the two children that captured it, clawed and bit Oliver Montgomery of Batesville near that Noble County town last weekend. Now, says the Department of Natural Resources, the hawk has been found to have had rabies and Montgomery is undergoing treatment. The hawk was killed in the struggle with Montgomery.

Ike Adds Billion To Foreign Aid Fund

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Eisenhower administration has tentatively added about a billion dollars to its new foreign aid budget despite ea White House drive to cut federal spending.

Government agencies have put together a package calling for about $4,200,000,000 to $4,300,000,000 in economic, technical and military aid to more than 40 friendly governments in the year starting next July 1.

Congress this year voted about $3,300,000,000 in foreign aid funds after cutting 600 millions from the amount requested.

Alaskans Vote Solid Democrat

Only 1 Republican Runs a Close Race

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — The new state of Alaska had its tent pitched solidly in the Democratic camp today as the ballot counting from Tuesday's general election took a Thanksgiving Day recess.

The Democrats, turning the election into a landslide with the exception of the race for one major office, picked up both of Alaska's U.S. Senate seats, the state's lone seat in the U.S. House of Representatives and the governor's mansion. They won absolute control of Alaska's first State Legislature.

Leading the Democratic parade was Alaska's long-time, nonvoting delegate to Congress, E. L. (Bob) Bartlett, 54, who was a runaway winner over Republican R. E. Robertson and independent Keith Capper.

Bartlett, who has represented Alaska in Congress for the past 14 years, was figured to be a shoo-in. Neither Robertson nor Capper waged anything more than a token campaign. Bartlett won U.S. Senate Term A.

Ernest Gruening, a Democrat, was locked in a tight vote battle with Republican Mike Stepovich for Senate Term B. Both men are former appointed governors of the territory.

Gruening trailed Stepovich in the early counting Tuesday night, then picked up steam as returns from the traditionally Democratic Fairbanks-Anchorage area started coming in and moved out into a 1,000 to 1,500 lead he did not relinquish.

Stepovich refused to concede election to Gruening, 71, a native of New York City who was appointed governor in 1939. He stepped down in 1953. Stepovich was appointed governor by President Eisenhower in June 1957.

The lone seat in the House delegated to Alaska will be occupied by Ralph Rivers, 55, a former territorial attorney general who beat back the challenge of Republican Henry Benson, Alaska's commissioner of labor.

William Egan, the president of Alaska's constitutional convention, was chosen to become the 49th state's first elected governor.

A Valdez merchant, Egan, 44, whipped Republican John Butrovich Jr. and carried with him into office as Alaska's secretary of state Hugh J. Wade, 57.

With an efficient police force, which Washington D. C. H. apparently has, nothing would be accomplished with either the Green River or a registration ordinance, Schott said.

ANOTHER HASSLE, which could have far-reaching results appeared later in the meeting when Foell recommended that the city raise its fire protection charges in Union Township to four times the amount the township is now paying.

The raise from $3,000 a year to $12,000 would become effective when the present contract with the township expires on Dec. 31, Foell said. The city would be paying about $45,000 for maintenance of the department at the same time, he said.

He said that increased costs of operation necessitated the raise.

* * *

THE TOWNSHIP is now paying about five per cent of the total cost for maintenance of the fire department and would be paying about 20 per cent if the trustees would accept the new contract, Foell said.

He pointed out that tax valuation of property outside the city is about 35 per cent of the total city-township valuation and that about 34 per cent of the fire department mileage this year has been in answering township calls.

Township trustees, invited by Council to the meeting to discuss the contract, said the original agreement was for them to pay the salary for one man each year.

Fire Chief George Hall said the present $3,000 a year is not enough to pay the salary of the man who spends the least amount of time working for the department. Foell reminded the trustees that they are not paying anything for the equipment.

* * *

CONTRACT RATES have not been raised since 1950, Norris said, while the city's cost have been steadily climbing.

The contract should have been raised in gradual steps but until Foell started a new system of bookkeeping the city's loss wasn't recognized, the president said.

Council will discuss the contract further at its next sesson on Dec. 10 after the trustees have a chance to discuss it at their meeting, Norris said.

* * *

COUNCIL and the trustees also discussed the city's new subdivision ordinance, read for the second time.

The main question was whether the clause which extends the city's regulative powers three miles beyond city limits would overlap functions of the Township Zoning Board.

The ordinance wouldn't change any zoning made by the township officials, Foell said.

Rollo Marchant, County prosecutor, suggested a revision of the ordinance to relieve an owner selling two small lots out of a larger area of land of filing a plat. Marchant suggested that the city manager have the power to dismiss the owner from the necessary platting.

In other business, Council approved the purchase of a new business accounting machine to be used in the city auditor's office.

Artist's conception of how the "sling-shot" method, using the Moon's gravity, could add great new thrust and thousands of miles per hour to an out-bound spaceship. Here, the rocket for the Sun has been carefully guided into a single orbit around the Moon.

Space 'Sling-Shot'

By REX STANLEY

Written Especially for Central Press and This Newspaper

THE MOON, often considered by science as "a platform to the planets," may be the source of giant-power propulsion that can hurl manned rockets millions of miles into outer space.

No landing on the Moon would be necessary. The added propulsion would take only a little extra fuel. According to R. P. Haviland, a famous space engineer, "it might be enough to throw a rocket as far as the Sun—nearly 93 million miles from the Moon."

The added push to an out-bound rocket would be provided by lunar gravity, Haviland explains. "Moon gravity, although only a sixth as strong as the Earth's, could give a carefully-guided vehicle tremendous new thrust and thousands of miles an hour extra speed," he says. "The whole idea is based on a simple application of centrifugal force. It's just using the Moon's gravity as a great sling-shot."

Once our rockets are powerful enough to reach "escape velocity" and get away from the Earth's gravity, and precision guidance is possible, the "sling-shot" trip to the Sun would go like this:

The vehicle would be guided near enough to the Moon to orbit once around it, falling toward the lunar surface, and taking new speed from its gravity. This would add about 3,700 miles an hour to the 25,000 mph already reached to escape from the Earth.

As the full orbit was completed, a burst of rocket thrust and a change of flight direction would carry the vehicle out of lunar gravity, toward the Sun.

Such extra speed, borrowed with little fuel, also may be gained by orbiting planets, their satellites, even stars.

A swing around Jupiter, with more than twice the Earth's gravity, could add fantastic speed and range to a spaceship when it was running low on fuel. Thus, the "sling-shot" method could be a key to far-space exploration.

Fayette County Nomenclature

Is Your Name DUNCAN?

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series of articles on Fayette County surnames and their derivations. The material is prepared by The Fact Bureau, McKeesport, Pa.

Duncan, an old and honored surand Irish origins. In both of these usages it stems from the Gaelic "dhonn" and "ceann" which mean respectively "brown" and "warrior". Duncan, which was used originally as a personal name, is one of the most famous of Scottish clan names, and as indicative of its antiquity it should be noted that King Duncan I of Scotland, who appears in Shakespeare's "Macbeth" was assassinated in about the year 1040.

Members of the Duncan family were living in Irland as far back as the ninth century and were scattered throughout the country. They were closely associated with the Dugans, Dunphys, Donoghues and Donohoes, and the coat-of-arms of one branch of the family bore the motto "Brave and Faithful", while that of another branch carried the motto "Glory Is the Reward of Virtue."

JAMES DUNCAN (1755-1844) served as captain of Pennsylvania troops during the Revolutionary War.

"The Story of THOMAS DUNCAN and His Six Sons" is a genealogical history of the Duncan family. It was compiled by KATHERINE DUNCAN SMITH and published in 1928. The date of THOMAS DUNCAN'S birth is uncertain, but it is known that he was a resident of Cumberland County, Pennsylvania, as early as 1740 and that he died in 1776.

One of his sons, DAVID DUNCAN, served as assistant quartermaster general during the Revolutionary War. Another son, STEPHEN DUNCAN, was a merchant and the biggest taxpayer in Carlisle, Cumberland County, Pa.

WILLIAM MCKINLEY DUNCAN (1873-1945) of Cleveland was president and chairman of the board of directors, Wheeling and Lake Erie Railway Co.

LOUIS DUNCAN (1862-1916) was professor and head of the department of electrical engineering at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

5 Pro Passers Vie for Honors

Jim Brown Still Alone As Tops in Rushing

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — While Jim Brown's record breaking rushing performance has held the limelight in the National Football League, five passers have been having a battle for league honors in their specialty.

Eddie Lebaron of the Washington Redskins still has the best average gain per passing attempt, 9.02 yards, according to NFL statistics released today. But for actual yards gained, Bill Wade of the Los Angeles Rams is the leader with 2,214, more than double Lebaron's output.

John Unitas of the Baltimore Colts, who missed two games because of injuries, still has tossed the most touchdown passes, 14, and has had only three of his 167 pass attempts intercepted.

John Brodie of San Francisco has the best completion average, 59.2 per cent of his 147 tosses.

The Philadelphia Eagles held Brown, fullback of the Cleveland Browns, to only 66 yards by rushing last Sunday but it increased his league record for the season to 1,229 yards. His nearest competitor is fullback Alan Ameche of Baltimore with 607 yards. Brown's average of 6.2 yards per carry for 199 rushes is topped only by team mate Bob Mitchell with 6.5, but on only 79 attempts.

Brown failed to score and has 17 touchdowns, one short of another league record, for a total of 102 points. Second in the scoring race is Lenny Moore of Baltimore with 72.

Ptee Retzlaff of the Eagles has caught the most passes, 43. But Del Shofner, who is second with 40 catches, has gained the most yards, 824. Ray Berry of Baltimore has caught the most TD passes, 7.

Other league leaders are Sam Baker, Washington, punting 45.9 yard average; Jon Arnett, Los Angeles, punt returns 14.1 yard average; Len Lyles, Baltimore, kickoff returns, 40.8 yard average, and Andy Nelson, interceptions, 8 for 199 yards. Jim Patton of the New York Giants also has eight but returned them only 111 yards.

Young Actor 'Understands' Beat Generation's Troubles

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—The bearded young man in the desert robes was neither an Arabian nor a beatnik. He was John Saxon, the No. 1 film idol of the teen-agers.

He is playing an Arabian prince in "The Big Fisherman," which is a member of the "beat generation," he says no. But he admits to a kinship with the beats.

"I know what they are after, and I feel a sympathy toward it," he said thoughtfully. "It's a search for an identity of your own, and every generation tries to find it.

"In show business, I've seen it happen with bright young folk singers and comedians. Instead of trying to fight their way up through the established night clubs, they start with coffee houses and build their own audiences."

You'd think that a lad with John's enthusiastic following would have no career problems. But he claims he does. He made his fame as a teen-age terror in films like "Rock, Pretty Baby" and "The Restless Years." How does he get out of that category?

"I question the motion picture industry's catering to the teen-age market," he said boldly. "I just wonder how much good those teen-age pictures do for the business. I thought it was significant when Robert Wagner and Natalie Wood came back from a tour and reported that the kids said they were tired of seeing pictures about themselves."

Saxon cited the large audience gap between such teen-age epics and the performance of big pictures which star actors in their 40s and 50s.

"It seems to me there is a great potential audience among people in their early 20s," he said. "Everything I've played as a teen-ager is limited in the backdrop to family and school. You have wider scope in stories about men who are entering the world of business and how they adjust to life. That's the kind of story I'd like to do."

He seems to be making some progress. His biggest step to date was playing the romantic lead in "The Reluctant Debutante," which attracted much interest from a wide audience.

Alaskans Vote Solid Democrat

Only 1 Republican Runs a Close Race

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — The new state of Alaska had its tent pitched solidly in the Democratic camp today as the ballot counting from Tuesday's general election took a Thanksgiving Day recess.

The Democrats, turning the election into a landslide with the exception of the race for one major office, picked up both of Alaska's U.S. Senate seats, the state's lone seat in the U.S. House of Representatives and the governor's mansion. They won absolute control of Alaska's first State Legislature.

Leading the Democratic parade was Alaska's long-time, nonvoting delegate to Congress, E. L. (Bob) Bartlett, 54, who was a runaway winner over Republican R. E. Robertson and independent Keith Capper.

Bartlett, who has represented Alaska in Congress for the past 14 years, was figured to be a shoo-in. Neither Robertson nor Capper waged anything more than a token campaign. Bartlett won U.S. Senate Term A.

Ernest Gruening, a Democrat, was locked in a tight vote battle with Republican Mike Stepovich for Senate Term B. Both men are former appointed governors of the territory.

Gruening trailed Stepovich in the early counting Tuesday night, then picked up steam as returns from the traditionally Democratic Fairbanks-Anchorage area started coming in and moved out into a 1,000 to 1,500 lead he did not relinquish.

Stepovich refused to concede election to Gruening, 71, a native of New York City who was appointed governor in 1939. He stepped down in 1953. Stepovich was appointed governor by President Eisenhower in June 1957.

The lone seat in the House delegated to Alaska will be occupied by Ralph Rivers, 55, a former territorial attorney general who beat back the challenge of Republican Henry Benson, Alaska's commissioner of labor.

William Egan, the president of Alaska's constitutional convention, was chosen to become the 49th state's first elected governor.

A Valdez merchant, Egan, 44, whipped Republican John Butrovich Jr. and carried with him into office as Alaska's secretary of state Hugh J. Wade, 57.

ANOTHER HASSLE, which could have far-reaching results appeared later in the meeting when Foell recommended that the city raise its fire protection charges in Union Township to four times the amount the township is now paying.

The raise from $3,000 a year to $12,000 would become effective when the present contract with the township expires on Dec. 31, Foell said. The city would be paying about $45,000 for maintenance of the department at the same time, he said.

He said that increased costs of operation necessitated the raise.

* * *

THE TOWNSHIP is now paying about five per cent of the total cost for maintenance of the fire department and would be paying about 20 per cent if the trustees would accept the new contract, Foell said.

He pointed out that tax valuation of property outside the city is about 35 per cent of the total city-township valuation and that about 34 per cent of the fire department mileage this year has been in answering township calls.

Township trustees, invited by Council to the meeting to discuss the contract, said the original agreement was for them to pay the salary for one man each year.

Fire Chief George Hall said the present $3,000 a year is not enough to pay the salary of the man who spends the least amount of time working for the department. Foell reminded the trustees that they are not paying anything for the equipment.

* * *

CONTRACT RATES have not been raised since 1950, Norris said, while the city's cost have been steadily climbing.

The contract should have been raised in gradual steps but until Foell started a new system of bookkeeping the city's loss wasn't recognized, the president said.

Council will discuss the contract further at its next sesson on Dec. 10 after the trustees have a chance to discuss it at their meeting, Norris said.

* * *

COUNCIL and the trustees also discussed the city's new subdivision ordinance, read for the second time.

The main question was whether the clause which extends the city's regulative powers three miles beyond city limits would overlap functions of the Township Zoning Board.

The ordinance wouldn't change any zoning made by the township officials, Foell said.

Rollo Marchant, County prosecutor, suggested a revision of the ordinance to relieve an owner selling two small lots out of a larger area of land of filing a plat. Marchant suggested that the city manager have the power to dismiss the owner from the necessary platting.

In other business, Council approved the purchase of a new business accounting machine to be used in the city auditor's office.

Jim Brown Still Alone As Tops in Rushing

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — While Jim Brown's record breaking rushing performance has held the limelight in the National Football League, five passers have been having a battle for league honors in their specialty.

Eddie Lebaron of the Washington Redskins still has the best average gain per passing attempt, 9.02 yards, according to NFL statistics released today. But for actual yards gained, Bill Wade of the Los Angeles Rams is the leader with 2,214, more than double Lebaron's output.

John Unitas of the Baltimore Colts, who missed two games because of injuries, still has tossed the most touchdown passes, 14, and has had only three of his 167 pass attempts intercepted.

John Brodie of San Francisco has the best completion average, 59.2 per cent of his 147 tosses.

The Philadelphia Eagles held Brown, fullback of the Cleveland Browns, to only 66 yards by rushing last Sunday but it increased his league record for the season to 1,229 yards. His nearest competitor is fullback Alan Ameche of Baltimore with 607 yards. Brown's average of 6.2 yards per carry for 199 rushes is topped only by team mate Bob Mitchell with 6.5, but on only 79 attempts.

Brown failed to score and has 17 touchdowns, one short of another league record, for a total of 102 points. Second in the scoring race is Lenny Moore of Baltimore with 72.

Ptee Retzlaff of the Eagles has caught the most passes, 43. But Del Shofner, who is second with 40 catches, has gained the most yards, 824. Ray Berry of Baltimore has caught the most TD passes, 7.

Other league leaders are Sam Baker, Washington, punting 45.9 yard average; Jon Arnett, Los Angeles, punt returns 14.1 yard average; Len Lyles, Baltimore, kickoff returns, 40.8 yard average, and Andy Nelson, interceptions, 8 for 199 yards. Jim Patton of the New York Giants also has eight but returned them only 111 yards.

Young Actor 'Understands' Beat Generation's Troubles

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—The bearded young man in the desert robes was neither an Arabian nor a beatnik. He was John Saxon, the No. 1 film idol of the teen-agers.

He is playing an Arabian prince in "The Big Fisherman," which is a member of the "beat generation," he says no. But he admits to a kinship with the beats.

"I know what they are after, and I feel a sympathy toward it," he said thoughtfully. "It's a search for an identity of your own, and every generation tries to find it.

"In show business, I've seen it happen with bright young folk singers and comedians Instead of trying to fight their way up through the established night clubs, they start with coffee houses and build their own audiences."

You'd think that a lad with John's enthusiastic following would have no career problems. But he claims he does. He made his fame as a teen-age terror in films like "Rock, Pretty Baby" and "The Restless Years." How does he get out of that category?

"I question the motion picture industry's catering to the teen-age market," he said boldly. "I just wonder how much good those teen-age pictures do for the business. I thought it was significant when Robert Wagner and Natalie Wood came back from a tour and reported that the kids said they were tired of seeing pictures about themselves."

Saxon cited the large audience gap between such teen-age epics and the performance of big pictures which star actors in their 40s and 50s.

"It seems to me there is a great potential audience among people in their early 20s," he said. "Everything I've played as a teen-ager is limited in the backdrop to family and school. You have wider scope in stories about men who are entering the world of business and how they adjust to life. That's the kind of story I'd like to do."

He seems to be making some progress. His biggest step to date was playing the romantic lead in "The Reluctant Debutante," which attracted much interest from a wide audience.

Busy Time Approaches For Alaska's North Pole

Santa Claus House in North Pole gleams with light.

By MARGILEE WATTS

FAIRBANKS, Alaska — "Here comes Santa Claus, Here comes Santa Claus, Right down Santa Claus Lane."

The Christmas jingle comes to life at Santa Claus House, 511 Santa Claus Lane, North Pole, Alaska.

It's Christmas every day at Santa Claus House, because Santa lives there the year round. Old Nick is busier during the holiday season than at other times, but not much.

This Santa Claus is Conrad (Con) Miller, mayor and postmaster of North Pole. To the native children responsible for the Santa pseudonym, "Con" Miller IS Kris Kringle.

In 1949 Miller, looking over merchandise in his trading post, then the Miller Trading company, found a beautiful red Santa Claus suit. Each week, all summer, he had trekked into the North country trading for furs and other items of barter.

• • •

THIS TRIP his first Christmas in the territory, he donned the red suit and brought the spirit of Saint Nicholas to hundreds of children for the first time. He has been "Santa" to young and old of many villages ever since. One year, in foul weather, his pilgrimage took him five days.

As competition and supermarkets moved into Fairbanks the trading post became obsolete and Miller found himself quite broke.

He moved to North Pole, then just a scattering of buildings, in 1953, bulldozed a place large enought to erect a cache and a tent and began hewing pine logs.

The hand-hewn beams in Santa Claus House are products of this early effort.

• • •

AS MILLER and his son struggled to erect the building a truck load of his little native friends drove by and called: "Hello, Santa Claus! There is Santa Claus!" They looked no further for name or idea. It became Santa Claus House.

All was not holly berries, however, as in April, 1953, a rival group presented a petition in court to have their leader's name legally changed to "Santa Claus." The judge denied the petition.

North Pole was incorporated as a town in January, 1954, but it was early in 1957 before the post office was designated as North Pole, Alaska. This town is the only authentic North Pole in the world. It has its own schools, police department, fire department and is proud of its independence.

POSTMASTER MILLER processes over 300,000 piece of mail a year. Letters and cards are sent from all over the world to be stamped with the North Pole postmark — letters from Argentina, South Australia, South Africa, Scotland, Finland and Venezuela. Santa takes time out to answer, on his own stationery, or send cards to the 2,000-3,000 kiddies who write to him every year.

Situated between two major air bases, Ladd Air Force Base and Eielson Air Force Base, a lot of Miller's trade is military. "Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men" is not confined to the lap-sitting set. Generals and GIs exchange pens, cigarettes and soft drinks as they send cards and packages from this Far North Point.

The business that began with bringing joy to children has a mail order potential, Miller says and should reach a million dollars in three or four years.

To his offers to sell he says, "I couldn't desert the kids who named me Santa.

The first fox hunt in the New World took place in Queen Anne's County, Md., in 1650. Robert Brooke came over in his private ship with 28 servants and a pack of hounds to participate.

Some Thoughts for Thanksgiving Day

Despite all the frustrations about which many of us in this country do quite a lot of complaining— the frequent of periods of world tension and the usual run of economic and various other domestic problems — Thanksgiving Day this year should be an occasion for all of us to be grateful for the countless blessings we are enjoying.

To those who take this annual event seriously, it can be a time for reflection as well as a time for family get - togethers and pleasant forms of entertainment.

Doubtless only a comparatively limited number in our huge national population have ever given much thought or study to the history of Thanksgiving Day or its true meaning.

Of the nine major "legal" or "public" holidays which we recognize on the American calendar, seven are secular occasions and one, Christmas is a religious festival. The remaining holiday, Thanksgiving Day, has both secular and religious significance. It is probably the only religious holiday to have been originated by government initiative.

Both the Puritans of New England and the Dutch Reformed settlers of New York sharing the Calvinistic idea of a "covenanted" people under a special dispensation of Providence, were logical enough to wish to give thanks where thanks were due for divine favors received. During the Revolutionary War the Continental Congress appointed at least one day of thanksgiving every year but 1777, and after the War President Washington denominated a thanksgiving day on Nov. 26, 26, 1789, and another six years later. The practice, not only by Presidents but by state governors, grew more and more frequent as the Republic flourished.

It was President Lincoln who established the observance on the last Thursday in November. Every year millions of Americans find themselves wishing: "If only it could have been a Friday or a Monday, because for most Christians, Friday, the day of the week on which Jesus was crucified, can be overridden only by a holy festival of greatest magnitude, such as Christmas.

Yet if Americans lack anything like a national fast day (though the observance of Good Friday now has legal status in 13 states plus Hawaii, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and the Canal Zone), they seem to be recovering more and more awareness of the spiritual dimensions of Thanksgiving Day. The element of solemnity and awe is any formal expression of human gratitude for divine favor appears gradually to be dominating this occasion when the whole nation makes a pause in its affairs to "return" thanks.

The fact is that all peoples, in one sense or another, operate under a "covenant" with God. Thanksgiving Day is a time when even the most zealous Protestant advocates of "separation of church and state" affirm that under the divine dispensation church and state are parts of an historical and cultural whole, and and that a people must make their accounting to God for every phase of their nationhood. All the more appropriate it is then, that Thanksgiving Day has this unique origin in the body politic and this unique expression in the body of the faithful.

What numerous Americans forget about the observances of pioneer times— if they ever knew— is that there were fast days as well as feast days. Thanksgiving days were carefully balanced by days of repentance or petition. A day for roast wild turkey and buttered rum was offset in due season by a day for bread and water.

This may suggest why so many conscientious Americans today feel a trifle uneasy about Thanksgiving. The spectacle of the most overfed nation on earth sitting down to a ritual meal deliberately designed to set forth three or four times as much as the celebrants can possible consume is a spectacle which is bound to daunt any mind sensitive to the implications of either history or religion.

Many an American who may have no particular sympathy for the old Calvinistic rigors could wish that Thanksgiving Day were a little more of an exercise in simple gratitude and a little less of seeing how much each individual can eat.

Diet and Health — One Common Trouble May Be on Way Out

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

WHAT is one of civilized man's most common afflictions?

Bet you can't guess!

It's not the common cold, heart disease or cancer. It's not foot trouble, either, although millions of persons have poor feet.

Dental Decay

Our most common affliction seems to be—dental decay! There are few persons who never have been bothered by dental caries.

But this greatest of all villains is about due to abdicate its leadership among men's ills. Within the next decade, according to officials of the American Dental Association, there is a real possibility that dental decay will be eliminated as a major factor in disease.

Wonderful Changes

Sounds like a pretty wonderful era, doesn't it? So let's take a peek 10 years into the future—in 1968—to try and see what changes in dentistry are likely to have occurred.

You'll probably see just as many patients, maybe more, waiting in your dentist's office. In 1968 the population of the United States is expected to be more than 200,000,000.

The 1958 ratio was one active dentist for every 1,900 persons.

Still Not Enough

Even though six new dental schools have been built in Colorado, Florida, New England, New York, Oklahoma and South Carolina, since 1958, the number of dentists hasn't increased proportionately with the population.

Still, your dentist now can handle many more patients than the slightly more than 1,000 he could accommodate annually in the 1950s. One reason is because he has more persons to aid him.

While your dentist worked alone a decade ago, he now has dental hygienists and dental assistants to help him.

New Equipment

Another reason is the amazing new instruments and techniques he uses. While most of his equipment and know-how was employed in filling your cavities back in 1958, he now uses them primarily in the prevention of dental disease.

Much of his work is devoted to periodontal or gum diseases and other problems of older age groups.

He often will give teeth a coating of remineralization agents which will help keep them healthy and strong. And he will be able to provide you with genuinely effective antienzyme agents.

Yes, sir, there has been a lot of dental research in the last 10 years! 1968 is a great year for your teeth.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

F.C.R.: I have had a cracking of the knee for about one year. What is the cause?

Answer: Cracking of the knee may be due to a number of conditions, among them arthritis, rheumatic changes of the ligaments around the knee or loose body in the knee joint. An X-ray may reveal the cause in your case.

It may often be of very minor significance. It might also be well for you to consult a physician concerning your condition.

Condemned Man's Pleading Brings New Legal Action

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A condemned man's plea for legal help to stay out of Ohio's electric chair is getting action.

Yet it may be of no avail to Walter J. Byomin. The 42-year-old Clevelander is in Ohio Penitentiary under death sentence for killing Deputy Edmund G. Smith in Wellington on May 4, 1957.

Byomin's letter from death row to the U. S. Supreme Court got him a 90-day stay from his scheduled Nov. 7 electrocution. He complained that he could not get legal help to appeal his first degree murder conviction to the highest court in the land. Ohio's Supreme Court has turned him down.

President William R. Van Aken of Cleveland said the Ohio State Bar Assn. had looked into the case and decided not to intervene. "We have complete confidence in the courts," he explained.

Van Aken said the association's executive committee would meet in Columbus next Friday to consider a program for handling the cases of condemned men and long term prisoners who can't afford counsel. He said legal aid societies were not equipped to handle such cases.

"We don't want anyone to go to the chair without having exhausted all the efforts the law allows," Van Aken said, "but we can't act as a sort of super-court."

Van Aken said his executive committee devoted more time to the case of Byomin and others than to association business. Before the U. S. Supreme Court acted, he wrote to Gov. C. William O'Neill asking a stay of execution for time to find help for Byomin.

Van Aken said Lorain County Bar Assn. officers told him Byomin had a fair trial and was defended competently by court-appointed attorneys.

Those attorneys apealed his conviction to the appellate and state supreme courts without compensation, the officers pointed out. They also participated at their own expense in hearings before the Pardon and Parole Commission and the governor. They declined to appeal to the federal court.

Statute provides for payment of court-appointed attorneys in first degree murder cases at the descretion of the trial court. Van Aken said such fees are only a fraction of usual amount paid for such services.

Byomil's attorneys claimed the help in preparing papers necessary for further appeal. If those papers win a review, the highest court then would appoint counsel to present Byomin's plea.

Byomi 's attorneys claimed the death sentence was unwarranted because the fatal shooting was not premeditated. They said he likely would have been convicted of second degree murder if the victim had not been an officer.

The prosecution said Byomin was carrying a gun illegally while on parole from federal prison for armed robbery and was determined to shoot it out with Smith in a pursuing police car rather than submit to capture.

The pursuit followed an argument with others over his attentions to Mrs. Helen Bristow in Wellington.

Mechanization Helps Business

NEW YORK (AP) — Business is pulling out of the recession more mechanized than ever.

Despite the much - advertised slowdown in business spending for new production capacity, industry today boasts many new processes perfected in the last year and new short cuts in methods of doing old jobs.

The year has brought new giant tools, conveyers, mixers, electronic controls and measuring devices.

The recession itself has given impetus to much of the gains and sparked much of the new automatic equipment placed on the market.

The first noticeable result has been that we are able today to produce more things with fewer men. This, on the one hand, keeps the problem of unemployment to the fore. But on the other, it has helped hold back the tide of inflation.

The new wonders run all the way from a vending machine that can make change for a dollar bill to a block of cattle salt in which is automatically imbedded a precisely measured ration of nutrients, hormones and other essentials for the wellbeing of Old Bossy.

The currency changing machine is made by National Rejectors Inc. of St. Louis. The automatic batching device is a product of Fairbanks, Morse & Co.

Other new examples of automation:

Rockwell Mfg. Co. makes a machine which lets a customer order any desired color from among 1,152 possible choices, mixing it by spinning a dial.

Pullman-Standard has a heavy duty, highly automated seam welding machine which can cradle a 30-ton freight car, turn it around and seam-weld everything that formerly used to be riveted.

Republic Steel has highly automated equipment for enameling sheet metal. It uses an electrostatic method which draws the finishing material to the metal. It claims a more uniform, more durable, more economical and less messy process than the old one.

No Hate, No Bigotry Here

By George Sokolsky

After reading an enormous mail of unseemly hate and uncivilized bigotry, my wife and I togged ourselves out in our best and went to the Plaza Hotel, here in New York, where a gold medal of merit would be presented by the Jewish War Veterans to Chaplain Joshua Goldberg of the Navy.

Josh, as he is generally known, was born in Russia and studied to be a rabbi. He came to the United States in 1916 in time to volunteer for service in World War I as a soldier. This gave him an opportunity to learn English so that he speaks it, even in sermons, with a soldier's familiarity with earthy terms.

When World War II came around, he volunteered as a chaplain in the Navy and has made that so much of a career that he has achieved considerably distinction and is the first of his faith to be the chaplain in charge of the third naval district, which is one of the most important.

The turnout at the party at the Plaza was indeed remarkable, for Navy, Army and Air Force brass appeared in surprising numbers. The award was presented to Rabbi Goldberg by no less a person than Gen. Omar Bradley and the two principal addresses were delivered by former Secretary of the Navy Charles S. Thomas and Cardinal Spellman just returned from Rome.

There was no hate, no bigotry, no narrowness in that room. There was cooperation, friendship love of country. Presiding during one phase of the dinner was Maj. Gen. Melvin Krulewitch of the Marine Corps; during the remainder, Benjamin Kaufenan who is a congressional medal of honor holder from World War I.

Cardinal Spellman was very amusing, indeed. Harry Hershfield, the humorist, had been called upon to speak. At one point, he said: "I like a Catholic to be a Catholic; a Jew to be a Jew; a Mohammedan to be a Mohammedan."

It was no great shakes of a point, because one is what one is, and the audience let is pass. But when Cardinal Spellman arose, he repeated what Harry had said and added, "I would like to say a wee word for the Protestants." The audience realized that Harry had been topped and everyone was pleased.

Why cannot those who spend their lives trying to prove their own superiority find a little comfort in the joy that comes from a variety of experiences? In the Navy chaplain service, when a sailor or a Marine needs comfort or wants to pray according to his own faith or seeks counsel, a chaplain does not discriminate against him because of his faith nor does he abuse his confidence at attempting to use his grief or fear to win him over to some other religion. He does what is needed.

Rabbi Joshua Goldberg, captain in the Navy, has played an outstanding role in the development of the chaplain from a sky pilot to a servant of the officers and men in the armed services, without regard to religion, race, color, or rank.

The chaplain has become the companion of the boys and he has the right to do things to save the mind and the spirit of a man in service, caught in the maelstrom of battle, far from home, far from his beloved ones.

And it is because Chaplain Goldberg has served so ardently and continuously, and at such enormous sacrifice in this broad manner, that so many military men came to this dinner, many from a great distance.

His latest achievement is the organization of meetings among the chaplains of the NATO nations forces in association with American Catholic and Protestant chaplains.

The first such conference was held in The Hague and to it came clergymen who carried in their memories traditions of antagonism going farm back into history. But none of it appeared at their meetings or in the many social activities in which they engaged. The second meeting was in the United States and the third in Brussels.

This labor has taken its toll, but Chaplain Goldberg remains at his post. Sooner or later, he will be retired for age, but it is to be hoped that he will continue to represent the United States, perhaps with advanced rank, in hese international meetings as a symbol of the idea of unity with differences which is characteristic of our country.

Some Thoughts for Thanksgiving Day

Despite all the frustrations about which many of us in this country do quite a lot of complaining— the frequent of periods of world tension and the usual run of economic and various other domestic problems — Thanksgiving Day this year should be an occasion for all of us to be grateful for the countless blessings we are enjoying.

To those who take this annual event seriously, it can be a time for reflection as well as a time for family get - togethers and pleasant forms of entertainment.

Doubtless only a comparatively limited number in our huge national population have ever given much thought or study to the history of Thanksgiving Day or its true meaning.

Of the nine major "legal" or "public" holidays which we recognize on the American calendar, seven are secular occasions and one, Christmas is a religious festival. The remaining holiday, Thanksgiving Day, has both secular and religious significance. It is probably the only religious holiday to have been originated by government initiative.

Both the Puritans of New England and the Dutch Reformed settlers of New York sharing the Calvinistic idea of a "covenanted" people under a special dispensation of Providence, were logical enough to wish to give thanks where thanks were due for divine favors received. During the Revolutionary War the Continental Congress appointed at least one day of thanksgiving every year but 1777, and after the War President Washington denominated a thanksgiving day on Nov. 26, 26, 1789, and another six years later. The practice, not only by Presidents but by state governors, grew more and more frequent as the Republic flourished.

It was President Lincoln who established the observance on the last Thursday in November. Every year millions of Americans find themselves wishing: "If only it could have been a Friday or a Monday, because for most Christians, Friday, the day of the week on which Jesus was crucified, can be overridden only by a holy festival of greatest magnitude, such as Christmas.

Yet if Americans lack anything like a national fast day (though the observance of Good Friday now has legal status in 13 states plus Hawaii, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and the Canal Zone), they seem to be recovering more and more awareness of the spiritual dimensions of Thanksgiving Day. The element of solemnity and awe is any formal expression of human gratitude for divine favor appears gradually to be dominating this occasion when the whole nation makes a pause in its affairs to "return" thanks.

The fact is that all peoples, in one sense or another, operate under a "covenant" with God. Thanksgiving Day is a time when even the most zealous Protestant advocates of "separation of church and state" affirm that under the divine dispensation church and state are parts of an historical and cultural whole, and and that a people must make their accounting to God for every phase of their nationhood. All the more appropriate it is then, that Thanksgiving Day has this unique origin in the body politic and this unique expression in the body of the faithful.

What numerous Americans forget about the observances of pioneer times— if they ever knew— is that there were fast days as well as feast days. Thanksgiving days were carefully balanced by days of repentance or petition. A day for roast wild turkey and buttered rum was offset in due season by a day for bread and water.

This may suggest why so many conscientious Americans today feel a trifle uneasy about Thanksgiving. The spectacle of the most overfed nation on earth sitting down to a ritual meal deliberately designed to set forth three or four times as much as the celebrants can possible consume is a spectacle which is bound to daunt any mind sensitive to the implications of either history or religion.

Many an American who may have no particular sympathy for the old Calvinistic rigors could wish that Thanksgiving Day were a little more of an exercise in simple gratitude and a little less of seeing how much each individual can eat.

Diet and Health
One Common Trouble May Be on Way Out

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

WHAT is one of civilized man's most common afflictions?

Bet you can't guess!

It's not the common cold, heart disease or cancer. It's not foot trouble, either, although millions of persons have poor feet.

Dental Decay

Our most common affliction seems to be—dental decay! There are few persons who never have been bothered by dental caries.

But this greatest of all villains is about due to abdicate its leadership among men's ills. Within the next decade, according to officials of the American Dental Association, there is a real possibility that dental decay will be eliminated as a major factor in disease.

Wonderful Changes

Sounds like a pretty wonderful era, doesn't it? So let's take a peek 10 years into the future—in 1968—to try and see what changes in dentistry are likely to have occurred.

You'll probably see just as many patients, maybe more, waiting in your dentist's office. In 1968 the population of the United States is expected to be more than 200,000,000.

The 1958 ratio was one active dentist for every 1,900 persons.

Still Not Enough

Even though six new dental schools have been built in Colorado, Florida, New England, New York, Oklahoma and South Carolina, since 1958, the number of dentists hasn't increased proportionately with the population.

Still, your dentist now can handle many more patients than the slightly more than 1,000 he could accommodate annually in the 1950s. One reason is because he has more persons to aid him.

While your dentist worked alone a decade ago, he now has dental hygienists and dental assistants to help him.

New Equipment

Another reason is the amazing new instruments and techniques he uses. While most of his equipment and know-how was employed in filling your cavities back in 1958, he now uses them primarily in the prevention of dental disease.

Much of his work is devoted to periodontal or gum diseases and other problems of older age groups.

He often will give teeth a coating of remineralization agents which will help keep them healthy and strong. And he will be able to provide you with genuinely effective antienzyme agents.

Yes, sir, there has been a lot of dental research in the last 10 years! 1968 is a great year for your teeth.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

F.C.R.: I have had a cracking of the knee for about one year. What is the cause?

Answer: Cracking of the knee may be due to a number of conditions, among them arthritis, rheumatic changes of the ligaments around the knee or loose body in the knee joint. An X-ray may reveal the cause in your case.

It may often be of very minor significance. It might also be well for you to consult a physician concerning your condition.

Condemned Man's Pleading Brings New Legal Action

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A condemned man's plea for legal help to stay out of Ohio's electric chair is getting action.

Yet it may be of no avail to Walter J. Byomin. The 42-year-old Clevelander is in Ohio Penitentiary under death sentence for killing Deputy Edmund G. Smith in Wellington on May 4, 1957.

Byomin's letter from death row to the U. S. Supreme Court got him a 90-day stay from his scheduled Nov. 7 electrocution. He complained that he could not get legal help to appeal his first degree murder conviction to the highest court in the land. Ohio's Supreme Court has turned him down.

President William R. Van Aken of Cleveland said the Ohio State Bar Assn. had looked into the case and decided not to intervene. "We have complete confidence in the courts," he explained.

Van Aken said the association's executive committee would meet in Columbus next Friday to consider a program for handling the cases of condemned men and long term prisoners who can't afford counsel. He said legal aid societies were not equipped to handle such cases.

"We don't want anyone to go to the chair without having exhausted all the efforts the law allows," Van Aken said, "but we can't act as a sort of super-court."

Van Aken said his executive committee devoted more time to the case of Byomin and others than to association business. Before the U. S. Supreme Court acted, he wrote to Gov. C. William O'Neill asking a stay of execution for time to find help for Byomin.

Van Aken said Lorain County Bar Assn. officers told him Byomin had a fair trial and was defended competently by court-appointed attorneys.

Those attorneys apealed his conviction to the appellate and state supreme courts without compensation, the officers pointed out. They also participated at their own expense in hearings before the Pardon and Parole Commission and the governor. They declined to appeal to the federal court.

Statute provides for payment of court-appointed attorneys in first degree murder cases at the descretion of the trial court. Van Aken said such fees are only a fraction of usual amount paid for such services.

Byomil's attorneys claimed the help in preparing papers necessary for further appeal. If those papers win a review, the highest court then would appoint counsel to present Byomin's plea.

Byomi 's attorneys claimed the death sentence was unwarranted because the fatal shooting was not premeditated. They said he likely would have been convicted of second degree murder if the victim had not been an officer.

The prosecution said Byomin was carrying a gun illegally while on parole from federal prison for armed robbery and was determined to shoot it out with Smith in a pursuing police car rather than submit to capture.

The pursuit followed an argument with others over his attentions to Mrs. Helen Bristow in Wellington.

Mechanization Helps Business

NEW YORK (AP) — Business is pulling out of the recession more mechanized than ever.

Despite the much - advertised slowdown in business spending for new production capacity, industry today boasts many new processes perfected in the last year and new short cuts in methods of doing old jobs.

The year has brought new giant tools, conveyers, mixers, electronic controls and measuring devices.

The recession itself has given impetus to much of the gains and sparked much of the new automatic equipment placed on the market.

The first noticeable result has been that we are able today to produce more things with fewer men. This, on the one hand, keeps the problem of unemployment to the fore. But on the other, it has helped hold back the tide of inflation.

The new wonders run all the way from a vending machine that can make change for a dollar bill to a block of cattle salt in which is automatically imbedded a precisely measured ration of nutrients, hormones and other essentials for the wellbeing of Old Bossy.

The currency changing machine is made by National Rejectors Inc. of St. Louis. The automatic batching device is a product of Fairbanks, Morse & Co.

Other new examples of automation:

Rockwell Mfg. Co. makes a machine which lets a customer order any desired color from among 1,152 possible choices, mixing it by spinning a dial.

Pullman-Standard has a heavy duty, highly automated seam welding machine which can cradle a 30-ton freight car, turn it around and seam-weld everything that formerly used to be riveted.

Republic Steel has highly automated equipment for enameling sheet metal. It uses an electrostatic method which draws the finishing material to the metal. It claims a more uniform, more durable, more economical and less messy process than the old one.

A Tisket and A Tasket-I Just Want A Basket

By MOLLY NICHOLSON

LONDON — (AP) — Like many another penny-conscious London stenographer, 16-year-old Pat Watts was delighted to find a local store selling just what she wanted for only six shillings, three pence (88 cents).

Just what she wanted was a 14x10 inch straw basket with a gay pattern in bright-colored felt stitched to one side and ideal for carrying her purse, makeup bag, magazine and knitting.

Pat was caught up in London's latest snowballing craze.

Throughout the city women and girls in increasing numbers are buying cheap, colorful baskets imported from France, Italy, Portugal, Spain and Morocco.

"We just can't get enough of them; we've sold right out of stock", said a buyer from one of London's biggest stores.

"There's no need to push this line, it pushes itself," added a buyer for another store, also sold out.

* * *

THE baskets come in all shapes and sizes - oval, round, square - and in a variety of materials - straw, raffia, willow, cane. Many are patterned in brilliant colors.

One of the favorite types is shaped like a jar taken from the cave of Ali Baba's 40 Thieves. Another, called "Ooze," is boat shaped. There is also a big demand for cane week-end baskets.

Prices range from as little as three shillings, six pence (49 cents) to 18 shillings, six pence ($2.73) for the most popular varieties.

WHY the enormous popularity of baskets?

The current desire of teenagers fostered by fashion magazines, to "go continental" is held partly responsible.

So is the desire of married women to have a shopping basket large enough to carry their purchases and yet one not too ugly to take with them to work.

Nearly all the women agree they buy by appearance only. Few say they have quality in mind.

Many of the cheaper baskets are incredibly flimsy and do not stand up to hard wear. They burst at the seams or part company with their handles in a very short time.

"When it wears out I'll just get another," is Pat's typical comment. "They're cheap enough."

Will the craze last?

Buyers are betting that it will—and sales are going steadily up and up.

STYLES IN STRAW: Colorful basket handbags are the latest craze in stail old London. Large baskets (left) can carry shopping as well as feminine essentials and costs $7.35. Boat basket (center) costs $2.75 and shallow bag (right) sells for $2.14. Store buyers report: "We can't get enough of them."

Garden Tips

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following gardening tips were prepared by the Fayette Garden Club.

If November develops into the first month of winter, most outdoor gardening ceases. If it turns into one of those glorious autumn periods (such as we have enjoyed recently) there will still be time for major garden operations.

As soon as the matured vegetables have been harvested, turn over the soil. Leave it in rough clods. Frost not only kills many soil-inhabiting insects, but helps break down clay. Sprinkling the soil with a complete fertilizer will help break down organic matter and add nutrients to the soil.

CARE OF EQUIPMENT — Remember last Spring? The duster or sprayer you put away uncleaned was rusted through, the hose leaked because water froze in it, and the trowels and rakes were caked with mud. Now is the time to put tools and equipment in shape before storing for the winter.

ROSE PROTECTION—Be ready to protect roses if temperatures drop below freezing and stay there. At least 10 inches of soil over the bush is the best protection for roses over most of this section.

SHORT RATIONS — Don't overfeed or overwater house plants at this time. The darker days of the year are just ahead and growth will be at its lowest ebb. Wait to feed and water heavily until longer days return toward spring.

STORING ISMENE — Bulbs of the Perrvian daffodial (ismene) should not be stored with other summer flowering bulbs. They need 60 degrees to survive — considerably warmer than storage temperature for most other bulbs.

MULCHING — There should be no haste about applying mulches or coverings of salt hay, straw or leaves to perennial borders and shrubs, or mice may take shelter and do damage in winter. Wait until the ground is frozen two inches deep then mice can not tunnel the soil. As an added protection, poisoned grain obtainable at seed stores may be used. Place in pieces of drain tile. Deeply bury or burn in grain in the spring; it should not be scattered about where birds or pets might eat it.

COVER CROPPING — Any bare areas should be sown to a cover crop such as rye. It will be a great help next spring if you do as much as possible of this kind of work now.

She Feels Cheated

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Better Business Bureau reports it turned down investigating this complaint:

A woman says she hired a lawyer to represent her in a divorce suit and wanted a refund of his fee, but couldn't get it. The husband, she said died three days after the decree was granted.

Make Personalized Christmas Stockings

By DOROTHY ROE
Assn Press Women's Editor

The Christmas stocking, hung on the mantelpiece, is usually the first thing to be opened on Christmas morning, before the serious unwrapping begins.

Though Christmas is traditionally for children, it's only fair for Mom and Dad to have their own stockings, too, gaily decorated and filled with silly surprises.

Here's a gift to give ahead of time, or to make up for Christmas bazaars.

Felt Christmas stockings couldn't be easier to make, and a pattern isn't necessary, say local sewing center experts.

Just cut red felt to stocking shapes, using a pair of pinking shears and making Dad's the largest, with others graduated according to size.

* * *

THE REAL FUN comes in decorating the stockings. Put a Christmas tree on Dad's or decorate it with felt cutouts of pipes, guns or whatever he likes best.

Also, you can sew on strips of rickrack and squares of contrasting felt to simulate an overgrown argyle sock.

Mom's sock should have lots of glitter, easily achieved with sequins and felt cutouts. You might even edge it with metallic lace.

The baby sock should be trimmed with bright red ball fringe and decorated with a red-and-white striped felt candy cane.

Apply decorations before stitching the socks together. Then stitch and add a loop for hanging.

With a little imagination you can make stockings that will be used every Christmas for years to come.

When your teen-agers' friends come calling let them make their own sandwiches from a tray of sliced bread, soft butter, sliced ham and corned beef, mustard and relishes. Have bowls of carrot sticks and potato chips on hand for munching, soft drinks for a beverage and frosted cupcakes or cookies for dessert.

Sliced bananas, strawberries and oranges are all delicious served in orange juice. Nice for Sunday brunch.

Pureed raspberries (canned or frozen) make a delightful combination with applesauce.

Perfect Spot for Vanity

CHARM AT THE WINDOWS . . . The little vanity shelf between the windows is covered with gold and olive green flowered fabric designed by Waverly. The over drapes are solid white with gold ball fringe.

A good place for that little ol' vanity niche is between your two bedroom windows, space that sometimes isn't utilized at all. You can create a charming area without taking up too much room.

Put up a small vanity shelf, made of lightweight plywood. It can be narrow and have a small drawer directly beneath it to hold all sorts of parapharnalia, if you like. Cover it with the same printed fabric you use in the window drapery.

Put a piece of glass over the drapery fabric so that it will stay bright and clean as long as your window draperies last. Tack ball fringe around the shelf, if you like.

The ideal spot for pictures — old family daguerrotypes, silhouettes, etc., is right above the vanity table to fill in the space between the windows.

* * *

COMBINE a solid color and print fabric at the windows—a straight panel in the print with a double width of solid colored material as an over drapery. Pin the over drapback with a brass tie back.

A very charming bedroom brighteners is a fabric that combines the subtle shades of gold and olive green in jewel flower tones. The over drapery is bright white, outlined with gold ball fringe.

No need to have a special French gadget to cut melon or avocado balls. Use the 1-4 teaspoon from your set of measuring spoons The melon balls are attractive in a fruit cup for dessert; the avocado balls are delectable when drenched with French dressing to which chili sauce or catchup has been added and served as a first course on shredded lettuce.

* * *

Pare, halve and remove seeds from fresh pears; cook in vanilla-flavored sugar syrup in a skillet. Serve warm with a dollop of sweetened whipped cream scented with grated lemon rind in each cavity.

* * *

Egg Punch the Italian way: serve it in dessert glasses to be eaten with spoons. Lady fingers taste delicious with this.

Wife Preservers

When a roasting turkey is one-half to two-thirds done, cut the string to release the legs; it will look and taste better.

Home Hints . . .

One deft cook has a neat way of preparing a lattice-top pie crust. She draws a pattern of the lattice on a square of waxed paper using one of her small fry's crayons. Then she turns the crayoned side face down and arranges the pastry strips in place. The latticed pastry and the waxed paper are flipped over the top of her filled bottom crust, then the paper is removed and the edge of the pie is finished by crimping.

* * *

When you're making cocoa for your small fry, stir the cocoa powder together well with the sugar before adding liquid; this first combining is advised because the sugar keeps the tiny starch particles in the cocoa separated so they won't lump.

* * *

Want your baking powder biscuits to be extra delicious? Use light cream instead of milk in the dough. This suggestion applies to biscuits made from a mix as well as to those made from scratch.

* * *

Want a pretty snack for company? Use a cookie cutter to make heart shapes out of sliced bread. Spread the hearts with a deviled ham mixture and sprinkle with minced parsley.

* * *

Cut the crusts off thinly sliced white bread and spread with a soft cheese mixture. Roll up, butter the outside of the rolls and bake in a hot oven until golden-brown and toasted. Serve at once to delighted guests.

* * *

How to use Sunday's leftover roast beef? Cut in small cubes and mix with lightly cooked carrots and peas and a can of sliced mushrooms. Season as you like and moisten with leftover natural gravy. Heat and serve with grated Parmesan and Romano cheese.

* * *

If you use a good deal of shortening in your cooking and baking, you'll find a 3-pound can is an economical buy.

* * *

Close that honey container tightly or the sweet may absorb moisture and ferment.

No Trouble in These Truffles

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Assoc. Press Food Editor

We've searched and searched and now, just in time for Christmas, we've found the recipe for which many cooks have been looking.

Have you ever eaten that luscious amalgamation of filberts, chocolate and sugar called "truffles" found in some fine candy shops? Here they are, so simple to prepare, and a wonderful offering for your own holiday house guests or to pack for giving.

TRUFFLES

Ingredients: 1½ cups shelled filberts (1 pound in shell), 3 tablespoons butter or margarine, 3 squares (3 ounces) unsweetened chocolate (finely grated), 1¼ cups confectioners sugar, extra confectioners sugar or chopped filberts.

Method: Place filberts in a shallow pan in a slow (275 degrees) oven to toast for 15 to 20 minutes; stir a few times. Remove skins by rubbing nuts vigorously between palms of hands. Reserve ½ cup (36) whole nuts. Put remainder of filberts through a fine cone rotary grater or grind fine.

Cream softened butter and finely grated chocolate; stir in ground filberts. Work in confectioners sugar; form into balls around whole filberts. Roll in extra sugar or nuts; refrigerate; bring to room temperature before serving. Makes 36 truffles.

Packaging Your Candy

Step into a kitchen ware department and you'll find a hundred inexpensive and attractive containers, with pratical afteruses, in which to pack your gift candies. Here are some suggestions:

Many different sizes of glass oven ware baking dishes, from custard cups to casseroles, are suitable.

Wide mouthed glass canisters also come in a variety of shapes and sizes. A pretty bowl or a large large glass goblet may strike the right note for a particular friend.

From the metal ware section, your choice might be interesting gelatin molds in large or individual sizes. A cake baking friend may be delighted to receive her candies in miniature angel cake pans; a family with children would probably find an extra cupcake pan useful.

* * *

IN PLASTIC, you might choose a tall thin container that can be used later for liquids, or a short fat one that will be handy for leftovers.

And don't ignore the charming array of fiber baskets that will serve up hot rolls or carry little cakes to the table.

When packing candies in baskets be sure to use a liner or foil, tissue paper on paper doilies. If any of the containers do not have lids cover them with transparent plastic film so they're airtight.

Then all that is needed to finish your giftwrapping is a bright holiday ribbon.

MMMM MMMMM: If your sweettooth has a particular affection for truffles, you can satisfy it by making this wonderful confection at home. A simple way to prepare this delight is set down in the adjoining column. And if you don't eat them all yourself, they're fine for gifts.

Christmas Card Display Test of Your Ingenuity

If you are bored with the old routine way of displaying Christmas cards in your home, consider putting your ingenuity to work to make a Christmas card holder that may be stored away and used each year.

SANTA CARD HOLDER . . . He's jolly and useful, too, come Christmas.

Take your choice of the long style, patterned after the lines of a butler's pull. Or create a Jolly Santa that will hold considerably more cards and will liven up entrance or living room.

To make the Noel card holder cut a piece of felt 55 inches long, 5 inches wide. Make a stylized angeltransfering it to the felt. Cut 5 five-inch squares of felt. Decorate each of 5 squares with scattered stars. These will form the pockets for the cards. Make stars with the decorator attachment set for the icicle stitch. Form one complete stitch pattern.

At the last stitch lift the presser bar, pivot the fabric slightly, lower the presser bar and make another complete stitch pattern. Continue until a star is formed. Paste a colored stone in the center of each to add a touch of holiday sparkle.

* * *

BASTE POCKETS one above the other on the outline of the angel, starting at the bottom. Use under or top braider to stitch outline of the angel using gold soutache braid.

This stitching should hold the pockets in place. Put a couple of button holders at the top of the felt after turning the top down about an inch.

Run soutache gold through it and tie in bow. If the holder needs more body, put a strip of buckram, wire or a pencil at the top to hold in shape.

JOLLY SANTA HOLDER

A free-form Santa doesn't need a pattern. A large circle can form the body, a smaller circle placed on top forms the head. The arms are two "bumps" drawn on either side of the circle.

A cap is placed on the top circle and two boots extend at angeles at the bottom.

Red felt goes to body and cap, black is good for boots and belt, pink felt is for the face, and odd scraps of colored felt may be used for eyes, nose and mouth. His beard, cap and boot edging, and tassel are made of white outing flannel.

Cut a piece of red felt that is the size of half of the body circle.

* * *

TRIM the top edge in a moon shape. Cut a 1-inch wide piece of black felt to fit this edge and baste into place to form belt. Now place a piece of tarlatan or other heavy backing in back of this pocket section.

Set decorator attachment to arrowhead stitch, making a line of stitching down the center of the belt section, following the line of the belt. Make two lines of stitching on either side of this with the "blind stitch pattern of the automatic decorator.

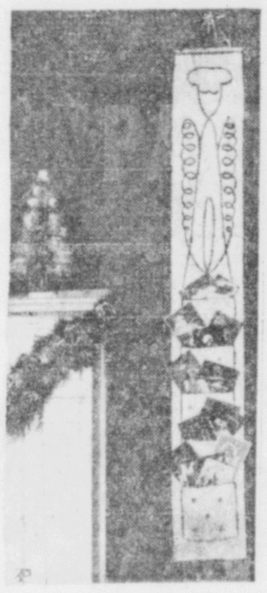

Using this same combination of stitches, make 3 vertical design lines in the center of the large circle in same pattern stitch.

This pocket section may now be placed on Santa's body by basting it. Applique body, head, cap and boots on to a piece of heavy backing material. Zigzag eyes, nose, mouth and moustache on to head. Cut white outing flannel into 1½ inch strips. Hem both edges with narrow hemmer. Place strips between two blades of the ruffler so stitching will be in center of strip and gather.

* * *

STITCH finished ruffles in rows to fill in beard, at top of boots, and around cap. Form tassel from remaining ruffles.

Bend a wire hanger to go across

NOEL CARD HOLDER . . . Slim model for conservative types.

Santa's back and extend up into the head portion.

Hand tack into place. This helps to keep Santa sturdy. Tie a ribbon to the top of the hanger.

INTRICATELY WOVEN to create "crowsfoot" tracks is Mollie Parnis' theatre ensemble in silk-and-wosted metallic gold and silver brocade. A slim dress has a camisole top covered by a diminutive curved jacket, its collar spread wide in a flattering off-shoulder decolletage.

Thorough Preparation Simplifies Christmas Shopping

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

Know how to survive the Christmas rush?

Take it in stride.

You'll be tempted to do all your shopping in one day or leave it until the last minute, but don't succumb. Here are some ideas to mull over for a more relaxed shopping spree:

1. Shop early. Avoid the crowds by leaving home early and returning home early.

2. Organize your shopping thoughts before leaving home, preferably the night before. Your gift list should include two possible gifts for each name. If you don't find one settle for the other, rather than walking 'til your feet hurt. You'll save money too, by having alternate gifts because your first impulse may be too expensive. Put the list in your handbag the night before so you will not forget it.

3. Send as many gift-wrapped packages from the stores as you can, particularly to those relatives away from home. It'll be easier for you if the store wraps and mails.

* * *

4. IT'S GOOD idea to prepare your feet for the shopping trek. Rub them with camphor ice in the morning. Mild ingredients, camphor and petroleum jelly combine to ward off aching feet. Rub your feet again when you arrive home.

5. You should have studied the ads before you set off on your shopping trip. Know the stores that carry the gifts you have in mind. This will save aimless wandering, and get you the best values.

6. Plan a simple evening meal for shopping day. Prepare part of the dinner beforehand, and set the table the night before. (A big beef stew may be made the night before, heated up to taste even better after a day of shopping).

7. Dress for comfort. Stores are warm so wear lightweight clothes. Wear low-heeled shoes.

8. Eat a good breakfast in the morning so that you can eat a late lunch or tea and toast at home. Besides the expense, restaurants are crowded, and waiting in line will not improve your disposition.

* * *

9. STOP TO sit down when you get a chance. This will ward off fatigue and lift your spirits, restoring energy.

10. "She who shops alone, shops fastest" might well be your clue to a happy shopping day. It's fun to shop with the girls the rest of the year, but when it comes to Christmas, you're better off alone. That goes for the youngsters too: it'll be cheaper in the long run to hire a baby sitter than pay for all the bribes you'll need to keep them quiet on this adventure.

11. Keep your sense of humor with sales people. They don't create the crowds, set the prices or manufacture the merchandise. They're tired too, so don't pick on them.

THANKSGIVING

is a happy heritage for the whole family

Giving thanks is a family affair . . . and being part of a happy, loving family group is not the least of the things we have to be thankful for! Let us remember that as we gather together to count our blessings . . . the blessings of a fruitful harvest and festive table, the blessings of a free and democratic way of life.

The Thanksgiving holiday we now enjoy is part of a rich and glorious heritage . . . a tradition of reaping the rewards of courage and persistence with gratitude and humility. May we continue to carry it forward!

How To Be a Good Santa Claus

By JOHN F. SE .BOWER
Central Press Assn.

SANTA CLAUS, Ind. — The good citizens of this Indiana hamlet, which since 1856 has borne the name of the patron saint of Christmas, are anxious that he be portrayed just right by the countless Santa Clauses who soon will be popping up almost everywhere in department stores, on street corners, and in Yuletide celebrations.

Almost all of the few hundred residents of Santa Claus live up to the traditions of Old St. Nick's legendary North Pole headquarters in that they are engaged in Christmas workshop activity the year 'round. Cast in their role by the name of their town, they live, eat and sleep it.

This is particularly true of Jim Yellig, "Mr. Santa Claus himself."

Jim presides over the fantasy type children's park here even in the heat of summer, when his red velvet suit looks plenty hot in the southern Indiana sun, but he probably has figured in more celebrations over television, radio and in communities throughout the country than any other "Santa" who ever lived.

Like some great actors who have played the part of an admirable role so long that they seem to be the reincarnation of the person they depict, Yellig every year seems to look and act more like the authentic Christmas card type of Santa Claus.

* * *

YELLIG ADVISES anyone who dons a Santa Claus suit, even if it is just to pass out gifts at the annual club party, that there is only one way to play Santa: "To the best of your ability, you must dress and act as if you are the one and only Santa Claus in the world!"

A committee of Santa Claus citizens has made a survey to discover how well the namesake of their community is depicted as a general rule. According to Louis J. Koch, chairman of the board of the Santa Claus Chamber of Commerce, the results are not too good.

"We found some very good Santa Clauses scattered throughout the country," he reveals, "but the number of Santa Clauses who fit the full qualifications were, unfortunately, too few!" On request, Koch will send out printed suggestions on how to be a good Santa.

'Mr. Santa Claus,' otherwise known as Jim Yellig, relaxes between pre-Christmas chores to catch up on the current news.

Residents of Santa Claus, Ind., are almost as proud of the fact that their Spencer county town is only four miles from the boyhood home of Abraham Lincoln as they are that it becomes the postal capital of the world for a few weeks around Christmas when bundles of letters are sent here to receive the magic postmark.

This seems to affect their concept of Santa Claus, and they think —warm, friendly and "common and folksy" in his approach. They feel strongly also that anyone who undertakes to play Santa for any group of kids should regard his assignment as a sacred trust to the dreams of childhood.

* * *

YELLIG WARNS that he must be unfailingly jovial and friendly; that he must treat all children impartially, "because Santa is certainly a very just man"; that he must be careful not to make promises that cannot be fulfilled, and that he must always remind children to listen attentively to their parents and to follow their instructions.

Yellig's face really grows ruddy, but with anger, when he thinks of an occasional Santa, who with hundreds of children crowding in on him perhaps in some big store, actually becomes gruff.

He scorns the "Santa" who has not done his homework well enough to rattle off the names of all eight reindeer, "because the kids always know them and instinctively distrust a Santa Claus who cannot remember."

Yellig is no stick-in-the-mud when it comes to his outfit; he wears foam rubber padding and an alabaster-white wig and whiskers of curled nylon, but he eschews anything but the traditional garb: bright red suit with broad black belt and trimmed with nice rabbit fur, shiny black boots, and hat with a tassel at the peak long enough to lap over and lie on the side of his head.

He insists that the suit must be spotless and well pressed, and regularly sends his wig and beard to the beauty parlor. He is dead set against false faces, because "nothing like that must come between Santa and the children who throng to see him."

Yellig and his neighbors think that every child should be told the traditions of the first real St. Nicholas, who was the benevolent bishop of Myra in Fifth Century Europe, because then they never will make the mistake of saying that isn't any Santa Claus! "He must live forever!" says Yellig.

First Visitor Probably Won't Return

Doom on the Moon

By REX STANLEY

The first spaceman to reach the moon alive probably will never return, but be doomed to die there —a sacrifice to science.

That's the opinion of many experts today. According to L. R. Shepherd, president of the British Interplanetary society, "a huge, multi-stage rocket soon will be ready to carry a man to the Moon. However, it will land with its fuel exhausted, the pilot will be marooned, finally to die when his food, water and oxygen are gone."

Both United States and Russian scientists, keenly aware that the first nation to reach the moon can dominate the world won't wait until a roundtrip rocket is developed.

One man must be sacrificed on a one-way mission to certain death, to explore what military leaders call "the superior high ground from which any modern war can be won."

"There will be plenty of volunteers, both military and civilian," says scientist Kurt Stehling, chief of the U. S. Vanguard project.

* * *

SPACE TRAVEL experts figure the first lunar trip will take about five days. If the pilot gets there alive, his contributions to human progress will be among the greatest in the history of man. He will build the first Moon observation post. Before the dies, his discoveries signaled back to Earth will open the way for all future Moon trips.

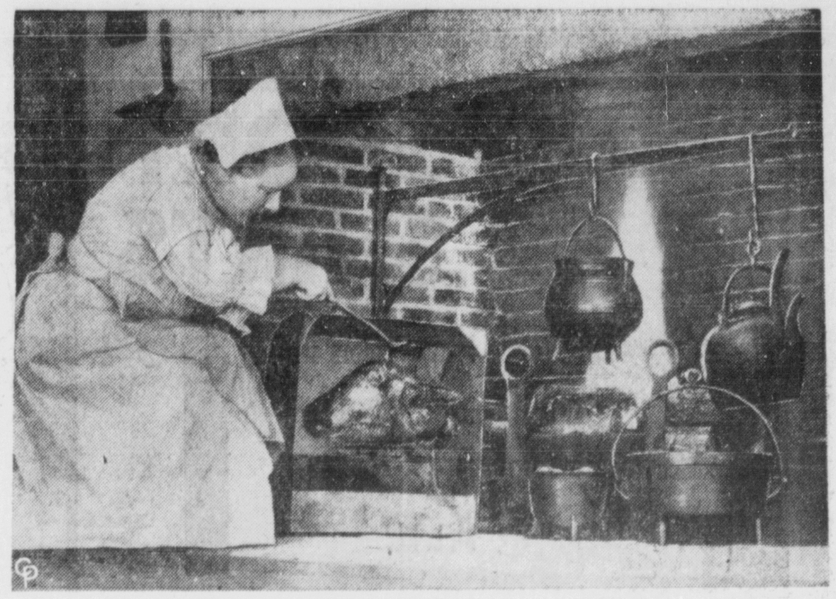

"It is a sacrifice that must be made," insists Shepherd. "There is no future for Earth in the space age except as a source of people.

Our atmosphere and gravity make it nearly useless as a starting point for exploration. The Moon must be our space port."

Unfortunately, Russia may get there first.

More Docks Planned

VANCOUVER (AP) — The first stage has been completed of a new deep-sea dock and warehouse project in Burrard Inlet. The complete work will include two deep - sea berths and two berths for coastal ships.

AN OLD-FASHIONED THANKSGIVING—Mrs. Myrtle Ball bastes her turkey on a 150-year-old tin reflector oven in Old Sturbridge Village, Mass., as she shows how a complete Thanksgiving dinner was cooked in a fireplace. The oven was a forerunner of today's roto-broiler. The demonstration is an annual affair at the colonial village, recalling way Thanksgiving was first celebrated.

God's Tiny Lamps!

Just a crossroads church—but it has been there a long, long time and will grace the skyline for many more years.

By GROVER BRINKMAN

COVINGTON, Ky. — On the Highland pike near here, on the top of Mount Cassino, is a tiny church, one of the smallest in the nation. It accommodates just three people. It was built in 1890 by the Benedictine monks, who used it as a shrine while they made secramental wines in this hilly part of the Blue Grass state.

This church is one of the many "tiny lamps" that are scattered over the United States. Some of our small rural churches, like the little red school house, are feeling the inroads of consolidation. However, churchmen are optimistic — not too many will fall by the wayside.

Ingrained in their founding, and upkeep are the sacrifice and toil of generations. In some small communities, the church is the "oldest house in town." It will not die out easily, despite the appeal of the larger towns, the swift automobile and the super-highway.

In fact, some of these small rural churches today are meeting competition without too much effort. Their parishioners are mostly farmers or small-town dwellers, and the prosperity of the land has been applied to their community churches — in building restoration, higher salaried ministers and various youth programs.

Attending these smaller rural churches is a pleasant experience, with none of the crowd and bustle and parking difficulties of the big-city edifice.

Gone are the days when the rural minister eked out a pittance salary, and depended on hs parishioners to keep his larder supplied.

Today, the average rural minister's salary is on the same level as the teaching profession. And he gets many advantages, one of which is free rent of the parsonage. The rural church today is financially sound.

* * *

SOME of these churches are old. At Shiloh, Ill., the Methodist church has just celebrated its 150th anniversary, the oldest Methodist church in Illinois. St. Luke's church, Smithfield, Va., was built in 1632, when neighboring Jamestown was a mere 25 years old — and it still is going strong.

Many of our Western rural churches, some of them started as missions in or near some Indian pueblo, are old— and prosperous.

No matter how isolated the town, there is always a church; often two or three. It is a healthy sign of a stable, God-fearing America.

In fact, more religious history and romance are generally associated with the really small church than you'll find in the big-city cathedrals. And some of them are equally famous. Who of us hasn't heard of Iowa's famed Church in the Wildwood or the song associated with it? — or the old Quaker Meeting House in Sandy Spring, Md., that counts as its worshippers U. S. Presidents?

* * *

OR, PERHAPS, the tiny Church of the West, in Nevada, or the Mission churches of Santa Fe and Taos, and San Luis Obispo? These are just a few of the "tiny lamps" that dot our countryside, catering to every creed and faith.

Whether you travel east, west, north or south, the tiny churches of our land stand out as living citadels of a gracious, God-fearing America.

* * *

YOU'RE IN the Ozark country now, and visit another famous small-town church. Built at Eureka Springs, Ark., by Richard Kerens, as a memorial to his mother, this church is unique, because you enter it via its steeple.

It is the only one of its kind in the United States, and its uniqueness has made it world-famous.

You touch one of the historic bells in the mission churches, and find that it was cast in Spain, that there is about three per cent gold in the bell's metal, due to the fact that people sacrificed their gold and jewelry to help cast the bell.

Back of the church, or near it, there is always that fenced-in plot, where aged white headstones gleam in the morning sun, and where, if you investigate further, you'll find some of the most famous pioneer names in America resting beneath the sod.

Truly we can be proud of our "tiny lamp" churches, dotting the countryside in such number that their future is assured — a major link in our religious freedom.

Round about Fayette County

By B. E. KELLEY

Have you noticed how, time after time in recent months and I might say years, bank robbers in this part of the nation have invariably been arrested, and all or most of the stolen funds soon recovered?

It is becoming more and more difficult to get away with bank robbery, as many bandits have discovered to their sorrow. Many of them are now looking through the bars of penal institutions throughout the country, or will be as soon as their cases can be processed by the courts.

During recent weeks a number of bank robberies have occurred in this and adjoining states, and I have not notfced a single instance where the robbers escaped.

Alert bank officials and employes secret alarm systems, alert citizens, and what counts more, alert and efficient officers of the law, coupled with two-way radio systems in every community insure quick justice. It virtually is impossible for such a robbery to be committed as that of the P&D Bank here years ago, when bandits escaped with $250,000 and were never apprehended. Some of the stolen bonds were recovered however.

With present day two-way radio equipment in police and sheriff's offices, and every Highway Patrol car also equipped with the same, it is now possible to throw a road block about almost any community.

Apparently bank robbery is getting about as outmoded as train robbery in years gone by. Crooks are realizing more and more that the cards are stacked against them when they tackle a bank job.

CHRISTMAS ROSE BLOOMING

I was wondering if Postmaster Walter Free's Christmas rose, the American hellebore, was not showing some bloom so while in Good Hope I made it a point to see the flower, which is growing on the east side of the Post Office building in Good Hope.

Sure enough nearly 25 blossoms were showing. Most of them were at least two inches across, with white petals, greenish centers and golden stamens. Believe it or not, it was Nov. 20 and a honeybee was gathering nectar from one of the blossoms. It became quite peeved when I shook it loose.

There are dozens of buds showing and by Dec. 10 Free expects the plant to be at its best. Then the number of blossoms will gradually dwindle until sometime in January.

It is the largest of several Christmas roses I know of in the county. They are quite scarce.

BIG BLUE HERON HERE

It was Nov. 20 and a cool day, but there he was as big as life and looked bigger — a fine specimen of the great blue heron or blue crane, getting his lunch of fish from Paint Creek.

We saw him just above Upper Cedar Hole, as he arose in majestic flight and slowly winged his way downstream, ignoring the fact that according to usual rules for his kind, he should be far down south by this time.

As the big fellow flew through the rift in the white-armed sycamore trees, the shrill notes of a carolina wren greeted us from a nearby tree.

Time after time he repeated his call, until he alighted in a badly broken tree in which a house wren seemed to have its quarters The little house wren darted toward the bigger Carolina wren which took flight instantly, knowing he was trespassing.

Usually other birds gather about when the Carolina wren starts his lusty calls, as if it were a grand opera singer.

* * *

IN HICKORY GROVE

The old Fayette County Infirmary building, which long was known as "The Poor House," and is now to be torn down, stands amid a hickory grove, believe it or not.

While there are other trees, including a few old pines, elms and ash, the hickory trees predominate, and there are 30 in the area about the front of the building.

During years when hickory nuts were abundant the inmates of the institution did not have far to go to gather bushels of them.

Just why hickory trees were chosen for the lawn I am unable to say. The board of trustees simply must have had a yen for them when the time came for placing trees about the building.

Apparently the hickory trees are about as old as the building.

I noticed that two pine trees about as old as the hickories about them, had been struck by lightning, and although badly damaged, had survived the thunderbolts. They were only about 30 feet apart, and I surmise that both were struck a the same time several years ago.

Just why the lightning would single out the two pine trees amid all of the hickories, is a mystery, although I believe that lightning strikes almost anywhere, whether there is a tree to conduct it or not. I have seen numerous hills of corn shattered by bolts of lightning, and in nearly every instance a second hill, within 15 feet, also was partly shattered by the same bolt.

Of the several hills of corn I have seen that were hit by lightning, none were torn to bits closer than 30 inches above the ground, but the stubs of stalks remaining were badly split.

Traveling by Train Safest of All Ways

CHICAGO (AP) — On the basis of passenger miles traveled last year, train travel had a lower fatality rate than bus, scheduled airliner, taxi or private car transportation.

Trains magazine says the fatality rate for each 100 million passengers-miles was 2.6 for cars and cabs; 0.14 for buses; 0.12 for the airlines; and 0.07 for the rails.

International Flavor Given by Arizona Bar

NOGALES, Ariz. (AP) — A Nogales bar has come up with a drink entitled U. N. Sling. The recipe: Fill a tall glass with crushed ice, add two ounces of London gin, a dash of French vermouth, an ounce of California orange juice, fill with Canada dry sparkling water and float an ounce of vodka on top.

Fat Women of the World--Unite!

By JOSEPH WHITT

PARIS (AP) — The model steps forward, whirls and gracefully walks across the floor to display the gown she is wearing.

There is nothing unusual about this scene. It may be seen in any Paris fashion salon.

However, there is something unusual about this particular model—she has 60-inch hips and weighs 288 pounds.

Mag Cournour, professional mannequin as well as founder and president of a fat women's club (Le Club Sympathique des Femmes Fortes), said "Of course, most models are slim, but we stout women are coming into our own. That's why we organized our club.

"Any woman with a 42-inch hip or over is eligble for membership. And let me say at once that we're not interested in dieting. We are fat and we like it."

* * *

MADAMA MAG wants all large women to feel proud. "Rubens, the great Dutch painter, is our guide," she said. "His portrait of his second wife serves as an emblem on our stationery.

Our motto is 'Every fat woman has the makings of a Rubens portrait.' He preferred to paint stout women and he married one.

"Rubens was wise. Stout women make understanding wives because they like the good things of life. They're happy and they're often good cooks."

A convivial moment at Woburn Abbey is enjoyed by Linda Leigh (left), British fat women's club executive; Louis J. Mintz, managing director of an outsize dress firm; Madame the President Mag Cournou, and the Duke of Bedford, their host.

The aim of the club is to help big and buxom women to overcome their fashion, esthetic, social and professional problems. From its Champs-Elysees headquarters the club sends out an advicfilled magazine to its numerous French mambers, who range from shopkeepers to night club singers.

"A fat woman should know how to dress properly," Madame Mag said. "In the past we've been victimized because style was set for our slim sisters. We're changing that, designers and manufacturers are beginning to pay attention to the fashion needs of the outsize woman."

* * *

MADAME MAG considers her movement an international crusade on behalf of fat women. "We spread out from Paris, into all the large French cities," she said. "Then we went into Belgium and Holland. I've also visited similar groups in Spain, North Africa Italy, Portugal and Canada.

"Recently we launched chapter in England — supposedly the country of thin women. The head of that organization, Linda Leigh, is also an outsize model. We met at the historic Woburn Abbey, where I arrived by helicopter, and we were received by the Duke of Bedford. I mention this to emphasize that we intend to put stout women on the map.

"In fact, we're even thinking of adopting this slogan for our movement—'Fat Women of the world - unite.'"

MERRY CHRISTMAS EVERYBODY!—The 2½ billion Christmas card senders in the U. S. are being more exacting in their choices this season, according to a survey by the Greeting Card association. They want their cards to express the right message to the right person at the right time. The association estimates there are more than 40,000 different Christmas card titles and greetings to choose from this year. A few, including greetings "From Our Dog to Yours," are shown. (Central Press)

It was Nov. 20 and a cool day, but there he was as big as life and looked bigger — a fine specimen of the great blue heron or blue crane, getting his lunch of fish from Paint Creek.

We saw him just above Upper Cedar Hole, as he arose in majestic flight and slowly winged his way downstream, ignoring the fact that according to usual rules for his kind, he should be far down south by this time.

As the big fellow flew through the rift in the white-armed sycamore trees, the shrill notes of a carolina wren greeted us from a nearby tree.

Time after time he repeated his call, until he alighted in a badly broken tree in which a house wren seemed to have its quarters The little house wren darted toward the bigger Carolina wren which took flight instantly, knowing he was trespassing.

Usually other birds gather about when the Carolina wren starts his lusty calls, as if it were a grand opera singer.

IN HICKORY GROVE

The old Fayette County Infirmary building, which long was known as "The Poor House," and is now to be torn down, stands amid a hickory grove, believe it or not.

While there are other trees, including a few old pines, elms and ash, the hickory trees predominate, and there are 30 in the area about the front of the building.

During years when hickory nuts were abundant the inmates of the institution did not have far to go to gather bushels of them.

Just why hickory trees were chosen for the lawn I am unable to say. The board of trustees simply must have had a yen for them when the time came for placing trees about the building.

Apparently the hickory trees are about as old as the building.

I noticed that two pine trees about as old as the hickories about them, had been struck by lightning, and although badly damaged, had survived the thunderbolts. They were only about 30 feet apart, and I surmise that both were struck a the same time several years ago.

Just why the lightning would single out the two pine trees amid all of the hickories, is a mystery, although I believe that lightning strikes almost anywhere, whether there is a tree to conduct it or not. I have seen numerous hills of corn shattered by bolts of lightning, and in nearly every instance a second hill, within 15 feet, also was partly shattered by the same bolt.

Of the several hills of corn I have seen that were hit by lightning, none were torn to bits closer than 30 inches above the ground, but the stubs of stalks remaining were badly split.

Traveling by Train Safest of All Ways

CHICAGO (AP) — On the basis of passenger miles traveled last year, train travel had a lower fatality rate than bus, scheduled airliner, taxi or private car transportation.

Trains magazine says the fatality rate for each 100 million passengers-miles was 2.6 for cars and cabs; 0.14 for buses; 0.12 for the airlines; and 0.07 for the rails.

International Flavor Given by Arizona Bar

NOGALES, Ariz. (AP) — A Nogales bar has come up with a drink entitled U. N. Sling. The recipe: Fill a tall glass with crushed ice, add two ounces of London gin, a dash of French vermouth, an ounce of California orange juice, fill with Canada dry sparkling water and float an ounce of vodka on top.

Fat Women of the World--Unite!

By JOSEPH WHITT

PARIS (AP) — The model steps forward, whirls and gracefully walks across the floor to display the gown she is wearing.

There is nothing unusual about this scene. It may be seen in any Paris fashion salon.

However, there is something unusual about this particular model—she has 60-inch hips and weighs 288 pounds.

Mag Cournour, professional mannequin as well as founder and president of a fat women's club (Le Club Sympathique des Femmes Fortes), said "Of course, most models are slim, but we stout women are coming into our own. That's why we organized our club.

"Any woman with a 42-inch hip or over is eligble for membership. And let me say at once that we're not interested in dieting. We are fat and we like it."

• • •

MADAMA MAG wants all large women to feel proud. "Rubens, the great Dutch painter, is our guide," she said. "His portrait of his second wife serves as an emblem on our stationery.

Our motto is 'Every fat woman has the makings of a Rubens portrait.' He preferred to paint stout women and he married one.

"Rubens was wise. Stout women make understanding wives because they like the good things of life. They're happy and they're often good cooks."

A convivial moment at Woburn Abbey is enjoyed by Linda Leigh (left), British fat women's club executive; Louis J. Mintz, managing director of an outsize dress firm; Madame the President Mag Cournou, and the Duke of Bedford, their host.

The aim of the club is to help big and buxom women to overcome their fashion, esthetic, social and professional problems. From its Champs-Elysees headquarters the club sends out an advicfilled magazine to its numerous French mambers, who range from shopkeepers to night club singers.

"A fat woman should know how to dress properly," Madame Mag said. "In the past we've been victimized because style was set for our slim sisters. We're changing that, designers and manufacturers are beginning to pay attention to the fashion needs of the outsize woman."

• • •

MADAME MAG considers her movement an international crusade on behalf of fat women. "We spread out from Paris, into all the large French cities," she said. "Then we went into Belgium and Holland. I've also visited similar groups in Spain, North Africa Italy, Portugal and Canada.

"Recently we launched chapter in England — supposedly the country of thin women. The head of that organization, Linda Leigh, is also an outsize model. We met at the historic Woburn Abbey, where I arrived by helicopter, and we were received by the Duke of Bedford. I mention this to emphasize that we intend to put stout women on the map.

"In fact, we're even thinking of adopting this slogan for our movement—'Fat Women of the world - unite.'"

MERRY CHRISTMAS EVERYBODY!—The 2½ billion Christmas card senders in the U. S. are being more exacting in their choices this season, according to a survey by the Greeting Card association. They want their cards to express the right message to the right person at the right time. The association estimates there are more than 40,000 different Christmas card titles and greetings to choose from this year. A few, including greetings "From Our Dog to Yours," are shown. (Central Press)

Let Santa Solve Yule Problems!

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

Santa's mighty sled carries a special section for a qusetion box, especially to carry notes from the campus crowd.

There are, for instance, those perennial puzzlers that Mr. Claus is an expert at solving—questions that involve gift giving.

"My girl friend and I date the same boys" writes a 17-year-old. "One boy is a very good spender when he takes us out, and last year we each gave him a gift. This year my friend is going to give him a very handsome waist coat that her father brought from England. I can't compete with that. What should I do?"

Since the boy is not even a steady beau, give him what you planned to give him or distinguish yourself by not giving him anything. There is no reason why you should. If you are a good knitter, consider making him a pair of socks or a silk tie.

You can get directions for these, and it will not take you long to make them. Any boy would think highly of something you made yourself.

* * *

"LAST YEAR my girl friend and I exchanged gifts. She gave me a very inexpensive gift—a pair of cotton gloves. My gift to her was a beautiful umbrella. Should I just skip it this year or give her a tiny present," asks a 15-year-old.

I would give her a less expensive present, to save her the embarrassment of not reciprocating in kind, if she cannot afford your budget, but I'm afraid that you want to limit your gift because hers does not measure up to your expectations of price range.

"A new girl moved into our neighborhood not long ago, and she has decided to have an egg nog party on Christmas day. This has always been a tradition at our house, and I do not know what to do. Should I ask the girl to change her date or just compete with her," asks a 16-year-old.

* * *

IF YOU ARE in the same circle of friends, why not call her and ask what time she plans to have her party.

Explain to her kindly, that you have had the neighborhood egg nog party every year, and you wouldn't want to interfere with hers.

If her party is from 12 to 2, maybe you could schedule yours from 2 to 4. Another thought is that presented on that basis, she may well decide to postpone her party altogether.

"If boys and girls come to your house on Christmas for a tree party, do you have to give them gifts: Would they feel they have to give me a gift?"

* * *

THIS MAY be solved by announcing before hand that there will be a grab bag for boys and a gag gift for the girls and girls bringing one for the boys. If anyone wants to bring you a gift, your conscience is clear—at least you know they didn't expect you to have one for them.

"In our house we are having a big argument over trimming the Christmas tree. My mother and dad want an old fashioned tree—strings of popcorn, cranberries and tinsel. My sister wants a white tree trimmed only with pink ornaments. My brother wants a small table tree. I would like a great big traditional tree but not with all the gunk—tinsel, etc. How do you solve this one."

Four trees is the only answer to your problem.

If you have room for them, by all means try it. Mother and dad could have a living room tree, brother could have his small table tree in the dining room maybe, sister could have a white tree with pink ornaments in the hall, perhaps if you have a big enough house.

Why don't you try your hand at decorating the big green tree outside of the house in an unusual way?

Preacher Keeps Word Despite Operation

ELIZABETHTOWN, N. C. (AP) — The Rev. David Jenkins, pastor of Elizabethtown Presbyterian Church, was rushed to a hospital with an appendicitis attack. "We'll have to operate immediately," declared surgeon.

It was a Sunday. "You can't!" protested the Rev. Mr. Jenkins. "I've got to preach this morning.!"

They compromised. The surgeon, Dr. A.F. Pumphrey operated successfully. Later that morning Dr. Pumphrey, a Seventh-Day Adventist, preached at the Presbyterian Church on "Cancer of the Body and Cancer of the Soul."

Authority on Cavalry Is Man without Horse

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — He has never ridden a horse, but James Hutchins is a nationally recognized authority on the U. S. Cavalry.

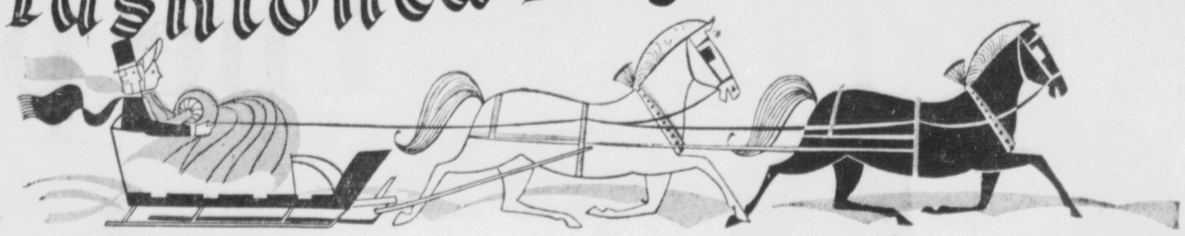

Hutchins, a Columbus auto dealer and ex-infantryman, has been named historical consultant to the National Park Service. He will advise the government mainly on old Western cavalry posts.

JOHN K. ADAMS

Former WHS Athlete Gets Air Force Award

John K. Adams, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Adams, 429 E. Paint St., has been awarded a $200 sustained superior performance award at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base.

Adams is a cable splicer with the Wire Communications Maintenance Mobile Depot Activity Detachment, and the award was presented to him by his chief, Robert M. Newell.

It is Adams' job to maintain, rehabilitate, modify and repair inside and outside plant telephone and teletype equipment; and also to make radio and radar repairs at aircraft warning stations. His work requires him to travel in Michigan, Indiana, Ohio West Virginia, Pennsylvania, New York, and the New England States.

DURING WORLD WAR II, Adams served with the 39th Signal Construction Battalion in England, France, Belgium, Luxemburg, Holland and Germany.

Adams will be remembered by local sports fans as being active in football, basketball, baseball, track, boxing and tennis, while attending Washington High School.

He is married to the former Eleanor Jane Exline of Bloomingburg, Ohio, and they have three children, Harriette, 16, Kathy, 15, and Linda, 9. They make their home at Yellow Springs.

Exceptional devotion to duty is required to earn the award presented to Adams, and it is given to fewer than 10 per cent of government employes.

Fayette County Gets $29,620 From Auto Tags

Sagging street and road funds of local governments are getting a much - needed boost as State Auditor James A. Rhodes distributes more than 12 million dollars in gasoline tax and motor vehicle license money to counties, cities, villages and townships.

County governments received the major part of this.

Fayette County has received $29,620.79 from the second partial distribution of 1958 auto tag money and $20,000 from the gasoline tax.

Total of motor vehicle license money distributed was $9,846,873.58, of which counties received $7,002,613.31 and municipalities $2,844,260.27.

Total of the gasoline tax distribution was $2,292,400, with $20,000 going to each county and $400 to each township.

December will bring the year's final gasoline tax distribution with cities, villages, counties and townships sharing in it.

Bloomingburg Church Planning Dinner-Bazaar

BLOOMINGBURG — A Christmas bazaar will be held in connection with the annual turkey and ham dinner scheduled at the Bloomingburg Methodist Church Thursday, Dec. 4.

Mrs. Zoe Garinger is general chairman for the affair which is being sponsored by the finance committee of the church.

Serving will begin at 5 p. m. in the church social rooms. The bazaar will offer articles made by church members, including wearing apparel, cushions and other items.

Sentence by Court Is Lesson for Whom?

HAMDEN, Conn. (AP) — Joseph Liscio was arrested on a complaint from his wife who told police he had "pushed her around."

He pleaded guilty and was fined $9 for breach of the peace.

When Liscio heard the fine, he turned to his wife and said: "Gimmie, please." Even the judge smiled as Mrs. Liscio opened her handbag and paid the fine.

To Each His Own

CORN, Okla. (AP) — When George Hamm reaches for the salt shaker and adds it to his coffee, other coffee drinkers cry a warning. But Hamm isn't absent minded — he likes his coffee that way.

JOHN K. ADAMS

Former WHS Athlete Gets Air Force Award

John K. Adams, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Adams, 429 E. Paint St., has been awarded a $200 sustained superior performance award at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base.

Adams is a cable splicer with the Wire Communications Maintenance Mobile Depot Activity Detachment, and the award was presented to him by his chief, Robert M. Newell.

It is Adams' job to maintain, rehabilitate, modify and repair inside and outside plant telephone and teletype equipment; and also to make radio and radar repairs at aircraft warning stations. His work requires him to travel in Michigan, Indiana, Ohio West Virginia, Pennsylvania, New York, and the New England States.

DURING WORLD WAR II, Adams served with the 39th Signal Construction Battalion in England, France, Belgium, Luxemburg, Holland and Germany.

Adams will be remembered by local sports fans as being active in football, basketball, baseball, track, boxing and tennis, while attending Washington High School.

He is married to the former Eleanor Jane Exline of Bloomingburg, Ohio, and they have three children, Harriette, 16, Kathy, 15, and Linda, 9. They make their home at Yellow Springs.

Exceptional devotion to duty is required to earn the award presented to Adams, and it is given to fewer than 10 per cent of government employes.

Fayette County Gets $29,620 From Auto Tags

Sagging street and road funds of local governments are getting a much - needed boost as State Auditor James A. Rhodes distributes more than 12 million dollars in gasoline tax and motor vehicle license money to counties, cities, villages and townships.

County governments received the major part of this.

Fayette County has received $29,620.79 from the second partial distribution of 1958 auto tag money and $20,000 from the gasoline tax.

Total of motor vehicle license money distributed was $9,846,873.58, of which counties received $7,002,613.31 and municipalities $2,844,260.27.

Total of the gasoline tax distribution was $2,292,400, with $20,000 going to each county and $400 to each township.

December will bring the year's final gasoline tax distribution with cities, villages, counties and townships sharing in it.

Bloomingburg Church Planning Dinner-Bazaar

BLOOMINGBURG — A Christmas bazaar will be held in connection with the annual turkey and ham dinner scheduled at the Bloomingburg Methodist Church Thursday, Dec. 4.

Mrs. Zoe Garinger is general chairman for the affair which is being sponsored by the finance committee of the church.

Serving will begin at 5 p. m. in the church social rooms. The bazaar will offer articles made by church members, including wearing apparel, cushions and other items.

Sentence by Court Is Lesson for Whom?

HAMDEN, Conn. (AP) — Joseph Liscio was arrested on a complaint from his wife who told police he had "pushed her around."

He pleaded guilty and was fined $9 for breach of the peace.

When Liscio heard the fine, he turned to his wife and said: "Gimmie, please." Even the judge smiled as Mrs. Liscio opened her handbag and paid the fine.

To Each His Own

CORN, Okla. (AP) — When George Hamm reaches for the salt shaker and adds it to his coffee, other coffee drinkers cry a warning. But Hamm isn't absent minded — he likes his coffee that way.

Real Facts, Not Fancies About Pilgrim Fathers!

By GLORIA KLEIN
Central Press Assn

This Thanksgiving, as in countless Novembers past, you're hearing a lot about the Pilgrims: how they sailed for America in search of religious freedom, landed at Plymouth Rock in Massachusetts, lived in crude log cabins, etc.

However, according to an historian at the University of California, Dr. Charles P. Smith, all these notions about the people who originated our Thanksgiving holiday are simply not true. In fact, he says that all these popular misconceptions about the Pilgrim fathers "are genuine examples of folk myths."

Take the matter of religious liberty. The Pilgrims already had found that blessing in Holland, where they had settled after leaving Britain, Dr. Smith declares.

The real reason they sailed to America was that they feared losing their own culture if they stayed in Holland any longer and were afraid their children eventually would become more Dutch than English.

* * *

IN ADDITION, the Pilgrims decided to come to the New World because it seemed to offer greater economic opportunities than they enjoyed as aliens in a strange land across the English channel.

As for the coming ashore at Plymouth Rock, that's a legend, too, according to the university professor.

In fact, that famous landmark wasn't even mentioned until about 100 years after the colonists arrived in 1620.

As soon as possible after arriving in New England, Dr. Smith says, the Pilgrims built English type houses of stone and frame. Log cabins weren't introduced in America until later, by immigrants from Sweden.

Typical Pilgrim scene? No, says historian.

* * *

THE PILGRIMS did not always wear the dark colors, tall hats and square collors we see them portrayed in at Thanksgiving time, says the professor.

They were sober folk and sometimes wore the formal black garments in which artists usually depict them, but they often wore bright colors and instead of stiff, woolen caps to protect them from New England's bitter cold.

Actually, the Pilgrims had much less influence on the American character than did the Puritans, who came from England later.

The Puritans came in much greater numbers and were mostly influential businessmen who settled incities rather than in isolated country areas.

"However, the Pilgrim story has always been the most popular", Dr. Smith believes, "because it is dramatic and uncomplicated."

* * *

THE HISTORIAN thinks most Americans confuse the Puritans with the Pilgrims because they came to the New World at approximately the same time and shared a common background — but there were fundamental differences.

For example, the Pilgrams came chiefly from the lower, working class in British society.

The Puritans were prosperous country gentry or merchants many of whom were well educated.

The Pilgrims wanted to separate from the Church of Egnland, the Puritans did not.

Despite the misconceptions, the professor declares that "The Pilgrims are a proper and appropriate symbol of the early settlers whose dramatic struggle against the hardship and perils of frontier life built America and continues to capture our imaginations even today."

Fire Hand To Be Moved To Fire Department

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Ronald Chappel of Ramey Air Force Base, Puerto Rico, had unexpected trouble when his car caught fire in a parking lot on the outskirts of Tucson. The city fire department couldn't help because the auto was out of the city limits.

Chappel and some friends solved the problem by pushing the blazing vehicle across the city limit line. The fire department quickly extinguished the flames.

Bent Trees Mark Indian Trails

CLOSE-UP OF TRAIL POINTERS--This view of the two Indian trees gives a definite idea of their deformity. Their size and the distance of the "bends" above ground may be judged by the figure of Chief Vaiden Long standing between them. They are 20 feet apart.

By B. E. KELLEY

"As the twig is bent so is the tree inclined."

When the first hunters and woodsmen came into the unbroken wilderness of Ohio, they blazed trails through the forests so they would not get lost on the same trail again, and so others might know the way. They chopped the bark from trees, leaving a "blaze" easily seen.

But long before white men came into this area, the Indians were bending shrubs and fastening them to the ground, to point the trail.

They also used other means of laying out trails, but bending the shrubs was common woodcraft.

• • •

IN EARLIER DAYS many of these shrubs, long since grown into sizeable trees, were still in evidence, and today there are still just a few of these "Indian trees" left as reminders of the past.

Two of them stand on the Walter Rodgers farm, 100 yards from Route 38 and a short distance north of Yatesville.

These "Indian trees" are giant oaks, which are bent to the northeast. Two or three feet above the ground they turn almost abruptly, and then the trunk extends upright.

At the point where they bend, one of the trees is an estimated five feet in diameter, and the other about four feet.

Judging from the kind and size of the big oaks, their age is estimated at 150 years, possibly older. Apparently, they were bent as they now stand when they were mere sprouts only a few feet in height.

• • •

THE TREES are plainly visible from Route 38 and few people have ever given second thought as to their peculiar shape. If they did, apparently they dismissed them as trees having been so inclined as the result of a storm.

A big ash tree formerly stood near the intersection of U. S. 62 and the Stafford Rd., seven miles southwest of Washington C. H., and was similarly bent t point the trail.

Some of the Indian trails were so frequently used and so distinct that it was not necessary to point the way with shrubs or saplings, for the paths were worn into the ground by frequent use.

One of these trails, known as the "great trail" between Chillicothe, Ross County and "Chillicothe," north of Xenia, passed just west of Plano and was worn so deep into the ground that some evidence of the trail still remains.

'INDIAN TREES'--Giant oaks said to have been bent by Indians more than 150 years ago to mark the trail, still stand on the Walter Rodgers farm, Route 38, north of Yatesville.

• • •

THE INDIANS had several large villages they called "Chillicothe" and the one in Greene County was located about three miles northeast of Xenia.

Fayette County was not only a great hunting spot for the Indians, many of whom lived within the county, but Indian trails from other places crossed the county and were used frequently by the redmen from surrounding areas.

Other Indian trails followed the creeks and when necessary, took short cuts at bends in the streams.

It was when the trails branched off into the dense woods that trail blazing was used by redskins.

Famed 'House of Thousand Candles' Will Make Way for Office Building

By RAYMOND WILCOVE

WASHINGTON — One of the most historic structures in the nation's capital is being torn down—"The House of a Thousand Candles," where Dolly Madison reigned as the foremost social leader of her time.

Probably never has a more exciting event taken place than that which occurred in this building in 1815 and from which it took its name.

However, little of that is to be gleaned from the small bronze plaque which adorns the front of the building. It reads:

"This building was used as the President's house from October, 1815, to March, 1817, by James Madison, fourth President of the United States, after the White House was burned by British troops on August 24, 1814."

The building had originally been erected to house government officials and offices and was taken over by the President and his family after the British burned the White House. Standing at 19th street and Pennsylvania Avenue, it now contains a drugstore on the ground floor and apartments on the second and third floors.

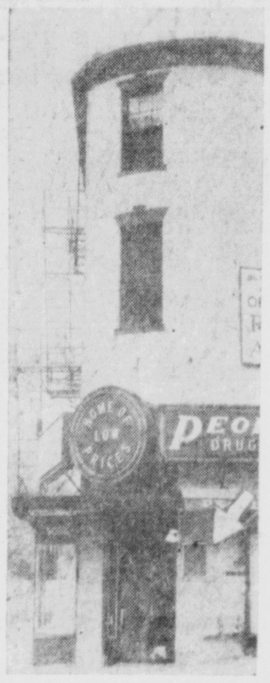

• •

IN 1815, however, it was the center of the young nation's very lifeblood and it was here that the President and Mrs. Jackson gave a reception in honor of Gen. Andrew Jackson following his victory at the Battle of New Orleans.

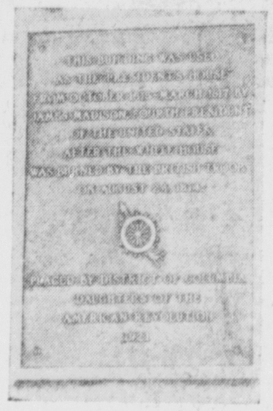

Highlight of the gala affair was the use of 1,000 candles to light the entire building.

One candle was placed in each window of the three-story home and 50 slave girls, borrowed from the owner of the Octagon building, lined the walls of the reception rooms, holding a candle in each hand.

Additional girls with lighted candles lined the way from the entrance to the stairs and up to the second and third floors. Outside the residence stood uniformed men at attention with blazing pine torches.

Madison's 'White House' as it looks today. Arrow points to plaque.

The DAR's plaque.

• • •

WHEN the President and Mrs. Madison appeared at the entrance to the reception room, the Marine Band struck up a march.

The President wore a formal black suit, a tight ruffled lace collar, a powdered wig and silver knee buckles. He looked so uncomfortable that a British reporter wrote, "Mr. Madison looked like a schoolmaster dressed for a funeral."

However, Mrs. Madison, remarked Sir George Bagot, the new British minister, "looks every inch a queen."

And as became a queen, she wore on her head a gold embroidered crown to set off her rose-colored satin with a long train of striped satin brocaded in gold.

Dolly Madison also had another rare treat for her guests that night. They had the pleasure of eating, for the first time in this country, that delicacy dear to the heart of every child.

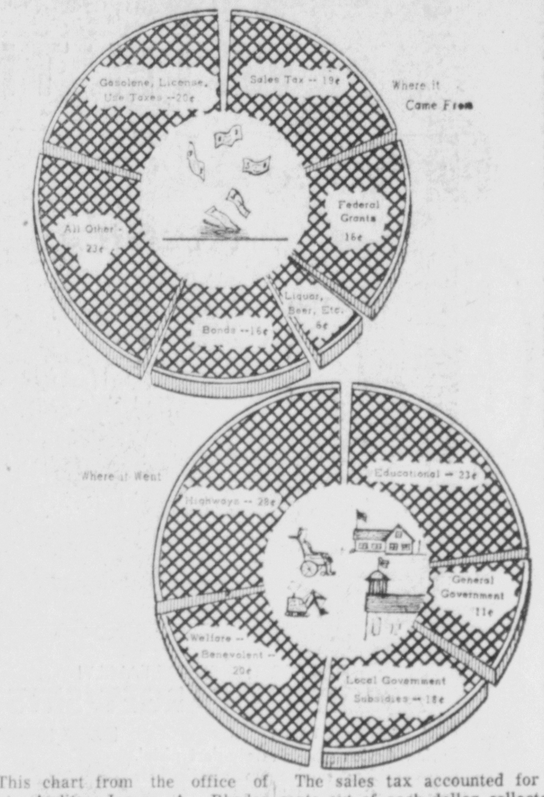

• • •

THE PRESIDENT'S wife was very popular with the people. Soldiers returning from the war would stop outside the temporary White House and shout, "Hip, hip, hurray, for the President's Lady."

School children also stopped almost every afternoon before the main parlor window and the President's wife would entertain them with her trained parrot.

The Ohio Tax Dollar

Fiscal Year July 1, 1957 to June 30, 1958

This chart from the office of State Auditor James A. Rhodes shows at a glance where the pennies came from that made up each of the $1.4 billion dollars that the State of Ohio collected during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1958.

It also shows how many cents out of each dollar were spent for highways, education and other purposes.

Twenty cents out of every dollar that the state took in came from the gasoline tax, auto license tags and the highway use tax.

The sales tax accounted for 19 cents out of each dollar collected; federal grants, 16 cents; money from the sale of bonds, 16 cents; liquor sales, 6 cents, and all other sources of revenue 23 cents.

TWENTY-EIGHT cents out of each dollar that state spent went for highways; 23 cents for education; 20 cents for old - age pensions, poor relief, health care of the aged and other welfare purposes; 18 cents went to local governments and 11 cents for expenses of the state government.

This chart from the office of State Auditor James A. Rhodes shows at a glance where the pennies came from that made up each of the $1.4 billion dollars that the State of Ohio collected during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1958.

It also shows how many cents out of each dollar were spent for highways, education and other purposes.

Twenty cents out of every dollar that the state took in came from the gasoline tax, auto license tags and the highway use tax.

The sales tax accounted for 19 cents out of each dollar collected; federal grants, 16 cents; money from the sale of bonds, 16 cents; liquor sales, 6 cents, and all other sources of revenue 23 cents.

TWENTY-EIGHT cents out of each dollar that state spent went for highways; 23 cents for education; 20 cents for old - age pensions, poor relief, health care of the aged and other welfare purposes; 18 cents went to local governments and 11 cents for expenses of the state government.

Here's Tasty Item: Big Boom in Pizza Pie

By MEL HEIMER

NEW YORK — The eyes of some men come alive when they speak of a horse in full flight; those of others are filled with sparkle when they describe the face of a handsome dame. Vince Mastro's eyes burn bright when otherwise stimulated.

"A ripe, hot pizza pie just out of the oven," says Mastro, a dreamy expression settling over his countenance, "is more beautiful than a blonde. Ask any hungry man."

Well— even starving men might not go along with Vince, but his enthusiasm is understandable. The Mastro factory on the Bowery houses the world's largest dealer in pizza equipment —ovens, work tables, serving trays, cardboard boxes for deliveries, etc., — and Vince is known, logically, as "the prince of pizza."

MASTRO not only has sold his equipment in the U. S., Canada and South America (as well as selling ovens in Naples, which is like selling American fish 'n' chips to the English); he also operates a school to demonstrate the technique of pizza baking, he designs pizzerias and he operates several of his own.

Operates them rather sneakily, one might say.

"We have fans blow the aroma across the sidewalk, level with the people's noses," he says with a grin. "They smell that delicious aroma and just can't pass. I have people walking in a daze."

What delicious aroma is THAT, Vince?

Mastro is in what may be the fastest - growing eating business in the country, comparable to the cafe espresso boom in London. It is estimated that 50 million pizza pieces are consumed weekly and pizzerias are being established across the country at the rate of a hundred a week. Already it's a $10 million business.

The pizza first appeared in the U. S. in New York's "Little Italy" section, but its history reportedly goes back 2,000 years.

Some historians feel it's an outgrowth of the matzoh, the unleavened bread originated by the Jews. Vince Mastro's father, Frank, really launched the boom in America 22 years ago with his development of a gas - fired pizza oven.

* * *

"ANY CHILD can make a pizza," Vince says. "The formula is one ounce of dough for each inch of pie (they average 36 square inches). Then, lightly sprinkle with small cubes of the right kind of cheese, strained tomatoes and olive oil. Cook in a pizza over for four mintues. This is hard?"

Vince, who is thinking of making a little pizza on a stick to replace the lollipop and who also dreams of a giant neon sign on Broadway depicting a pizza chef flipping the dough into the air, reports that President Eisenhower is a pizza lover and beer companies are spending heavily to advertise the pies because the boom has increased beer consumption 20 per cent.

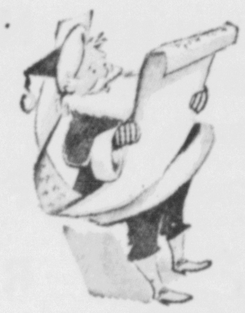

Mastro swears, too, that the cartwheels are healthy. "For 15 cents," he says, "you get the equivalent of a small cube steak, glass of milk, tossed salad without dressing, cup of black coffee and small cup of sherbet."

It still is possible, of course, that some men consider a blonde more beautiful, in the long run.

Get that Rooster!

Many Call Shakeout Healthy; New Upturn Could Be in Offing

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—The shakeout in the stock market the first of the week has frightened few Wall Streeters. Even those who hastened to sell before prices slipped too far from their peak acted today as if they had been waiting for it rather than showing any surprise.

None pretends to know how far the deflation will carry or when a fresh vigorous upturn will come. But many call the shakeout at this time healthy.

Rapidly rising stock prices had —by most standards—discounted the general business recovery for some time to come. That is, record high stock prices could be justified, in conservative minds, only by a boom in production, sales, in profits and in dividends that most people considered many months away.

The big upswing in prices also had discounted the inflation fears that many held. These had grown after the size of the federal deficit became known, and later when many felt the election of a liberal spending Congress would aggravate it.

But inflation would have to carry much farther and in a much shorter period of time than now seems likely to catch up with the fast rise in stock prices soon.

These two big supports of the rampant bull market—confidence in a strong business recovery and fear of big inflation — have carried prices pretty high.

They had risen so high, in fact, that many traders doubtless were ready to sell at the first sign of a tumble. This could account for the big volume of selling Monday after last Friday's price weakness.

There were worrisome conditions too. Labor strife seemed to be growing. While this could lead to more inflation, through the wage-price spiral—it also meant that many companies were losing chances for a quick return to better profits.

Earnings, although improving, were still disquietingly below their peak. And profit margins were still squeezed by rising costs — threatening to hold down dividends for some time to come.

Foreign news in recent days had been upsetting. Stock traders dislike uncertainties.

Confidence which bloomed so brightly in the early days of the recovery tended to shrivel a bit when the fast rate turned to a slower pace—although this is common to most business recoveries.

All of this had been building up at a time when what professional traders call technical factors were against further steady rises in stock prices.

The market was at a point where many speculators were ready to take their profits and cut their risks.

The short interest had dropped. That is, the number of those who had sold borrowed stocks and must support the market later by buying them for replacement was less than in the booming bullish days, thus shrinking one cushion under the fall.

Also, this is the period when traders readjust their portfolios for tax purposes.

The market was thin. That is, the vast majority of outstanding stocks were in the hands of investors, institutional or individual, who had bought them at much lower prices than today's but weren't putting them on the market, either because they thought them good long-term investments or because they didn't want to pay capital gains taxes.

With few stocks available for trading, big swings up or down in prices are common.

And for some time now, top-grade bonds have produced a better yield at their deflated prices than have blue chip common stocks at their record prices. Thus there was an incentive to sell stocks and buy bonds.

All of this may be why the market tumbled badly the first of the week.

None of it necessarily proves that the market will be greatly depressed, nor that it won't go to still greater heights in the future.

Fair Weather Weathering Latest Storm

ORANGE, Mass. (AP)—This is the story of the rather stormy life of Fair Weather, an English bulldog.

Like New England weather, he is inclinded to be unpredictable.

He ran away from his owner, Ernest Johnson of Springfield.

He wandered to a restaurant near the Massachusetts Turnpike and for three days lived off handouts.

On the fourth day, the Rev. Decatur Butler stopped to eat and took a liking to the dog.

The feeling apparently was mutual, because Fair Weather consented to go home with the Rev. Mr. Butler. Soon the pooch was a real buddy to the three Butler children.

Not long afterward the dog wandered away and did not return. The Butlers put an ad in the paper.

As it turned out, Fair Weather wandered into the yard of Mrs. Robert Brown, in another part of Orange.

Mrs. Brown took one look and acIled a relative — Ernest Johnson of Springfield, the original owner.

Johnson went over to Mrs. Brown's and brought Fair Weather back home with him.

But the dog apparently was not too happy. He wouldn't eat and appeared to be pining.

Johnson confided in Mrs. Brown and the latter recalled that she had read in the paper the Butlers had reported the dog missing.

So, to make the dog happy—not to mention the Butler children—Johnson returned the dog to the Rev. Mr. Butler and his family.

Should Be Well Read

ST. MARYS, Ont. (AP) — Downie Township farmer David J. Worden has plenty to read. He acquired between 50,000 and 70,000 books, the property of his father who ran a bookstore in Toronto. Worden plans to catalogue the volumes.

Make It a Homey Holiday

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

This is a home - loving age, so you can't go wrong with a gift for the home for the lady of the house and her brood.

Time was when you'd give a youngster a handsome reproduction of a Boston rocker for Christmas and he'd call in the robots from Mars to cart you away.

These days they cry for their own rocking chair, and that one in particular. Big stuffed animals to sit on for video viewing are popular too, and there are interesting cooking utensils and handsome terrace furniture that matches Mom's.

For Dad there are ottomans, easy chairs, gun racks, electric clocks. Or how about his very own television set for watching those sports programs that conflict with the children's bedtime cartoons and Mom's favorite dramatic series?

A handsome table is available that may be used indoors, can be anchored right to the ground outdoors by its candy cane holder, and is large enough to hold sandwich and drink.

Mom will take appliances big or small. She'll welcome one of the new thermostatically controlled toasters in which she can even toast frozen bread and be sure it will come out as she likes. And for the music room and all the family, consider the organ — growing in popularity, it is fun for Christmas and the whole year round.

FOR MOM . . . Shiny toaster with thermostat control.

DESIGNER SERIES . . . An ultra-slim portable TV for that man who wants solitude.

WHITE EARTHERNWARE . . . Combined with walnut for buffet service.

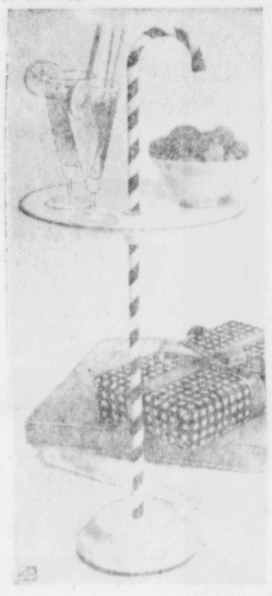

TABLE TREAT . . . Candy Cane table for odd snacks indoors or outdoors.

NEW DIMENSION . . . An electric clock in walnut case for night table or his office.

Pill Use Condemned As Contrary to Nature

WASHINGTON, (AP) — A new oral contraceptive pill recently put on the market is described by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Irving A. De Blanc, director of the Catholic Family bureau, as being "as contrary to a law of nature as a violation of gravity — with heaping guilt added on."

Thanksgiving's Forgotten Hero

Squanto Taught Pilgrims How To Plant

By FRANKIE SHARP

He was the Indian saint of Plymouth and Governor Bradford called him "a special instrument sent by God for their good beyond expectation" — but few people would recognize his name today.

Historians say that without him, there would have been no first Thanksgiving Day 337 years ago—for the Pilgrims would have had no crops to give thanks for.

But there are no towns named for him, no highways or bridges only a lonely point on the Massachusetts coast and a dreary little side street in Plymouth.

He is the forgotten man of Thanksgiving.

He was Tisquantum, a Patuxet Indian whom the Pilgrims called Squanto.

Squanto was captured in 1605 by an English exploring party led by Capt. George Weymouth who wanted a souvenir of his trip to the New World.

• • •

THE YOUNG INDIAN was taken back to England for exhibition as a curiosity. He was apparently well treated — although there is very little information on these years — and he was sent back to America in 1614 with Capt. John Smith.

Freedom was short.

One of Smith's ships was instructed to tarry in what is now Plymouth Harbor and trade with the Indians for fish and furs.

When ready to depart the captain lured some Indians on board, threw them in the hold and later sold them as slaves in Spain.

Squanto was one of the unfortunates. Luckily for him, he was bought by a kindly group of friars who treated him well and converted him to Christianity.

After several years, he escaped and made his way to England where kind-hearted men sent him back to America with Capt. Thomas Derner.

He landed at Plymouth about six months before the Pilgrims. With two round trips to Europe behind him, he undoubtedly was the most traveled Indian in New England.

• • •

BUT HOMECOMING this time was sad. Disease — probably measles or smallpox — had killed Squanto's entire family and tribe. He stayed with the neighboring Wampanoag tribe, also much weakened by disease. Several months after the Pilgrims landed, Squanto attached himself to the European colony.

Squanto's personal tragedy was life-saving good fortune for the Pilgrims.

If the little band of Englishmen had landed in territory held by a strong tribe of Indians, they would probably have been killed or driven off immediately.

But they happened upon the empty Patuxet lands. Then came Squanto, Governor Bradford's "special instrument sent by God," to show the Pilgrims how to plant the seed corn they had found hidden by a tribe on Cape Cod where they stopped before coming to Plymouth.

• • •

THE PATUXET lands were old and not too fertile, but Squanto showed the Pilgrims how to plant the corn in properly spaced hillocks with three herrings in each to fertilize the plants.

Squanto showed his new friends how to hunt and fish in the strange woods, what crops were good to eat and how they could be grown and he acted as a tireless interpreter between the Pilgrims and neighboring Indians.

Squanto was the interpreter who negotiated the treaty with Massasoit — an important chief in the Massachusetts area.

That treaty gave the Pilgrims peace and the opportunity to build their first little settlement into a thriving town. He died of an "Indian fever" about two years after the Pilgrims arrived.

• • •

SQUANTO'S title of the Indian Saint of Plymouth was earned — not given. Those who could stick to the most stern regulations of the hard Pilgrim life were called Saints.

Those families who did not quite measure up were known as Strangers.

Squanto, the one-time slave and captive, lived up to the most rigid rules. . .and earned his title of Saint.

Upside Down Fence Turned Right Side Up

BALTIMORE (AP) — A suburbanite in Rodgers Forge, asserting his rugged individualism, hung the gate on his new picket fence with the points down.

It was the only one of its kind on the block. He turned it upright a few weeks later, insisting it was not social pressure but interference with a hedge that prompted his switch.

Boy Misses School Bus When Attacked by Deer

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) — If George Dowdy, 13, missed the school bus he had a sufficient excuse. Just after he started for the bus he was attacked by a buck deer, knocked down and trampled. The deer was finally driven off in about ten minutes by George's mother and the family dog.

What Makes Good Lawmakers?

Senator Sparkman

Senator Humphrey

Senator Morse

EDITOR'S NOTE — What makes a good lawmaker? If you are a parent, would you like your offspring to make a career in politics? If you're still in school, do you know what it takes to get into politics—and what's required once you enter the political arena? The answers to these and other questions follow.

By LEONARD J. SNYDER
(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — What makes a good lawmaker?

Ask a dozen or more "good" lawmakers in the nation's capital and you'll hear variations of the "plenty of hard work" theme.

Of course, more than platitudes are involved.

However, hard work and not a mere glib tongue is considered to be a basic qualification none the less.

First the woman's viewpoint. Rep. Iris Faircloth Blitch of Georgia told this writer, "If one has courage, then she can develop a reputation for integrity, without which she would have no confidence in herself nor would the people whom she serves have the confidence in her that would inspire them to accept her leadership."

The courage Congresswoman Blitch refers to is the courage to withstand opposition, the courage to stand on your own convictions regardless of whether they are popular.

* * *

A COLLEAGUE, Rep. Marguerite Stitt Church of Illinois, likewise stressed the need for "courage enough to be independent in decisions," as well as for "strong convictions" which she considers vitally necessary for political service.

Sen. Wayne Morse or Oregon, a Democrat who once bolted the GOP and became an Independent, contends that "keeping faith with that basic principle of representative government many times is not the best way to make political friends and influence your party."

Yet, Morse maintains that "unless one keeps faith with that ethical principle, he will time and time again sell his constituents short in the matter of ethical standards and values."

Morse told this correspondent, "Too many of our politicians act and vote on the basis of government by Western Union and the Gallup poll. Too many of them sit in municipal state and national legislative bodies representing not the public interest primarily, but the interests of selfish pressure groups, powerful enough to determine to a great degree—so at least too many of these politicals think—the results of the next election."

* * *

SENATOR JOHN SPARKMAN of Alabama, the Democratic nominee in 1952, offers these eight points which he says should be part of every good legislator:

An understanding of the organization and functions of government at the local, state and national levels; the ability to speak well and persuasively; scholastical achievements at least equal to that of the average, coupled with extra curricular activities; active particpaton in civil activities and other worthwhile community projects; honesty and fair dealing in all transactions; tolerance of the other fellow's point of view; good health and the practice of sound health habits, and perseverance and hard work to achieve one's goals.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota was asked what advice he would give his best friend's son who inquired about a possible career in politics.

"First," replied Humphrey, "I would advise that young man to apply himself to the field of social sciences, with particular reference to history both American and European, and with increased emphasis upon Asian and African historical background.

"A working knowledge of the structure of the American government is fundamental. . .This should include considerable information on the constitutional history of our country, as well as the recent developments in constitutional law. Then, too, it is always good to emphasize biographical reading."

* * *

"I THINK a person receives a sense of inspiration and guidance from an intimate knowledge of those great leaders who have contributed so much to our country and to Western culture," Humphrey continued. "Such a simple and yet basic requirement is to be able to read, and read with understanding."

Humphrey said he sensed, when he was a teacher, that too many young people today are becoming accustomed to lack of discipline in both reading and writing. He said it is very dificult to find young men and women who have skill in composition and emphasized, "yet this is most important for any legislator."

Broadly stated, Humphrey added, "What a prospective young legislator needs is a good, solid background in history, political science, economics,with an ample sampling of literature and the humanities."

Then, too, "To be a legislator," he said, "one first has to be elected. To be elected requires some degree of organizational ability, plus leadership qualities. A good politician needs to like people, be willing to work with them, and not to think in terms of the absolute."

Ancient City May Become Stuck in Mud

LAHORE, Pakistan (AP)—After standing for nearly 2,000 years this city of nearly a million people may be in danger of becoming a sea of mud.

Driveways crack and patios buckle away from houses after Monsoon rains. House fundations sink. The threat to Lahore, and to other communities in the Indus River basin of India and Pakistan, is from a rising water table.

Two decades ago, well diggers had to bore 50 feet before striking water here. Now water is reached at 7 to 15 feet. There are fears that unless something is done, Lahore may stand in a shallow pond within a few years.

The water threat is not a new one. As long ago as 1933, says a survey by Karachi University, 10 villages had to be abandoned because of house collapses.

The villains in this slow-moving drama are the men who planned irrigation canals which bring water to more than 9½ million acres in the Punjab area. None of the canals was lined, and as a result they lose perhaps more water then they bring to crops. The underground water level rises, eventually to make the earth's surface itself a pond. Salts from the earth rise along with the water table, forming an arid crust when they reach the surface.

Officials predict that both Lahore and the farmlands will be saved through better drainage. Doubters say the only real remedy is to line the irrigation canals.

Odd Facts about Sea Horses

Neptune's Tiny Nags

Sea horses—they're found in six different colors!

Central Press Assn

MIAMI, Fla. — Think nature has reversed herself? Maybe, in the case of the tiny and complex sea horse — and it might give the last laugh to the wife who complains that her husband never has to give birth to children.

Because in the case of the male sea horse, he is the one who carries and incubates the eggs. He has a special pouch which resembles that of a kangaroo — and when he gets around to giving birth to his litter, he does it in quantity.

The average litter is between 125 and 200 tiny creatures, each of which in these waters is about six inches in length, will propagate about three litters a year.

Being so prolific is the saving grace of this fish. Because it's so small, so slow moving and incapable of defense, it would face rapid extinction if it didn't perpetuate the species in great quantities.

The only other natural defense mechanism, its coloration, helps it to blend in with sea week reefs and other undersea landscape. For that reason, sea horses prefer the part of the ocean's floor which abounds with grass and other vegetation.

They move by vibrating three fins, two on their head and one on their back. However, since movement requires so much effort, sea horses (named because their heads resemble that of a horse), prefer to drift with the current, with a weather eye always open for food.

* * *

THEY PREFER brine shrimp though they do feed on other small crustacea. In fact, the Miami seaquarium raises hordes of brine shrimp, since the sea horses are adamant in their refusal to eat dead food. They have no teeth so they use a built-in suction system to catch their food.

Sea horses are especially prone to seasickness if the tank where they swim is jostled quite a bit. For that reason, when the collecting boat brings in a load of them, they hope there isn't any rough weather.

"They just lie on their backs and look as if they're not long for this world", says curator Craig Phillips.

There are two interesting facts about the sea horse's anatomy, aside from the fact the male carries the eggs. It is the only fish which has a kidney, and secondly, it has a hole in its head.

Unlike humans, who speak disparagingly of a "hole in the head," the sea horse needs it, or he wouldn't be able to breathe. Through this hole the fish exhales.

* * *

SEA HORSES, which are made up of rough cartilege, are found all over the world, for the most part in water up to 100 feet deep. They range in size from the dwarf sea horse of two inches to some varieties which measure up to a foot in length.

Sea horses are found in different colors, such as shades of yellow, red, orange, green, black and dark brown. One of the seaquarium's aquarists, Ed Nichols, thinks this is because they hang onto and live around different colored undersea landscaping—rocks, sponges, grass and so forth. He thinks that they in turn absorb the coloration.

"Ive seen red sea horses lose their color here at the sea-quarium," Nichols says, "but I've never seen any at the seaquarium turn red or yellow or green.

"Why don't we find green sea horses on the Atlantic coast of Florida and yet do find them in abundance on the west coast of Florida? I think because of the abundance of green grass on the floor of the Gulf of Mexico."

What Makes Good Lawmakers?

Senator Sparkman

EDITOR'S NOTE — What makes a good lawmaker? If you are a parent, would you like your offspring to make a career in politics? If you're still in school, do you know what it takes to get into politics—and what's required once you enter the political arena? The answers to these and other questions follow.

By LEONARD J. SNYDER
(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — What makes a good lawmaker:

Ask a dozen or more "good" lawmakers in the nation's capital and you'll hear variations of the "plenty of hard work" theme.

Of course, more than platitudes are involved.

However, hard work and not a mere glib tongue is considered to be a basic qualification none the less.

First the woman's viewpoint. Rep. Iris Faircloth Blitch of Georgia told this writer, "If one has courage, then she can develop a reputation for integrity, without which she would have no confidence in herself nor would the people whom she serves have the confidence in her that would inspire them to accept her leadership."

The courage Congresswoman Blitch refers to is the courage to withstand opposition, the courage to stand on your own convictions regardless of whether they are popular.

America's Land of Arabian Nights

By LAMONT JOHNSON
Central Press Assn.

HUNTINGTON, Utah — Few American landmarks have Arabian names. One of the few is in eastern Utah between the Green river and the Wasatch plateau, where a section of wild, painted desert cliffs has been called "The Sinbad" since days of the Spanish conquistadors.

This exotic name is right out of the Arabian Nights — the magic tales from Baghdad, the queen of desert cities; the fabulous adventures of Sinbad the Sailor; the giant roc, a bird so huge that it carried off grown elephants and fed them to its young; the Flying Carpet; Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves; Aladdin and His Magic Lamp; Sheherazade and the Thousand and One Nights in which an Arabian charmer outwitted a murderous sultan.

From these fabulous, colorful, unbelievable tales was named this Castel valley wonder-world which is also fabulous, colorful and unbelieveable.

Some unknown Arab on the Spanish trail beheld that panorama of mystical cliffs, buttes, peaks, summits and mesas and called it for what it looked like — the land of Es Sinbad the Sailor.

* * *

IT BORDERS the San Rafael River, one of thousands of Hispanic names left throughout the Southwest by the Spanish dons trooping up from Mexico in search of fabled gold and the Seven Cities of Cibola.

The Sinbad has legends of old mine tailings, tunnels, shafts and abandoned water mains, with fullgrown pine trees grown up among them.

The 1,500-mile Spanish trail, oldest and longest trade route across the Rockies from Santa Fe to Los Angeles, probed the northern edge of this pictorial land.

The original grade of the Denver and Rio Grande Western railroad was also built there in 1882, heading for Los Angeles, but the power of Mormondom diverted it north to Salt Lake City.

* * *

NOW this historic line has been designated for an interstate highway route, breezing through western America, northeast to southwest, on almost a beeline course for nearly 2,000 miles from Chicago to Los Angeles.

It will touch this region of dramatic landmark names like Windowblind Peak, for its high arched walls; Temple mountain, with a square spire on each end; Ghost mountain, loftiest dome in a field of white sandstone monoliths; Throne mountain, Penitentiary canyon, Crack canyon — named for what they look like.

* * *

SURVEYS for the interstate route have been authorized, and Utah state park officials approved the area for the San Rafael state park after a tour last June to view its scenic and historic features.

Geologists call it the San Rafeal swell, a unique structure on the North American continent.

In primeval times a vast section heaved up into a huge dome from 30 to 40 miles broad.

Then, some subterranean disturbance caused the whole middle to cave in.

This leaves rugged Sinbad valley, walled in by the massive Castle cliffs, huge slabrocks standing on end like a giant stockade, their crags piercing the heavens.

This walled-in arena has a few outlets through such picturesque chasms as Black Dragon canyon, Iron wash, Cold wash, Temple gulch and the San Rafael river itself which, slices the cavernous Black Box through the San Rafael reef.

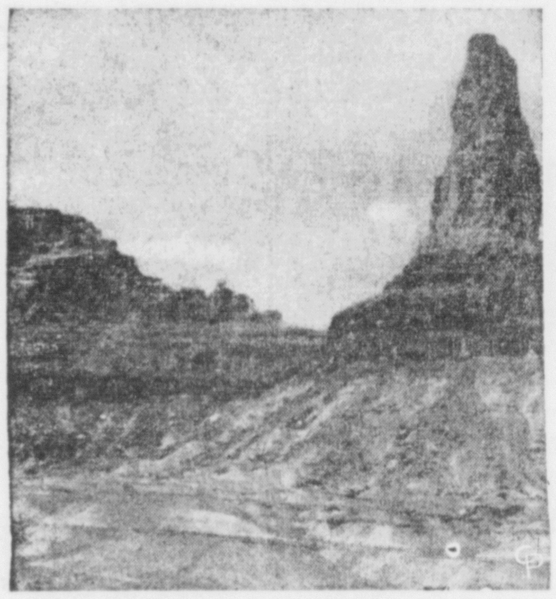

* * *

ROADS take modern cars into this mystic land from Green river, Huntington or Castle Dale. Various ores give these cliffs a chameleon garb, changing from purple to pink, yellow, gray, brown or a gleaming red with the slanting sun rays.

One eastern woman viewed this spectacle from the high rim of San Rafael River canyon, and stood speechless with awe.

Later, seeing the Grand canyon from Point Sublime, she declared Arizona's wonder was a "letdown" compared with it.

This is "The Sinbad" — America's Land of the Arabian Nights.

The Smokestack is fitting name for this lofty crag (right) on the San Rafael swell. At upper left looms Windowblind Peak.

'The Addicted' Series on TV Called Valuable Reporting

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—The Twentieth Century offers an outstanding work of television reporting in telling the moving story of "The Addicted" in two parts on CBS-TV this Sunday and a week later.

It will be surprising if this penetrating, compassionate examination of drug addiction fails to win awards for Al Wasserman, who produced, directed and wrote it. After viewing both parts in advance, I urge everyone to watch it and see how television can tell a complex story dramatically and without cant.

There are no professional actors in "The Addicted." There are no world-renowned authorities on the subject of drugs intoning big generalities off a teleprompter.

Its people, most of them, are addicts themselves, caught in the personal hell of those who have turned their backs on the reality of living in quest of the "bang" to be found in "junk."

The first part presents the story of an actual addict, 'Fred," a young New Yorker of economically underprivileged background, as told by the people who know him — his mother, fellow workers, those who tried to help him at members of Addicts Anonymous.

Finally the young man himself tells how he feels as he leaves for six months in prison: "I didn't want to use drugs . . . I need somebody. See, it's too big for me to handle alone. A drug addict needs somebody to hold onto. He's not strong enough to do it alone."

The second part of "The Addicted" is even more powerfully dramatic than the first as it examines the question of whether an addict is a criminal, as defined by current law — or a patient, as defined by many physicians.

Wasserman's cameras have captured some stunning moments in the nighttime ward of the Tombs Prison in New York where men are fighting the agonizing withdrawal symptoms suffered by all who try to "kick the habit."

Another gripping sequence is a film of an addict buying a reefer and his arrest by watching police.

No more eloquent words on the subject of addiction have been heard than those spoken on Twentieth Century in the candid confessions of addicts themselves.

Heavy Duty Cab Needed For these Taxi Riders

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Cab driver Arlie McDonlad had a weighty problem when Jim and Tim Minatra hailed his taxi.

The Minatra brothers are carnival fat men — Tim weighing 643 pounds and Jim 559. Both couldn't get in the back seat of the taxi.

To balance the car, the cab driver placed one man in front and the other in the back.

Missionary Needs Of Spain Are Cited

BOSTON (AP) — Back from a recent visit to Spain, the Rev. Dr. Fred F. Goodsell, a retired Congregational missions leader, said Protestant missionary work is needed in Spain more than before. He said the Catholic church there "has to a very great extent losts its ability to meet basic human need for spiritual transformation guidance."

Bible Words for Today

I CORINTHIANS 1:3 — "Grace be unto you, and peace, from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ."(King James)

* * *

Grace. Here is one of the key words of the faith. Yet, it is an elusive word, and one which today is not generally understood.

It is possible to arrive at some understanding of this word of power by considering its antonym, "disgrace." Everyone knows what disgrace is. In one of his sonnets, Shakespeare wrote, "When in disgrace with fortune and men's eyes, I all alone beweep my outcast state." Alone, outcast — such is always the feeling of one who is in disgrace.

Grace, then, means restoration, being welcomed back into fellowship and communion with God. The prodigal son, he who had been in deepest disgrace, found at last the joy, the peace, the serenity of restoration. He returned to the grace of his Father's house.

Such restoration is always offered to those who in faith seek the "Father's house," and they come to know the truth of His words, "My grace is sufficient for thee."

America's Land of Arabian Nights

By LAMONT JOHNSON
Central Press Assn.

HUNTINGTON, Utah — Few American landmarks have Arabian names. One of the few is in eastern Utah between the Green river and the Wasatch plateau, where a section of wild, painted desert cliffs has been called "The Sinbad" since days of the Spanish conquistadors.

This exotic name is right out of the Arabian Nights — the magic tales from Baghdad, the queen of desert cities; the fabulous adventures of Sinbad the Sailor; the giant roc, a bird so huge that it carried off grown elephants and fed them to its young; the Flying Carpet; Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves; Aladdin and His Magic Lamp; Sheherazade and the Thousand and One Nights in which an Arabian charmer outwitted a murderous sultan.

From these fabulous, colorful, unbelievable tales was named this Castel valley wonder-world which is also fabulous, colorful and unbelieveable.

Some unknown Arab on the Spanish trail beheld that panorama of mystical cliffs, buttes, peaks, summits and mesas and called it for what it looked like — the land of Es Sinbad the Sailor.

* * *

IT BORDERS the San Rafael River, one of thousands of Hispanic names left throughout the Southwest by the Spanish dons trooping up from Mexico in search of fabled gold and the Seven Cities of Cibola.

The Sinbad has legends of old mine tailings, tunnels, shafts and abandoned water mains, with fullgrown pine trees grown up among them.

The 1,500-mile Spanish trail, oldest and longest trade route across the Rockies from Santa Fe to Los Angeles, probed the northern edge of this pictorial land.

The original grade of the Denver and Rio Grande Western railroad was also built there in 1882, heading for Los Angeles, but the power of Mormondom diverted it north to Salt Lake City.

* * *

NOW this historic line has been designated for an interstate highway route, breezing through western America, northeast to southwest, on almost a beeline course for nearly 2,000 miles from Chicago to Los Angeles.

It will touch this region of dramatic landmark names like Windowblind Peak, for its high arched walls; Temple mountain, with a square spire on each end; Ghost mountain, loftiest dome in a field of white sandstone monoliths; Throne mountain, Penitentiary canyon, Crack canyon — named for what they look like.

* * *

SURVEYS for the interstate route have been authorized, and Utah state park officials approved the area for the San Rafael state park after a tour last June to view its scenic and historic features.

Geologists call it the San Rafeal swell, a unique structure on the North American continent.

In primeval times a vast section heaved up into a huge dome from 30 to 40 miles broad.

Then, some subterranean disturbance caused the whole middle to cave in.

This leaves rugged Sinbad valley, walled in by the massive Castle cliffs, huge slabrocks standing on end like a giant stockade, their crags piercing the heavens.

This walled-in arena has a few outlets through such picturesque chasms as Black Dragon canyon, Iron wash, Cold wash, Temple gulch and the San Rafael river itself which, slices the cavernous Black Box through the San Rafael reef.

* * *

ROADS take modern cars into this mystic land from Green river, Huntington or Castle Dale. Various ores give these cliffs a chameleon garb, changing from purple to pink, yellow, gray, brown or a gleaming red with the slanting sun rays.

One eastern woman viewed this spectacle from the high rim of San Rafael River canyon, and stood speechless with awe.

Later, seeing the Grand canyon from Point Sublime, she declared Arizona's wonder was a "letdown" compared with it.

This is "The Sinbad" — America's Land of the Arabian Nights.

The Smokestack is fitting name for this lofty crag (right) on the San Rafael swell. At upper left looms Windowblind Peak.

Cookbook Collection Good History Source

CIRCLEVILLE, Ohio (AP)—L. E. Goeller Sr., whose hobby is cookery, says he can trace a lot of history through the 60 or more cookbooks he owns.

"It's interesting to see that historical events not only changed governments by conquest, but even affected what people put in their stomachs" he explains.

Missing Sister Appears

MCALESTER, Okla. (AP) — Barney Bulard was a bit shaken when a woman walked into his home and he realized it was his sister, Mrs. Effie Smith. He believed she had died in an automobile wreck 15 years earlier.

'The Addicted' Series on TV Called Valuable Reporting

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—The Twentieth Century offers an outstanding work of television reporting in telling the moving story of "The Addicted" in two parts on CBS-TV this Sunday and a week later.

It will be surprising if this penetrating, compassionate examination of drug addiction fails to win awards for Al Wasserman, who produced, directed and wrote it. After viewing both parts in advance, I urge everyone to watch it and see how television can tell a complex story dramatically and without cant.

There are no professional actors in "The Addicted." There are no world-renowned authorities on the subject of drugs intoning big generalities off a teleprompter.

Its people, most of them, are addicts themselves, caught in the personal hell of those who have turned their backs on the reality of living in quest of the "bang" to be found in "junk."

The first part presents the story of an actual addict, 'Fred," a young New Yorker of economically underprivileged background, as told by the people who know him — his mother, fellow workers, those who tried to help him at members of Addicts Anonymous.

Finally the young man himself tells how he feels as he leaves for six months in prison: "I didn't want to use drugs . . . I need somebody. See, it's too big for me to handle alone. A drug addict needs somebody to hold onto. He's not strong enough to do it alone."

The second part of "The Addicted" is even more powerfully dramatic than the first as it examines the question of whether an addict is a criminal, as defined by current law — or a patient, as defined by many physicians.

Wasserman's cameras have captured some stunning moments in the nighttime ward of the Tombs Prison in New York where men are fighting the agonizing withdrawal symptoms suffered by all who try to "kick the habit."

Another gripping sequence is a film of an addict buying a reefer and his arrest by watching police.

No more eloquent words on the subject of addiction have been heard than those spoken on Twentieth Century in the candid confessions of addicts themselves.

Heavy Duty Cab Needed For these Taxi Riders

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Cab driver Arlie McDonlad had a weighty problem when Jim and Tim Minatra hailed his taxi.

The Minatra brothers are carnival fat men — Tim weighing 643 pounds and Jim 559. Both couldn't get in the back seat of the taxi.

Missionary Needs Of Spain Are Cited

BOSTON (AP) — Back from a recent visit to Spain, the Rev. Dr. Fred F. Goodsell, a retired Congregational missions leader, said Protestant missionary work is needed in Spain more than before. He said the Catholic church there "has to a very great extent losts its ability to meet basic human need for spiritual transformation guidance."

Bible Words for Today

I CORINTHIANS 1:3—"Grace be unto you, and peace, from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ."(King James)

* * *

Grace. Here is one of the key words of the faith. Yet, it is an elusive word, and one which today is not generally understood.

It is possible to arrive at some understanding of this word of power by considering its antonym, "disgrace." Everyone knows what disgrace is. In one of his sonnets, Shakespeare wrote, "When in disgrace with fortune and men's eyes, I all alone beweep my outcast state." Alone, outcast—such is always the feeling of one who is in disgrace.

Grace, then, means restoration, being welcomed back into fellowship and communion with God. The prodigal son, he who had been in deepest disgrace, found at last the joy, the peace, the serenity of restoration. He returned to the grace of his Father's house.

Such restoration is always offered to those who in faith seek the "Father's house," and they come to know the truth of His words, "My grace is sufficient for thee."

Sketch of proposed English channel tunnel with map showing its proposed location.

That Channel Tunnel Project

Caesar's Dream in News Again

By OMER ANDERSON
Central Press Assn.

CALAIS, France — A most improbable poll is taking place at this English channel crossing port—a poll probing prospective patronage for a cross-channel tunnel.

Some 15 million persons cross the channel annually - by ship or plane. How many would use a tunnel in preference? The poll is only one of a number of tunnel surveys in progress. There are cargo surveys and geological surveys.

The idea of tunnelling the channel is hoary. Julius Caesar was an early tunnel advocate. Seventy years ago a British company bored an experimental tunnel a mile out from Dover.

However, the tunnel project heretofore has always collided with insurmountable obstacles, the greatest of which is the sheer financial and engineering scope of such an undertaking.

There has been reason to doubt that the project is technically possible—or financially feasible. In England, there have been objections that a tunnel would imperil British defense.

* * *

THE MENTAL BARRIER has been perhaps the most formidable. Somehow, to the British, the tunnel project symbolized a once-for-all renunciation of British insularity vis-a-vis the Continent.

Now the tunnel projec is again in the news, if not in the headlines. The English Tunnel company, a consortium of private British financial interests, is seriously surveying a channel tunnel.

On the French side, the Suez Canal corporation, which now has no canal to operate, also has cocked an eye on a channel tunnel.

The Suez company has a boodle of cash to invest. The tunnel project strikes the more imaginative of its directors as a singularly appropriate undertaking for the company — the nuclear-age version of Ferdinand de Lesseps' bold Suez canal gamble.

Economics now argue for the tunnel Europe's postwar production and trade gains have been phenomenal. And Britain's agreement to enter a European Free Trade Zone caps the British retreat from insularity.

* * *

THE KEY to the tunnel now is geology, the matter of locating suitable sub-channel strata for tunneling. Until precise geophysical surveys are completed, the tunnel's cost is conjecture.

Estimates run from $250 million to $1 billion, depending on geophysical findings.

Financing, however, is no longer regarded as a great obstacle. It is likely that a consortium of British and French banking interests would undertake the project, assisted by the British and French governments.

4 Murderers Get Mercy From O'Neill

COLUMBUS (AP) - Four murderers have been granted commutations by Gov. C. William O'Neill. The action makes them eligible for parole.

John Malone, 40, was convicted of the holdup killing of a gasoline station attendant in Cleveland in November, 1934. He was 16 at the time. He has served in an honor assignment for 13 years.

Olin Jones, 43, of Cleveland, was one of a gang involved in the 1934 fatal shooting of Blant Slocum. Jones was 18 at the time and was not the gun wielder. He is a trusty at London Prison Farm.

Jack Ellis, 49, was convicted of the shooting of Joe Mettle in Akron in December, 1933, during a quarrel after a drinking bout. Gov. George White commuted Ellis' death sentence the following year. Ellis has been on honor status for 14 years.

Phillip Morris, 41, was one of five persons who participated in the holdup killing of Harry Rinehart in Cleveland in July, 1936. He has been on honor assignment since 1946.

A fifth commutation went to Hosia Lewis, 63, who was convicted in 1915 of burglary of an inhabited dwelling at night in Cincinnati. He was sentenced to life imprisonment. He walked away from London Prison Farm in 1920 and was not caught until 1956. He was arrested then for possession of policy slips, but otherwise during his long period of freedom he had a good record. The commutation extends mercy and permits parole consideration.

O'Neill's announcement said the Pardon and Parole Commission recommended clemency in all the cases.

In a week's time some joker sent to their home: four typewriters: $10 worth of medicine; dairy products from two firms and a lawn mower.

They saw an advertisement in the newspaper offering their furniture for sale and dozens of calls have been made by dry cleaning pickup men, plumbers, television repairmen and cab companies.

Something New and Different for Christmas

By DOROTHY WHIPPLE, M.D.

Would you like to do something new and different this year at Christmas time? There is an old old Christian custom that's well worth dusting off and using in our modern lives.

Fill the Advent crib. Prepare a manager-like crib and set it up on the First Sunday of Advent (the Sunday nearest the Feast of St. Andrew on November 30).

This crib is to receive the Christ Child on Christmas Eve. It needs to be filled with straw to make a soft bed for the Babe. Each straw represents an act of kindness or good will.

After supper every evening from the time you set up the crib until Christmas Eve the whole family gathers around the crib and each member of the family is allowed to put in as many straws as his day of good deeds permits.

* * *

TELL THE children the story of Mary and Joseph, of how they were turned away from the Inn and finally found quarters in the stable. The children will be anxious to make the Christ Child's bed just as soft and comfortable as possible. Christmas Eve when you fill the children's stockings you can place a little figure of the Christ Child in the crib for the children to find the next morning.

This is a lovely custom and one which will give the children some of the rest spirit of Christmas. "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you." This is the most important tenent of Christianity which we profess to live by. Unforuunately it too often gets lost in our hard workaday worlds.

Nevertheless it is what in our hearts we want to live up to. What better time than Christ's birthday to try to put in into operation.

As you put the straws into the crib each evening, talk to the children about the kind of person Christ was. Explain to them that what would truly please Him and make Him comfortable is human beings who are kind and considerate of others and that by patterning their lives on this principle they will grow in the image of Christ.

* * *

NOT ONLY the children but the grownups too can profit from each straw they lay in the crib. It is surprising how all through the day the thought of those little straws keeps you going.

Perhaps it is that you must live up to your children's expectations of you that you remember to do the nice things. It is little things often that are the most important.

Give the children credit when they remember to say thank you or tell you that something you cooked was real good. They get credit for hanging up their clothes without being nagged.

Maybe a child could polish your shoes for you or run an errand or wash the dishes.

Maybe, maybe your husband could bring you a cup of coffee in bed one Sunday morning or it might be the other way around, you take it to him.

* * *

WHEN THE whole family is trying to think up things to do for each other it's amazing what you can come up with. And don't confine it to the family.

How about that unpopular child in Susie's class. Could Susie do something nice for her—just talk to her or go over and sit beside her at lunch time.

Better prepare a crib big enough to take all these straws!

Filling an Advent crib is certainly more in the true spirit of Christmas than merely being good so Santa Claus will leave presents.

The reward is the good feeling inside not material presents, and isn't that what Christmas is all about anyway.

Gets Insurance -- And Just in Time

RIVERTON, Wyo. (AP) — "Want some insurance on that new warehouse you're putting up?" a Riverton insurance man asked Lowell Morfield, a uranium executive.

Morfield pondered a minute, then decided he'd better get some coverage.

A half hour later a freak twister leveled the framework of the steel building, causing about $3,000 damage.

Plant Bank in Maryland Means Fine Food for You

By JAMES NEVIN MILLER
Central Press Assn.

BELTSVILLE, Md. — C. O. Erlanson serves as "president" of what might well be the world's most unique "banks". Chances are you never heard of it, although it is 60 years old. Yet its successful operation means finer foods for your table; in fact, better fruits, vegetables and money crops for the entire nation.

Its worth? Untold billions. Its coverage? Worldwide, with representatives who penetrate the most inaccessible areas of the globe.

Known as the "world bank for plants," its job, under the Bureau of Plant Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture, is to serve as a living repository of more than 200,000 varieties of the world's finest seeds and seedlings of fruits, vegetables and forage crops of almost every known type and description.

These are sent in from time to time by plant explorers. They are then placed in bank "vaults" or greenhouses and studied painstakingly by pathologists to determind their freedom from insects and disease.

Finally, if pronounced physically fit, the seeds or seedlings are used by breeders to develop new or improved varieties of food and crop plants.

* * *

ONE OF THE many reasons why the plant bank is important to you, the nation and the world is this: surprisingly few of the foods you and I consume are native American.

Most melons originated in Turkey. Corn was introduced here from Paraguay; potatoes and tomatoes from the Andes of South America; peanuts from Argentina and Brazil; and soybeans from China.

In addition, most of our better varieties of pears, apples and grapes are of foreign origin. Furthermore other nations are continually calling upon our plant bank for aid in developing improved types of growing things.

The bank is largely responsible for the present prosperity of our $70 million tomato industry which back in 1929 was threatened by fusarium wilt.

In a desperate move, plant explorers introduced a Peruvian species never before grown here. Its seedlings were put in the bank, studied and found to be wilt-free. Breeders crossed the foreign variety with our own tomatoes and saved the industry.

For 60 years the bank has been the number one factor in the rapid development of our agriculture. In 1898 what's now known as the Division of Plant Exploration and Introduction was started. Dr. David Fairchild, its first explorer, soon was made head of the bank and held the job for 25 years.

* * *

THUS FAR the plant bankers have helped introduce, identify and distribute some 190,000 separate "introductions." These are of two main types: those which may establish new crops, and those which will improve established crops.

Valuable newcomers include the persimmon, tung nut and date.

Of the improved varieties, breeders are developing plants that will be free from bacterial, virus of fungus diseases, notably beans resistant to downy mildew, and spinach that is immune to blue mold and blight.

* * *

THE GOOD HEALTH of the California grape industry, worth hundreds of millions, is largely due to the efficiency of the plant bank.

The remarkable resistance of these West Coast grapes to the mildews, black rot and the root louse, devastating pests in Europe, is a direct result of plant breeding supervised by the bank.

Our soybean crop, annually worth a billion dollars, represents an excellent return on the $70,000 spent on extensive exploration in Asia. Niney of the 130 soybean varieties now grown here commercially, are direct introductions.

These are some of the treasures stored in the plant bank.

Other noteworthy bank-sponsored achievements include: new varieties of mosaic-resistant sugarcane, developed through resistant strains from India and the Netherlands East Indies; a revolutionary pasture, hay and seen crop called Korean lespedeza, and wilt-free alfalfa varieties from Turkestan.

For 20 years the plant bankers sponsored the study of the Chinese tung nut. Today 192,000 acres grow the fruit in Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and Texas. These states supply about 17 per cent of the tung oil needed by American industry.

* * *

OUR FLOURISHING date industry, centered in California's Coahella valley, is an importation from Iraq and Arabia. Avocadoes from Central America and the West Indies provided an important crop for California and Florida.

The Washington navel orange from Brazil was the start of the celebrated California citrus industry.

Who ever heard of automobile tires made from daisies, and a Russian variety at that? Yet there si ample evidence that it can be done. About 10 years ago plant explorers brought some seedlings into the plant bank. They were from the Russian plant, Koksaghz, or Russian daisy.

After storing the seedlings in the bank for several months, breeders decided to grow them in our Southwest as a possible source of domestic rubber. They were successful.

A number of excellent automobil tires have now been made from American-grown Russian daisies at the Department of Agriculture's eastern regional laboratory at Philadelphia.

Hundreds of other examples could be cited concerning the benefits which have resulted from the unique bank of plants. However, these few should serve as definite proof of its priceless gift to American agriculture.

PLEATED FROM a shallow neckline to the widened hemline is a one-piece dress of banker's gray flannel from the Urban Group by Townley. A fabric belt ties high at the bosom line for a trapeze-type silhouette.

Popcorn Featured Item at First Thanksgiving

By JOHN F. SEMBOWER
Central Press Assn

After existing for thousands of years, appreciated but largely unsung, popcorn finally is "going to college" and has backers who are determined to see that it comes into its own and gets due recognition.

Bent on seeing that what they contend to be "the oldest type of cultivated corn in the world" gains just recognition, the growers and processors have formed a Popcorn Institute in Chicago which points out that Americans alone now consume more than 200 million pounds of popcorn a year.

Digging into the illustrious past of the hard, bead-like kernels which puff into what the Indians called "a white flower," the institute's researchers have established that it was prominent at the first Thanksgiving feast held at Plymouth.

The Pilgrims did not show any double feature movies, but an Iroquois brave, Quadequinah, brother of the kindly Chief Massasoit who helped the city-bred pioneers to learn how to prepare many frontier delicacies, brought a batch of popcorn in a deerskin bag, and the white man was off and running to the current era of popcorn munchers.

The Indians apparently always were appropriately amazed at this form of their staple food which had lift and bounce built into the kernel. After the first Thanksgiving feast in 1620, popcorn was a fixture whenever the Indians around Massachusetts got together with the pioneers to discuss treaty terms.

An unusual trio celebrates the discovery that popcorn had a place at the first Thanksgiving feast in Plymouth colony. Chief Whirling Thunder (left) of the Winnebago tribe impersonates Quadequinah, brother of Massasoit. Senator Paul H. Douglas (D), Illinois (center), is sponsor of a bill to make the corn tassel the national flower. Princess Pat Backes of Chicago, an authentic Winnebago princess, needs no special reason for adding her decorative presence.

* * *

IT SEEMS that an Indian carrying a bag of popcorn was a peaceful Indian, just as many a "young Indian" today at the movies is relatively quiet while he watches a horror film if he can stuff himself with popcorn.

The Mayflower travelers were not the only ones to discover this in the New World. Both Christopher Columbus and Spanish Conquistadore Hernando Cortes duly noted the phenomenon of popcorn on their earliest explorations.

They found the Indians in Central America wearing strings of it, like the strings hung on many Christmas trees today.

Apparently it was the initial New World confection, and the Indians used it for one of their few snacks and confections. However, in New England they started something else with it when the Pilgrims ate popcorn for a breakfast cereal with cream, and it was the forerunner of all the puffed wheat family of foods today.

Dr. Paul Weatherwax of Indiana university has devoted a lifetime to pursuing the ancestral home of the corn plant through out North and South America, and he reports discovery of 5,600-year-old popcorn ears found in the Bat cave in New Mexico.

* * *

THE INDIANS left no stone unturned when it came to conjuring up recipes for their beloved maize, even including how to leach it with lime to make hominy.

However, since parching it was one of their favorite forms, it probably was only natural for them to discover its popping qualities very soon.

It remained, however, for purposeful, modern scientific researchers to enlarge the popcorn ear far beyond its original length of about three inches under Indian cultivation, and to increase the "batting average" of popping the kernels to higher than 99 per cent.

Ex-Sudan Premier OKs Own Ouster

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Sudan's former Prime Minister says the military coup which ousted him saved his country from a foreign-sponsored move to end Sudanese independence.

The former government chief, Abdullah Khalil, made clear he was accusing President Nasser of trying to annex Sudan to the United Arab Republic.

Khalil was interviewed in Khartoum, the Sudanese capital, by a correspondent of a Beirut newspaper. It was his first statement for publications since Gen. Ibrahim Abboud, commander of the Sudanese army, peacefully ousted the government Nov. 17 and made himself premier.

Khalil said he knew beforehand of Abboud's coup and approved it

Marriage Manual Put Out by Church

CHICAGO (AP) — The Methodist church has issued an official marriage manual for engaged couples, entitled "In Holy Matrimony," designed to give guidance on various problems faced by newly-weds. The church also has put out a new manual for use by pastors in giving premarital counseling.

What Can He Do Now?

GARY, Ind. (AP) — William Lasenby might be an easy target right now for a book salesman. Someone broke into Lasenby's home and stole his television set, phonograph and his radio.

Farmer's Bequest Runs into Difficulty

TRANQUILITY, N. J. (AP) — Robert Rusby wants to end fighting on earth for land so he's deeded his 24 acres to God. But there have been some complications.

To be legal, the deed must be delivered in person and so far, said Rusby, this has been quite a problem.

Plenty of Rat Poison But none for Mice

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — City sanitary inspector, John E. Pipes looked around a storage room at the city public health laboratory, which probably holds enough poison to kill thousands of rats.

"What's that?" he asked, pointing to a can.

"It's for poison," an attendant said. "We are having trouble with mice in here."

Policeman Confounded By a Woman's Purse

URBANA, Ill. (AP) — Two University of Illinois coeds called at the police station to report thefts of their purses.

It proved too much for Sgt. Al Konradt who listed compacts, lipsticks, small change, identification cards, glass cleaners, etc.

To fill out the list on the police blotter, he added:

"And various other necessities of a woman's fancy."

Today's Grid Menu Features Tradition Tilts

Cincy-Miami Battle Among Few Tagged With Bowl Bids

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tradition and not much else marked the Thanksgiving Day schedule in major college football, although a couple of games could thin out prospect lists for minor bowl attractions.

Only one club, up-and-down Pitt, has even an outside chance for a major bowl bid among the teams in action today. But it would take a healthy romp against Penn State to gain the Panthers serious consideration.

The big game as far as tradition is concerned is the Penn-Cornell tussel in Philadelphia, with both clubs shooting for share of second place in the Ivy League.

Other traditional games included:

Virginia-VMI—Playing for second place in the Southern Conference, with VMI also on the list of Tangerine Bowl prospects.

Brown-Colgate—No league position, no bowl at stake, and probably no competition for Brown and passer Frank Finney.

Texas-Texas A&M — Both are three-time losers, but this has always been a grudge affair in the Southwest Conference. It will be telecast nationally.

South Carolina-Wake Forest — South Carolina can pad its second-place spot in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Wichita-Tulsa — Wichita could gain a first-place tie; Tulsa might nail a bowl bid, either to the Tangerine or Blue Grass.

Cincinnati-Miami (Ohio) — Both are on bowl lists.

It will be the 63rd meeting between the two southwestern Ohio rivals. Miami, which now has won the last four games, also owns a 30-26 margin in the long series. There have been six ties.

On paper, Cincinnati, rated as a rather decided favorite but form doesn't count much when the two teams get together in their annual Thanksgiving Day clash.

For comparative purposes both teams beat Dayton but Miami took a solid beating from Xavier while Cincinnati whipped the Musketeers. Miami won the Mid-American Conference championship while Cincinnati was able to win only one game in the under-sized but more potent Missouri Valley Conference.

The Bearcats lost one and tied two in that loop which has only five football-playing members.

Cincinnati's record for the entire season stands at 5-2-2 while Miami is 6-2. The Redskins lost to Indiana in addition to Xavier.

Richmond-William & Mary, Utah-Utah State and Denver-Colorado State also played from habit.

Pitt (6-2-1) might be able to lure a bid from the Blue Grass or the Gator Bowl. The Gator is the only major bowl without even one club picked.

Mississippi Southern (8-0), another Tangerine Bowl prospect, is the last of the unbeaten, untied teams still in business and winds up its regular season against Chattanooga. Thirteen other perfect-record clubs already have closed up shop.

Today's games are overshadowed by Saturday's specials — Army-Navy at Philadelphia; Air Force-Colorado, with the Air Cadets expected to fill the Cotton Bowl berth opposite Texas Christian; and Clemson-Furman, which is expected to ticket the Tigers for the Sugar Bowl opposite Louisiana State.

Other major games Saturday included Southern California-Notre Dame, Southern Methodist-TCU, Baylor-Rice, Houston-Texas Tech, Oklahoma-Oklahoma State, Ala-Auburn, Georgia-Georgia Tech, Vanderbilt-Tennessee, Florida-Miami and Mississippi-Mississippi State.

Jeff Tigers Nosed Out By Chillicothe Catholic

Jeffersonville's Tiger cagers maintained their high-scoring offense in their game with the boys from Chillicothe Catholic Wednesday night, but were nosed out 66 to 64.

In the five games the Tigers have played this season, they have never failed to score 65 points or more and in one game, against Simon Kenton, they piled up 85.

Playing on their home floor Wednesday night, the Tigers were good at just about everything they did except rebounding — and that was through no fault of their own, because the Chillicotheans were just too tall for them. They rarely got more than one shot at the bucket.

The Tigers made good 14 of 27 free throws and hit 25 of 61 shots from the field. Coach George Greer figured that their field goal average was 33 per cent in the first half and around 47 per cent in the second half — and that's right good for a high school team.

The Chillicotheans tallied on 14 of 30 from the foul line and had a little better average from the field. Most of heir field goals were made on rebounds right under the basket. Stark got 10 of them.

* * *

JEFFERSONVILLE'S Jim Wright, a transfer from Bowerville this year led both teams in scoring. Going into the game in the second period after John Davis was taken out with three fouls against him, Wright shot with amazing accuracy to make good 10 of 13 tosses. Virtually every shot was a jump from either the corner or about 15 feet out front.

Jim Cook, using the same corner and front key jump tactics, got 6 field goals. He had been averaging 19 points a game.

Davis, one of the high scoring Tigers — he got 36 points against Simon Kenton — spent most of the game on the bench without making a single point.

The Tigers started with a zone defense and when it failed to halt the Chillicotheans in the first period they shifted to a man-top-man. With the tighter defense, they started hitting and closing the gap and with only 30 seconds left in the game were within 2 points of tying it up.

Chillicothe shifted back and forth from a zone to man-to-man defense, but once the Tigers got going, they had no difficulty in getting through either.

At a considerable height disadvantage, the Tigers had to hit their first toss from the floor, because the visitors controlled the boards so effectively.

In the preliminary, the Chillicothe Reserves knocked off the Jeffersonville Reserves, 35 to 22. Gary Caplinger was top scorer for Jeffersonville with 10 points. Although Dave Garringer got only 2 points, he assumed the role of play-maker for the team and did a fine job of rebounding.

Hot, Cold Blue Lions Drop Season Opener to Bexley on Fouls, 66-52

Hitting a phenomenal 84 per cent of its free throws, an experienced Bexley team downed the hot-and-cold WCH Lion 66-52 in the Fayette Countians first game of the season Wednesday night.

Dropping to a 10-point deficit in the first quarter, the Lions fought back to close the gap to two points in the third quarter only to see it widen again as red-hot Bexley Guard Nafzer came on to make 9 of ten foul shots and one field goal in the last period.

Nafzger proved to be the deciding factor as he scored on 15 of 17 free throws and dumped in four baskets to carry away scoring honors with 23.

Bexley Forward McCandish added insult to injury by swishing in all of his eight free throw attempts and eight field goals for a total of 22 points.

The Blue Lions outscored the Columbus suburbanites on field goals 22 to 20 but the foul line told the tale. While the Bexley Lions were making 26 of their 31 shots the Blue Lions were dropping off with eight of 21 attempts for a percentage of 31.

The Blue Lions had many good shots during the first quarter but the basket "seemed to have a lid on it" and they spotted the Bexley team 10 points before the start of the second period, Coach Gene Millard said.

The Lions threw off their starting jitters in the second quarter and rebounded back to a 28-20 score at the end of the half.

Continuing their drive in the third quarter the Lions closed the point spread to two points with a 32-30 score.

But within the next few minutes the boys turned the ball over to Bexley three times without getting a shot and the score spread jumped to eight again.

From then on, the show was all Nafzer as he staged an 11 point surge in the last period to draw the Bexley Lions away to the 14-point winning lead.

Turnovers, in which the Lions would give the ball to Bexley without getting a shot, seemed to stop every sustained drive the Lions would seem to be starting, Millard said.

They would just get going and then turn the ball back two or three times in a row and have to fight back from a lop-sided score again .

The Lions turned the ball over without taking any shots 15 times. The most a team should lose the ball over is about six, Millard said.

This problem will be one thing the boys will concentrate on before their next game, he said.

On the whole, Millard, making his debut as a WCH basketball coach, saw many good things in the game, he said.

Two enlightening factors were the scoring of Forward Pete Pfersick and Guard Jim Hidy. Pfersick took scoring honors for the Lions with 16 points and Hidy scored 13.

Unnecessary fouls, which accounted for the total of 25 personals, will be another working point for future practices, he said.

The Bexley team was well coached and had the decided advantage with three returning lettermen, Millard said. They played possession-type ball and waited for the good shots before shooting.

The Lions took advantage of the Blue Lions' inexperience on defense to drive in on short fast punches.

The team and the coach expressed appreciation to the 100-150 WCH fans who made the trip to see the team play.

The reserves, in taking a 27-22 beating, suffered from the same sharp-shooting at the foul line as the varsity.

The Bexley team started the evening's pattern by making nine of its 11 free throws while the Blue Lions were floundering with only two of 10 shots.

Coach Marvin Merritt said he was satisfied with the performance which also showed a greater number of field goals made, 10 to nine for the Bexley players, considering the time the boys have had to practice.

Seaman and Reno took scoring honors for the Lions reservists with six each.

Unions Give $36,244 To Beat Right to Work

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A long list of United Steelworkers locals contributed $36,244 toward the successful campaign to defeat the so-called right-to-work proposal in the general election Nov. 4. A report of the contributions was filed Wednesday with Secretary of State Ted W. Brown by a union official.

Train-Car Crash Toll

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Gordon Jeffery, state director of highway safety, says 81 persons died in Ohio car-train collisions in the first 10 months of this year.

When it is 12 o'clock noon in New York City, it is 1 o'clock the morning of the following day in Hong Kong.

Crash Knives

GLADSTONE, Mich. (AP)—The Marble Arms Corp. of Gladstone is grinding knives for use by downed fliers.

The Knives, tested by the Bureau of Aeronautics, have blades which can cut metal or other hard materials, such as the sides of a crashed plane. The knife butt is strong enough to be used as a hammer.

All in 40 Years

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—The Naval Air Station here was so busy it didn't take time to celebrate its 40th anniversary. It was commissioned in 1918 with equipment of six tents and six seaplanes. Now it is one of the largest and most powerful facilities of its type in the world.

Squash from Acre Patch Is Given to Church

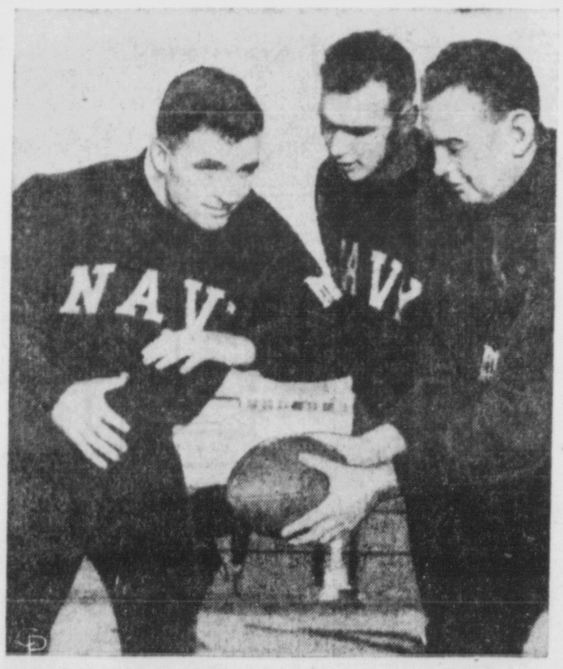

EFFINGHAM, Ill. (AP)—Last spring Clifford Gilbert said to members of his family, "I'm going to plant a fourth of an acre of squash — for the Lord."

At harvest time, Gilbert was dead.

The proceeds of his squash patch are going to the Miller Chapel Church.

Cincy-Miami Battle Among Few Tagged With Bowl Bids

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tradition and not much else marked the Thanksgiving Day schedule in major college football, although a couple of games could thin out prospect lists for minor bowl attractions.

Only one club, up-and-down Pitt, has even an outside chance for a major bowl bid among the teams in action today. But it would take a healthy romp against Penn State to gain the Panthers serious consideration.

The big game as far as tradition is concerned is the Penn-Cornell tussel in Philadelphia, with both clubs shooting for share of second place in the Ivy League.

Other traditional games included:

Virginia-VMI—Playing for second place in the Southern Conference, with VMI also on the list of Tangerine Bowl prospects.

Brown-Colgate—No league position, no bowl at stake, and probably no competition for Brown and passer Frank Finney.

Texas-Texas A&M — Both are three-time losers, but this has always been a grudge affair in the Southwest Conference. It will be telecast nationally.

South Carolina-Wake Forest — South Carolina can pad its second-place spot in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Wichita-Tulsa — Wichita could gain a first-place tie; Tulsa might nail a bowl bid, either to the Tangerine or Blue Grass.

Cincinnati-Miami (Ohio) — Both are on bowl lists.

It will be the 63rd meeting between the two southwestern Ohio rivals. Miami, which now has won the last four games, also owns a 30-26 margin in the long series. There have been six ties.

On paper, Cincinnati, rated as a rather decided favorite but form doesn't count much when the two teams get together in their annual Thanksgiving Day clash.

For comparative purposes both teams beat Dayton but Miami took a solid beating from Xavier while Cincinnati whipped the Musketeers. Miami won the Mid-American Conference championship while Cincinnati was able to win only one game in the under-sized but more potent Missouri Valley Conference.

The Bearcats lost one and tied two in that loop which has only five football-playing members.

Cincinnati's record for the entire season stands at 5-2-2 while Miami is 6-2. The Redskins lost to Indiana in addition to Xavier.

Richmond - William & Mary, Utah-Utah State and Denver-Colorado State also played from habit.

Pitt (6-2-1) might be able to lure a bid from the Blue Grass or the Gator Bowl. The Gator is the only major bowl without even one club picked.

Mississippi Southern (8-0), another Tangerine Bowl prospect, is the last of the unbeaten, untied teams still in business and winds up its regular season against Chattanooga. Thirteen other perfect-record clubs already have closed up shop.

Today's games are overshadowed by Saturday's specials — Army-Navy at Philadelphia; Air Force-Colorado, with the Air Cadets expected to fill the Cotton Bowl berth opposite Texas Christian; and Clemson-Furman, which is expected to ticket the Tigers for the Sugar Bowl opposite Louisiana State.

Other major games Saturday included Southern California-Notre Dame, Southern Methodist-TCU, Baylor-Rice, Houston-Texas Tech, Oklahoma-Oklahoma State, Ala-Auburn, Georgia - Georgia Tech, Vanderbilt-Tennessee, Florida-Miami and Mississippi-Mississippi State.

Jeff Tigers Nosed Out By Chillicothe Catholic

Jeffersonville's Tiger cagers maintained their high-scoring offense in their game with the boys from Chillicothe Catholic Wednesday night, but were nosed out 66 to 64.

In the five games the Tigers have played this season, they have never failed to score 65 points or more and in one game, against Simon Kenton, they piled up 85.

Playing on their home floor Wednesday night, the Tigers were good at just about everything they did except rebounding — and that was through no fault of their own, because the Chillicotheans were just too tall for them. They rarely got more than one shot at the bucket.

The Tigers made good 14 of 27 free throws and hit 25 of 61 shots from the field. Coach George Greer figured that their field goal average was 33 per cent in the first half and around 47 per cent in the second half — and that's right good for a high school team.

The Chillicotheans tallied on 14 of 30 from the foul line and had a little better average from the field. Most of heir field goals were made on rebounds right under the basket. Stark got 10 of them.

* * *

JEFFERSONVILLE'S Jim Wright, a transfer from Bowerville this year led both teams in scoring. Going into the game in the second period after John Davis was taken out with three fouls against him, Wright shot with amazing accuracy to make good 10 of 13 tosses. Virtually every shot was a jump from either the corner or about 15 feet out front.

Jim Cook, using the same corner and front key jump tactics, got 6 field goals. He had been averaging 19 points a game.

Davis, one of the high scoring Tigers — he got 36 points against Simon Kenton — spent most of the game on the bench without making a single point.

The Tigers started with a zone defense and when it failed to halt the Chillicotheans in the first period they shifted to a man-top-man. With the tighter defense, they started hitting and closing the gap and with only 30 seconds left in the game were within 2 points of tying it up.

Chillicothe shifted back and forth from a zone to man-to-man defense, but once the Tigers got going, they had no difficulty in getting through either.

At a considerable height disadvantage, the Tigers had to hit their first toss from the floor, because the visitors controlled the boards so effectively.

In the preliminary, the Chillicothe Reserves knocked off the Jeffersonville Reserves, 35 to 22. Gary Caplinger was top scorer for Jeffersonville with 10 points. Although Dave Garringer got only 2 points, he assumed the role of play-maker for the team and did a fine job of rebounding.

Hot, Cold Blue Lions Drop Season Opener to Bexley on Fouls, 66-52

Hitting a phenomenal 84 per cent of its free throws, an experienced Bexley team downed the hot-and-cold WCH Lion 66-52 in the Fayette Countians first game of the season Wednesday night.

Dropping to a 10-point deficit in the first quarter, the Lions fought back to close the gap to two points in the third quarter only to see it widen again as red-hot Bexley Guard Nafzer came on to make 9 of ten foul shots and one field goal in the last period.

Nafzger proved to be the deciding factor as he scored on 15 of 17 free throws and dumped in four baskets to carry away scoring honors with 23.

Bexley Forward McCandish added insult to injury by swishing in all of his eight free throw attempts and eight field goals for a total of 22 points.

The Blue Lions outscored the Columbus suburbanites on field goals 22 to 20 but the foul line told the tale. While the Bexley Lions were making 26 of their 31 shots the Blue Lions were dropping off with eight of 21 attempts for a percentage of 31.

The Blue Lions had many good shots during the first quarter but the basket "seemed to have a lid on it" and they spotted the Bexley team 10 points before the start of the second period, Coach Gene Millard said.

The Lions threw off their starting jitters in the second quarter and rebounded back to a 28-20 score at the end of the half.

Continuing their drive in the third quarter the Lions closed the point spread to two points with a 32-30 score.

But within the next few minutes the boys turned the ball over to Bexley three times without getting a shot and the score spread jumped to eight again.

From then on, the show was all Nafzer as he staged an 11 point surge in the last period to draw the Bexley Lions away to the 14-point winning lead.

Turnovers, in which the Lions would give the ball to Bexley without getting a shot, seemed to stop every sustained drive the Lions would seem to be starting, Millard said.

They would just get going and then turn the ball back two or three times in a row and have to fight back from a lop-sided score again.

The Lions turned the ball over without taking any shots 15 times. The most a team should have to ball over is about six, Millard said.

This problem will be one thing the boys will concentrate on before their next game, he said.

On the whole, Millard, making his debut as a WCH basketball coach, saw many good things in the game, he said.

Two enlightening factors were the scoring of Forward Pete Pfersick and Guard Jim Hidy. Pfersick took scoring honors for the Lions with 16 points and Hidy scored 13.

Unnecessary fouls, which accounted for the total of 25 personals, will be another working point for future practices, he said.

The Bexley team was well coached and had the decided advantage with three returning lettermen, Millard said. They played possession-type ball and waited for the good shots before shooting.

The Lions took advantage of the Blue Lions' inexperience on defense to drive in on short fast punches.

The team and the coach expressed appreciation to the 100-150 WCH fans who made the trip to see the team play.

The reserves, in taking a 27-22 beating, suffered from the same sharp-shooting at the foul line as the varsity.

The Bexley team started the evening's pattern by making nine of its 11 free throws while the Blue Lions were floundering with only two of 10 shots.

Coach Marvin Merritt said he was satisfied with the performance which also showed a greater number of field goals made, 10 to nine for the Bexley players, considering the time the boys have had to practice.

Seaman and Reno took scoring honors for the Lions reservists with six each.

Unions Give $36,244 To Beat Right to Work

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A long list of United Steelworkers locals contributed $36,244 toward the successful campaign to defeat the so-called right-to-work proposal in the general election Nov. 4. A report of the contributions was filed Wednesday with Secretary of State Ted W. Brown by a union official.

Train-Car Crash Toll

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Gordon Jeffery, state director of highway safety, says 81 persons died in Ohio car-train collisions in the first 10 months of this year.

When it is 12 o'clock noon in New York City, it is 1 o'clock the morning of the following day in Hong Kong.

Crash Knives

GLADSTONE, Mich. (AP)—The Marble Arms Corp. of Gladstone is grinding knives for use by downed fliers.

The Knives, tested by the Bureau of Aeronautics, have blades which can cut metal or other hard materials, such as the sides of a crashed plane. The knife butt is strong enough to be used as a hammer.

All in 40 Years

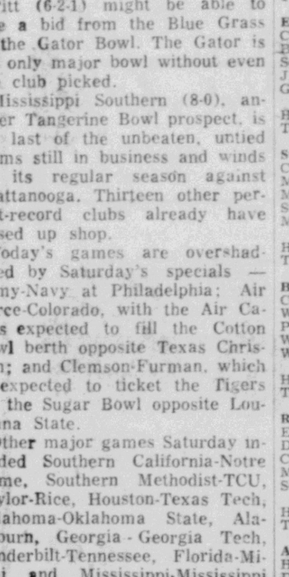

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—The Naval Air Station here was so busy it didn't take time to celebrate its 40th anniversary. It was commissioned in 1918 with equipment of six tents and six seaplanes. Now it is one of the largest and most powerful facilities of its type in the world.

Squash from Acre Patch Is Given to Church

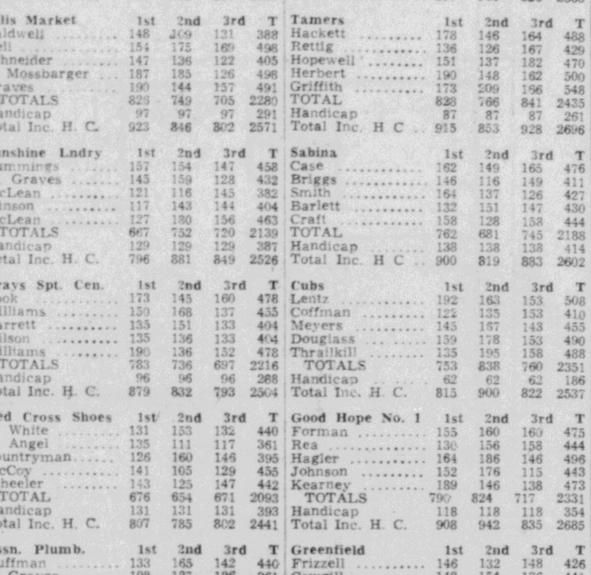

EFFINGHAM, Ill. (AP)—Last spring Clifford Gilbert said to members of his family, "I'm going to plant a fourth of an acre of squash — for the Lord."

At harvest time, Gilbert was dead.

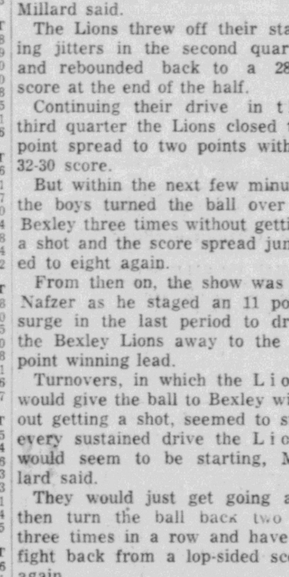

The proceeds of his squash patch are going to the Miller Chapel Church.

Nixon Revealed As Author of Anti-Dem Note

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Nixon sent a private wire to Republican congressional candidates about two weeks before the Nov. 4 election urging them to take the line that the Democratic party was dominated by radicals favoring policies hurtful to private enterprise.

A copy of the telegram, dated Oct. 19, was made available by Nixon's office today in response to a newsman's inquiry. Stories about it had been published by the New York Post and the Washington Evening Star.

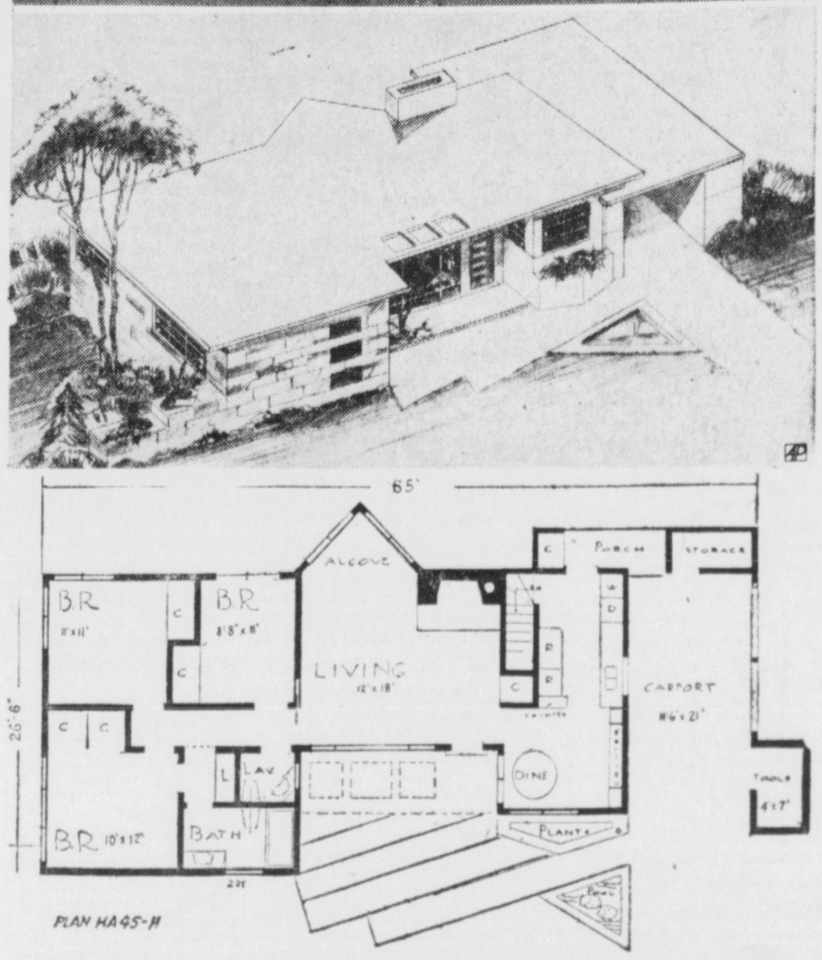

Nixon, who had just returned from a campaign trip to the West, said he felt the Democratic tide had taken a sharp turn and the Republicans could turn defeat into victory by making the fight of their lives.

But the Democrats won control of the House and the Senate by the largest majorities since the days of the New Deal.

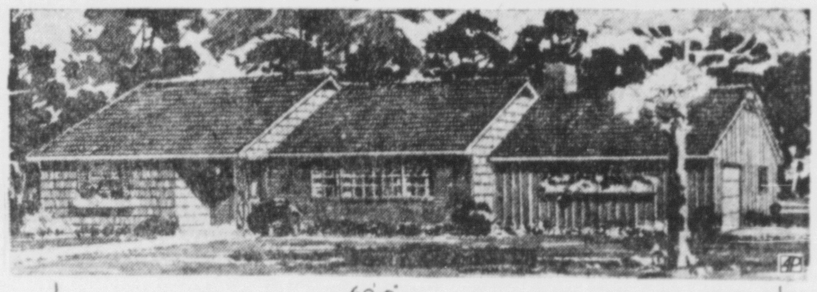

Nixon, in his telegram, said Republicans should hammer away at the idea that the Democrats offer nothing but "a return to the radical policies that failed to produce prosperity except in war or as a result of war."

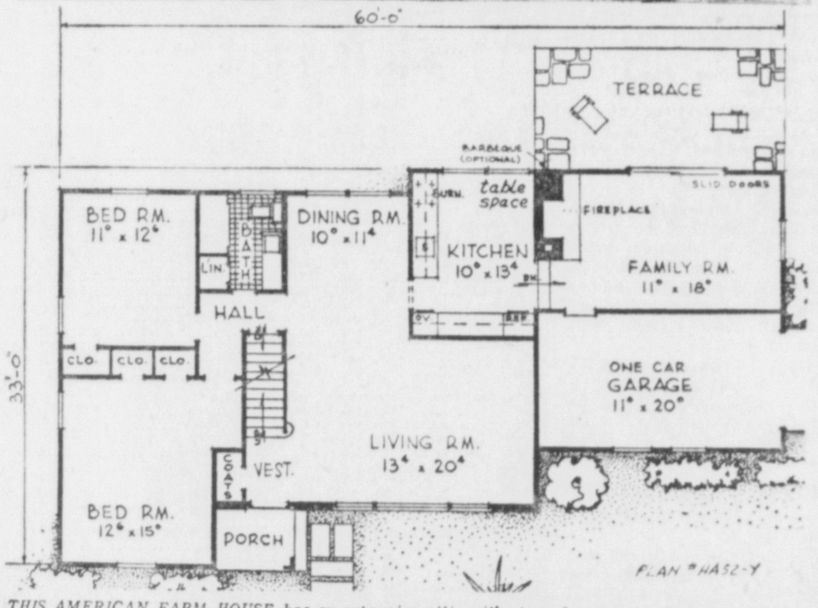

The telegram was the message that Harold E. Stassen, frequent critic of Nixon, has referred to since the election as "a secret telegram" he said the vice president sent urging Republican candidates to attack Democrats as Socialists.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

Sick Cook on Ship Is Weighty Problem

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — William Jenkins, a sea cook taken off his ship with a cargo boom when he became ill, is ready for the sea again although he has lost weight. Jenkins, down from a top of 537 pounds to 456, says a group of doctors who wanted to know why he weighed so much concluded that he lived too near a grocery store.

Park Wildlife Exhibit Opening Is Auspicious

Nixon Revealed As Author of Anti-Dem Note

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Nixon sent a private wire to Republican congressional candidates about two weeks before the Nov. 4 election urging them to take the line that the Democratic party was dominated by radicals favoring policies hurtful to private enterprise.

A copy of the telegram, dated Oct. 19, was made available by Nixon's office today in response to a newsman's inquiry. Stories about it had been published by the New York Post and the Washington Evening Star.

Nixon, who had just returned from a campaign trip to the West, said he felt the Democratic tide had taken a sharp turn and the Republicans could turn defeat into victory by making the fight of their lives.

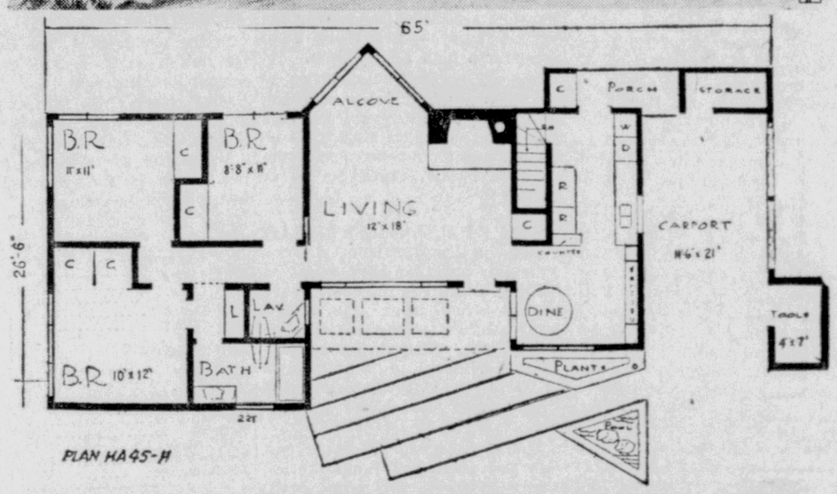

But the Democrats won control of the House and the Senate by the largest majorities since the days of the New Deal.

Nixon, in his telegram, said Republicans should hammer away at the idea that the Democrats offer nothing but "a return to the radical policies that failed to produce prosperity except in war or as a result of war."

The telegram was the message that Harold E. Stassen, frequent critic of Nixon, has referred to since the election as "a secret telegram" he said the vice president sent urging Republican candidates to attack Democrats as Socialists.

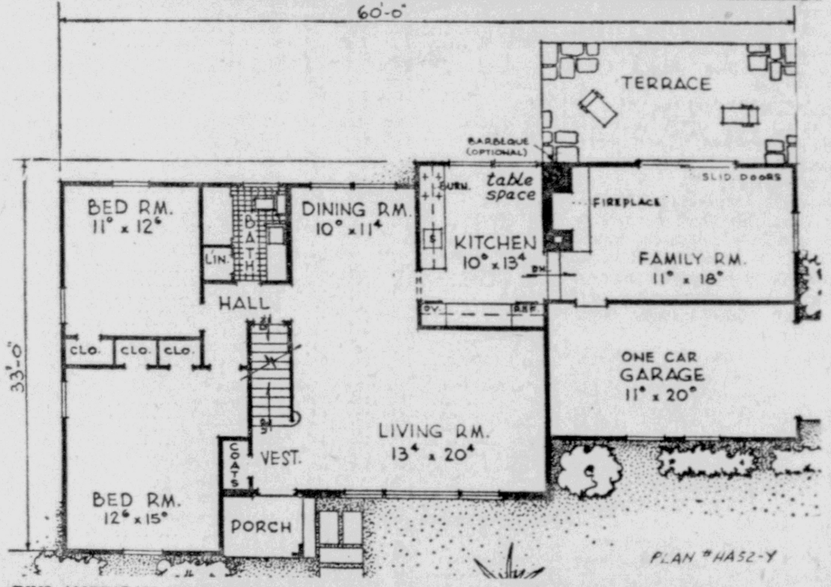

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

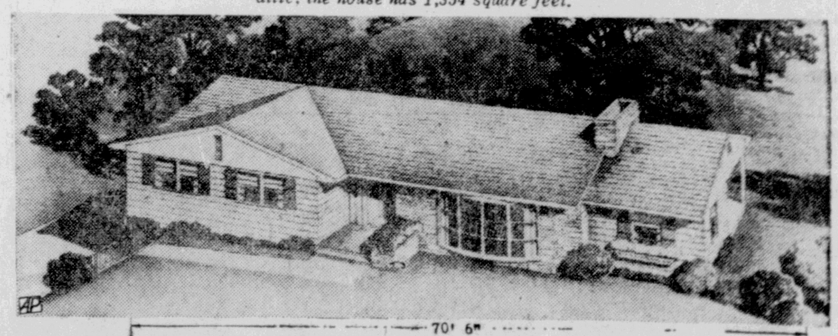

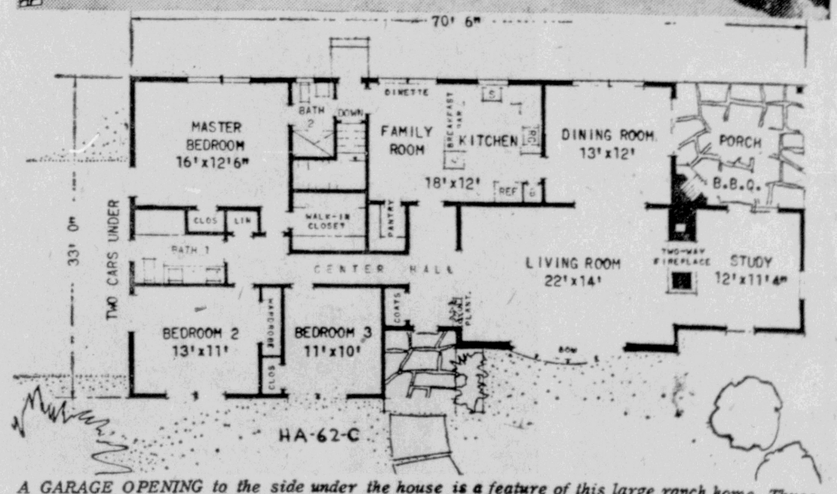

THIS CONTEMPORARY HOME, designed on one level, has five rooms and 1 1/2 baths. There are 1,320 square feet in the living area. The house has a full basement. Plan, HA45-H, is by Architect Paul T. Haagen, 360 North Michigan Ave., Chicago 1, Ill.

THIS AMERICAN FARM HOUSE has an expansion attic with space for an extra bedroom and bath plus additional storage space. The plan, HA52-Y, is by Architect Herman H. York, 90-04 161st St., Jamaica 32, N. Y. The overall size of the house is 33 by 60 feet. Excluding the garage and the attic, the house has 1,354 square feet.

A GARAGE OPENING to the side under the house is a feature of this large ranch home. Three over-size bedrooms, a family room, and study make for family comfort. It also has generous living, dining and kitchen space. The plan is HA62-C by Architect Lester Cohen, Rm. 75, 117 West 48th St., New York 36, N. Y. Habitable area is 1,870 sq. ft.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Lee Creamer and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Creamer and children, Barbara, Bonnie and Billy, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Junior Satterfield in Williamsburg.

Mrs. Charles Palmer, patient in White Cross Hospital, underwent surgery Wednesday noon.

FAYETTE COUNTIANS breathed a little easier today after the weather forecast was changed from cloudy with snow flurries to fair and much colder for Thanksgiving. For, they had not forgotten that it was only eight years ago on Nov. 25, that the community was paralyzed with a two-foot deep snow. Two typical scenes after that storm are reproduced above. Automobiles were stalled in deep drifts on S. Fayette St. in front of the Record-Herald office (left) and along E. Court St. (right) where traffic crawled along through a hazardous narrow path down the middle. For several days, residents of Washington C. H. could get around only by plodding afoot through the snow and many in the rural area were snowbound even longer.

Miami Trace Policy Statement Wins State Acclaim

The Miami Trace Board of Education has been selected for special recognition by the Ohio Education Assn. Department of Classroom Teachers on the basis of the board's personnel policy statement.

John Simpson, chairman of the classroom teachers Committee on Teacher Education and Professional Standards, in a letter to Miami Trace Board President Taylor Groff, said:

"The committee has reviewed new and revised school personnel policy statements adopted by Ohio boards of education during the past year. From these policy statements 11 have been selected for special recognition on the basis of their outstanding quality and the fact that professional staff members were involved in the development procedure. The Miami Trace policy statement, in the opinion of the committee, was one of outstanding merit."

* * *

POLICY STATEMENT recognition awards will be presented at an OEA awards dinner Friday evening, Dec. 5, at the Hotel Cleveland in that city.

Groff has been invited to attend the dinner and to accept the award to Miami Trace.

The 32-page policy statement is actually a set of rules and regulations governing the every-day operation of the rural school district.

The OEA is a state organization of teachers and school administrators.

Just Bum Report

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — "There's a bomb on a bench at Union Depot." That is what two Phoenix policemen thought they heard in a radio call. They rushed to the train station, found nothing and learned the report had been garbled. It should have been — there's a bum on a bench.

Skiing Popular Sport Even Down in Dixie

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Skiing is developing as a sport in Middle Atlantic states although usually associated with states to the north. A Blue Ridge Ski Council has been organized by clubs in Virginia, Maryland, West Virginia and the District of Columbia.

Ambush Fails To Catch Thief

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Wilton Wahl was fed up with the thief who was stealing archery equipment from his car. He planned an ambush.

First he put some bows and arrows in the front seat. Then he put his watchdog in the back seat. He then climbed to the roof of his house to get a clear view of the scene. Several hours passed but Wahl could see no burglar. He climbed down and found: His bows and arrows gone, his dog resting comfortably.

The boar's head was established by Henry VIII as a Christmas dish.

Sam Browne Gone

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — The Sam Browne belt is a thing of the past as far as Denver patrolmen are concerned. Used by patrolmen here for more than a quarter of a century, the Sam Brownes were ordered removed by Safety Manager Ed Geer. Instead a single strap now holds up the patrolmen's pants and pistols.

Artist's Hardest Job Is Painting a Sign

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Kenneth Harris, well-known for his water color painting made a big sign for a Norfolk education group.

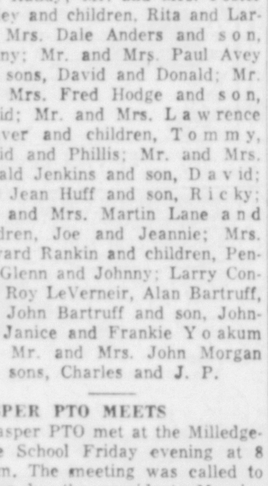

"Hardest work I've ever done. If I had to do this kind of work for a living it would kill me," Harris said. "I'm used to working on a much smaller scale."

BY MRS. JOHN MORGAN

SCOUT-CUB MEETING

Milledgeville Cub Pack 303 and Scout Troop 303 joined together for a potluck supper, uniform inspection and Court of Honor. They met at the Milledgeville School Thursday evening at 7:30 p. m., with John Morgan giving the invocation.

Den Mother Mrs. Robert Creamer had a decorated birthday cake for Bobby Pope, David Avey, Bobby Russell and Tommy Weaver, all celebrating birthdays during November.

Earl Henderson, district representative, was present for uniform inspection of both groups and to help present the awards.

Cub Master Charles Hiser presented the Cub Pack a $69. check received from sales tax stamps. He also presented awards, with the aid of Henderson to: Tommy Weaver, gold arrow point and bear badge; Bobby Pope, silver arrow point and Bobby Russell, the lion badge, Webelo badge, three-year pin, three silver arrow points and a graduation certificate.

Scout Master Donald Hodge advanced the following Scouts: Alan Bartruff, Curtis Hiser, David Harris, Randy Dice, Ricky Huff and Frankie Yoakum to second class; Harold Rolfe and Johnny Bartruff to first class; Glenn Rankin to first class and merit badges for plumbing, business, first aid, gardening, coin collecting, citizenship in the community, railroading and a senior patrol stripe; Joe Lane to first class and merit badge for horsemanship; Billy Creamer to first class with senior patrol leader stripe; Larry Conley to first class and merit badge for camping; Vernon Klontz to Star Scout with merit badges for first aid, citizenship and safety; Roger Hodge to Star Scout in the senior patrol stripe and merit badge for firemenship, roofing and stamp collecting; Johnny Minton to Star Scout with merit badge for citizenship in the home and J. P. Morgan to first class with merit badges for weather study and gardening.

Scout Master Hodge announced that the Cubs and Scouts would join together for the Christmas party to be held at Chaffin school.

Those present were Earl Henderson of Washington C. H.; Mr. and Mrs. Ray Pope and son, Bobby; Cubmaster and Mrs. Charles Hiser and children, Curtis, Debbie, Johnny, Mark and David; Mrs. Walter Russell and son, Bobby; Scoutmaster and Mrs. Donald Hodge and children, Roger Sue and Kenny; Den Mother Mrs. Robert Creamer and children, Bonnie and Billy; Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Klontz and son, Vernon; Mr. and Mrs. Willard Dice and son, Randy; Mr. and Mrs. Foster Kelley and children, Rita and Larry; Mrs. Dale Anders and son, Danny; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Avey and sons, David and Donald; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hodge and son, David; Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Weaver and children, Tommy, David and Phillis; Mr. and Mrs. Donald Jenkins and son, David; Lois Jean Huff and son, Ricky; Mr. and Mrs. Martin Lane and children, Joe and Jeannie; Mrs. Edward Rankin and children, Penny, Glenn and Johnny; Larry Conley, Roy LeVerneir, Alan Bartruff, Mr. John Bartruff and son, Johnny, Janice and Frankie Yoakum and Mr. and Mrs. John Morgan and sons, Charles and J. P.

JASPER PTO MEETS

Jasper PTO met at the Milledgeville School Friday evening at 8 p. m. The meeting was called to order by the president, Maurice Kelley. Mrs. Thomas Ankrom read the secretary's report and Mrs. Charles Shaper gave the treasurer's report. The reports showed $320.55 was cleared on the chicken supper in October and $318.75 on the Halloween Carnival.

The group voted to buy more chairs and seats for the swings. Foster Kelley, John Sheeley and Robert Fichthorn were appointed on the committee to purchase these.

The principal, Marion Rife, announced the Christmas program will be presented Dec. 18 and school will be dismissed Dec. 19 for the holidays.

The PTO will buy the costumes to be used for the Christmas program.

Kelley appointed Charles Shaper and Ray Pope as the committee for the Christams treats.

Sam Day of Good Hope showed slides he had taken in the west to close the meeting.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Edward Rankin, chairman, Mrs. Donald Hodge, Mrs. Eugene Klontz, Mrs. Jack Pursley and Mrs. John Morgan.

FB COUNCIL MEETS

Jasper Township Farms Bureau Council met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hiser Saturday evening for a potluck supper.

Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Robinson of Jamestown, Mr. and Mrs. John Sheeley, Mrs. Willis Fent, Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt Bock, Mrs. Floy Ferguson, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Marlon Sanderson and daughters, Linda and Sandra, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hiser and children Curtis, Debbie, Johnny, Mark and David and the host and hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Allen called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Sollars and family Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Lee Creamer and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Creamer and children, Barbara, Bonnie and Billy, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Junior Satterfield in Williamsburg.

Mrs. Charles Palmer, patient in White Cross Hospital, underwent surgery Wednesday noon.

FAYETTE COUNTIANS breathed a little easier today after the weather forecast was changed from cloudy with snow flurries to fair and much colder for Thanksgiving. For, they had not forgotten that it was only eight years ago on Nov. 25, that the community was paralyzed with a two-foot deep snow. Two typical scenes after that storm are reproduced above. Automobiles were stalled in deep drifts on S. Fayette St. in front of the Record-Herald office (left) and along E. Court St. (right) where traffic crawled along through a hazardous narrow path down the middle. For several days, residents of Washington C. H. could get around only by plodding afoot through the snow and many in the rural area were snowbound even longer.

Miami Trace Policy Statement Wins State Acclaim

The Miami Trace Board of Education has been selected for special recognition by the Ohio Education Assn. Department of Classroom Teachers on the basis of the board's personnel policy statement.

John Simpson, chairman of the classroom teachers Committee on Teacher Education and Professional Standards, in a letter to Miami Trace Board President Taylor Groff, said:

"The committee has reviewed new and revised school personnel policy statements adopted by Ohio boards of education during the past year. From these policy statements 11 have been selected for special recognition on the basis of their outstanding quality and the fact that professional staff members were involved in the development procedure. The Miami Trace policy statement, in the opinion of the committee, was one of outstanding merit."

* * *

POLICY STATEMENT recognition awards will be presented at an OEA awards dinner Friday evening, Dec. 5, at the Hotel Cleveland in that city.

Groff has been invited to attend the dinner and to accept the award to Miami Trace.

The 32-page policy statement is actually a set of rules and regulations governing the every-day operation of the rural school district.

The OEA is a state organization of teachers and school administrators.

Just Bum Report

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — "There's a bomb on a bench at Union Depot." That is what two Phoenix policemen thought they heard in a radio call. They rushed to the train station, found nothing and learned the report had been garbled. It should have been — there's a bum on a bench.

Skiing Popular Sport Even Down in Dixie

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Skiing is developing as a sport in Middle Atlantic states although usually associated with states to the north. A Blue Ridge Ski Council has been organized by clubs in Virginia, Maryland, West Virginia and the District of Columbia.

Some department stores use dogs for patrol and security duty.

Ambush Fails To Catch Thief

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Wilton Wahl was fed up with the thief who was stealing archery equipment from his car. He planned an ambush.

First he put some bows and arrows in the front seat. Then he put his watchdog in the back seat. He then climbed to the roof of his house to get a clear view of the scene. Several hours passed but Wahl could see no burglar. He climbed down and found: His bows and arrows gone, his dog resting comfortably.

The boar's head was established by Henry VIII as a Christmas dish.

Sam Browne Gone

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — The Sam Browne belt is a thing of the past as far as Denver patrolmen are concerned. Used by patrolmen here for more than a quarter of a century, the Sam Brownes were ordered removed by Safety Manager Ed Geer. Instead a single strap now holds up the patrolmen's pants and pistols.
